Davis Urges Renewal of U. S. Controls Over Food

Harriman Group Told Restrictions Are Needed to Back Marshall Plan

John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Renewed Government control over food, in order to conserve the grain necessary to carry out the Marshall Plan, was suggested at the Harriman Foreign Aid Committee yesterday.

The 19-man board, headed by Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman, has been in session here for two days, studying reports on the Nation's resources, and their availability for implementation of the Marshall proposal.

The suggestion for renewal of Government food controls came from Chester C. Davis, president of the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, and chairman of the subcommittee on Food and Agricultural Resources.

Restrictions Held Necessary

Some restrictions on food consumption in this country are necessary Davis asserted. He suggested they might come through a drive for voluntary reductions "at the meat market."

"Or it may be necessary to attempt to reinstate governmental controls on food," he added.

On Davis' suggestion for reinstatement of such controls, Harriman interrupted to inquire:

"You're speaking for yourself?"

Predicts Drive for Controls

Davis predicted that a drive would be made for reinstatement of food controls. However, he explained, he did not know if Congress would accept such controls, or if they could be adopted early enough to be of benefit.

Davis explained that the war powers granting the Administration authority to cut down on the consumption of grains by brewers or distillers have expired. He did not elaborate on whether the Government controls that might be sought would apply only to reinstatement of war food orders or to the entire program of rationing and price controls.

"Consumers have the money and are ready and willing to pay any price for meat," Davis explained.

If the demand for meat continues, he added, farmers will have to dip into the wheat supply to fill it, because of the unusually critical shortage of corn and other feed grains.

A campaign to cut down meat consumption, he indicated, would

Truman, Aides Get 'Works' On Equator

By Frank L. Dennis

Aboard USS Missouri off Northeast Brazil, Sept. 11.—All was placid aboard the Missouri tonight after a day of considerable excitement in which President Truman participated.

The President's day began at 4:30 a. m. He rose so early because he retired early and because he wanted to see sunrise at 5:15, which he commented was very beautiful.

Then at 6 a. m. he watched the transfer to the Missouri from the destroyer Small of a merchant seaman with blood poisoning whom the Small had taken from an American cargo ship off the Brazil coast last night.

He intently watched from a high-level bridge as the transfer was made by stretcher secured to pulley which ran on a hawser between ships.

Between 9 and 10 the President participated in and watched the ceremonies incident to crossing the equator, though the equator was not actually crossed until 4:30 p. m. The Missouri was at longitude 36:25 west at the time of crossing.

Raedy Case Is Closed With Forfeit of $200

Judge Stays Away From Her Trial on Hit-Run Charges

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy yesterday forfeited $200 collateral on hit-and-run charges, closing the Government's case against her.

The surprise move came within 10 minutes after the Municipal Court trial began at 1:30 p. m. before specially appointed Associate Judge Brice Clagett of the Municipal Court of Appeals. A 10-minute recess was allowed for the money to be posted.

Judge Clagett ordered the money forfeited after Judge Raedy failed to appear at the trial. At the time Judge Raedy was sitting in another branch of the Municipal Court, trying civil cases.

Only further action in the case will come when the Board of Revocations and Restorations of Drivers' Licenses rules on possible suspension of the Judge's driver's license after studying the police report of the accident. Suspension is mandatory only in cases where personal injuries are involved.

Forfeiture of the $200 collateral actually cost Judge Raedy $100 more than the maximum fine had there been a trial and conviction. Conviction on such "hit and run"

Action 'Effective' When Schwellenbach, Green Select His Successor, He Says

Cincinnati, Sept. 11 (AP).—Assistant Secretary of Labor Phil Hannah announced here today that he had resigned, effective "when William Green (president of the American Federation of Labor) and Labor Secretary Schwellenbach select a man from the ranks of labor to take my place."

He made the announcement during an address before a meeting of the Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL.

"Since passage of the Taft-Hartley Act and the emasculation of the Labor Department by cutting its funds by 30 per cent, I feel my usefulness in Washington is about terminated," he said.

Just before making the announcement Hannah told the delegates that he believed the law to be "unconstitutional, in part at ..."

...e criticized the Congress for what he called its failure to provide sufficient funds to the Labor Department, declaring it to be a "blow to the dignity of labor."

Schwellenbach Regrets Action

In Washington, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach said Hannah has been talking of resigning "for some time" and he "regets" to see Hannah leave.

Schwellenbach said he expects that the AFL executive council, now in session in Chicago, will discuss a possible nominee for a successor to Hannah.

Under past procedures in the Labor Department, the AFL and CIO each have had a high-ranking officer in the department. Hannah is the AFL man. Hannah's counterpart in the department has been John W. Gibson, representing the

Hosiery Chiefs Sign Affidavits

Philadelphia, Sept. 11 (AP).—Officers of Branch 1, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, representing 5000 workers, have signed non-Communist affidavits—one of the first groups of CIO leaders to comply with requirements of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Members of the CIO executive committee recently announced after a conference with CIO President Philip Murray in Pittsburgh that they would take no action on the affidavit question prior to the union's convention in Boston October 13.

The committee's declaration came after Robert N. Denham, general council for the National Labor Relations Board, announced that unless the Nation's labor leaders filed affidavits before September 25 nearly 15 million workers will be denied use of the NLRB.

President William Leader said officials of Branch 1 signed affidavits "as a reaffirmation of the Miners Agree To End Strike In Britain

Wildcat Walkout Cut Production By 555,000 Tons During Five Weeks

London, Sept. 11 (AP).—A wildcat coal strike that had crippled industries and deepened Britain's economic gloom was settled today with a back-to-work vote of Grimethorpe colliery workers in Yorkshire.

Two thousand workers voted unanimously to end the five-week walkout on Monday. Labor sources said the 38,000 who were still striking in sympathy would go back to work automatically, joining the 20,000 other sympathy strikers who already had returned to the pits.

The strike, which affected only a portion of the nation's 730,000 miners, had cost Britain about 555,000 tons of coal, or about one fourth of 1 per cent of the national production goal for 1947.

The Grimethorpe workers accepted a "face-saving" formula through which 150 coal diggers among them will return to their old 21-foot "stint," or daily coal face target. Meanwhile, the government's national coal board and the mine union will reconsider their joint order for a 23-foot stint which the miners had protested would endanger them without increasing production.

Lord Hyndley, chairman of the coal board, said "I hope we are going to make up a good deal of lost production. If we do not we are not going to get our target of 200 million tons for 1947."

The board promised reorganization and mechanization of mines and development of 70 shallow seams in a short-range plan.

On a long-term basis it pledged 100 major improvement projects by 1962, including new deep mines and reconstruction of existing pits.

Britain operates on such a slim coal reserves that the strike had forced several hundren Yorkshire factories to slash operations for want of fuel. Gas supplies were curtailed in 300,000 homes.

Wainwright Receptive To Draft for Senate

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—Gen. Jonathan Wainwright said today he would be receptive to any movement in Texas to draft him as a senatorial candidate next year but added he was "unaware" of such a boom.

"If the people of Texas desire me to serve them in the United States Senate I shall be happy to do so," Wainwright said.

The draft movement was reported yesterday in the Dallas Morning News, which said the general was being considered as a Democratic candidate to oppose the renomination of Senator W. Lee O'Daniel.

5000 to Stay in Trieste

U. S. Troops to Begin Leaving Italy Today; Lee Will Retire

Rome, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Gen. John C. H. Lee announced today that the first steps toward evacuating 15,000 American occupation troops from Italy will be taken tomorrow and that he himself will leave for home next week to await retirement from the Army.

While these troops are evacuated under a home-by-Christmas program which Lee detailed, 5000 others will remain in the Trieste international zone and about 1000 graves registration and liquidation personnel will remain in Italy to complete their duties.

Lee, who is both American and acting Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean, made his announcement on the basis of the Allied decision to deposit the formal ratification documents for the Italian peace treaty in Paris Monday. Under the treaty, Allied troops—the Americans and about 30,000 Britons—are to get out of Italy within 90 days of the deposit of the ratification instruments.

General Lee said he had made his decision to retire and had been ordered home before an American newspaper columnist recently caused an investigation of his command by charging maladministration.

Lee gave the following timetable for the American troop withdrawal, to be completed by the 90-day treaty deadline of December 14:

1. Tomorrow morning American and British troops in northern Italy will take the first steps toward evacuation by starting to set up lines of demarkation at certain critical points along the new Italian-Yugoslav frontier set by the treaty.

2. Sunday, the day before R-Day (Ratification Day) Italian border guards will be permitted to move up to the new boundary line.

3. On R-Day, Monday, United States troops in the Pola area, below Trieste, which goes to Yugoslavia, will be evacuated by ship and the area will pass to the control of that country.

4. Late Monday Allied troops will turn over their outposts along the so-called Morgan Line, set up after the war pending the effectiveness of the treaty, to the Yugoslav army and will withdraw behind the new Italian frontier.

5. Allied command headquarters here will be closed at once

British Ask For 'Stopgap' In Plea to World Bank

Dalton Declares Disaster Faces Europe Unless Lending Is Eased

New Appraisal Due

MARSHALL PLAN conference, scheduled for Paris Monday, may be delayed nearly three weeks for a complete overhaul of the report on Europe's needs. Story on page 3.

From Good Beginning

London, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—British officials followed up a suggestion for revival of Lend-Lease today with an appeal to the International Bank for stopgap loans which will help Britain and Europe stave off economic catastrophe until the Marshall Plan matures in six months' time.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton, taking up the dollar appeal where Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin left it with his lend-lease proposal last night, told the second annual meeting of the International Bank and Monetary Fund that disaster faces Europe.

Time Is the Factor

Some loans already have been made to member countries of the 45-nation Bank and Fund to bolster their currencies, Dalton said, as chairman of the Bank-Fund governors' meeting, adding that "these beginnings are good and give ground for future confidence . . ."

Then he said:

"But I feel sure you will wish to consider all possible ways by which both the Fund and the Bank may make, within the next few months, an even larger contribution toward solving the urgent problems which confront us all, and toward helping to stave off the economic disasters which threaten so many of our members."

Observers interpreted Dalton's words as an appeal for immediate liberalization of the statutes of both organizations to permit quick and effective financial aid to war-ravaged Britain and Europe. Under its present laws the Bank and Fund may not make stopgap loans for purchase of consumer goods.

Most Face Failure

Let us take counsel together, each with a full sense of the gravity of this historic hour," Dalton said. "The tides of fate are fast running out. We must be prompt and resolute to seize our final opportunities.

"Each nation can and must go a great way along the road to recovery through its own efforts. But, unaided, most cannot go all

Congressional Probe On Costs to Start in 11 Cities Next Week

By Dillard Stokes

A special subcommittee of Senators and Congressmen will start investigating high prices next week, with hearings in 11 cities.

"We are starting out without preconceived notions," said Chairman Flanders (R., Vt.). "We are not trying to prove anything. We are merely trying to learn what are the facts."

Flanders and several other Senators, however, said they had conceived the notion that it would not do any good to set up new price controls.

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) said he hoped the investigation would be a warning to profiteers, if there are any.

And Senator Myers (D., Pa.) said the thing to do was to call Congress into special session in November.

Labor Satisfied With His Bill, Taft Declares

Berkeley, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP).—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said today "the working men are well satisfied" with the Taft-Hartley labor Act.

He flatly predicted a Republican triumph in 1948.

The Senator, regarded as a top flight possibility for the GOP presidential nomination, cited Tuesday's special Pennsylvania congressional election in whicha Republican defeated a candidate opposed to the bill Taft co-authored.

The Senator declined to comment to a reporter on his own status as a presidential candidate.

Butter Goes Up 2 Cents; Eggs Rise

Washington area housewives who scanned grocery prices yesterday with an anxious eye to weekend supplies, found most butter and egg price tags two or more cents higher than last week.

The few changes noted in meat prices also were upward. Grocers generally reported a certain amount of switching to cheaper cuts on the part of customers.

While Washington prices are not keeping up to the spiraling New York market, which yesterday produced $1.05 a pound butter in some stores, wholesalers here warned that local prices for the dairy product might cross the $1 line by next month.

Egg Prices Go Up

Grade A eggs in one large chain store group will be 79 cents a dozen this weekend, but another large retail outlet reported the best grade at 85 cents, compared to 83 last week and 77 the week before. New Yorkers, on the other hand, were groaning at 91-cent and 96-cent eggs.

Those who were forseeing $1 butter here believed such a further jump, from the present 91 to 94 cent level in many of the chain stores, depends on how many consumers switch to margarine. One said the ratio of butter sales to margarine sales, usually about 3 to 1, is dropping toward 2 to 1.

In the face of this trend, grocers were somewhat at a loss to explain the recent drop in the margarine price. While many brands sold for 41 cents a pound three weeks ago, local prices for the product dropped 2 cents the following week, and 4 cents last week, at chain stores. This week's prices of 33 to 35 cents a pound show no tendency to reverse the trend.

Margarine Price Steady

A spokesman for a large grocery chain said all vegetable oil products, such as shortening, mayonnaise and some sandwich spreads as well as oleomargarine, were maintaining steady or lower prices.

Beef prices seemed to be continuing at about the same 89-to-98 cent level for choice sirloin and porterhouse steaks in the leading chain stores, but many stores increased pork or lamb prices by about 2 cents a pound. Leg of lamb was up 4 cents in many outlets.

Although grocers here said the only consumer resistance they knew of was reflected in some buy-

Atomic Bomb Medical Study Urged

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A committee of seven outstanding scientists was appointed yesterday by the Atomic Energy Commission to study medical defenses against the atomic bomb and humanitarian uses for atomic energy.

Headed by Dr. Alan Gregg, director for medical sciences of the Rockefeller Foundation, the committee will meet today with members of the commission. Then it will turn to nomination of a director to head the proposed Atomic Energy Commission of Biology and Medicine before plunging into a continuing study of the medical and biological problems posed by the atomic energy program.

Others on Committee

Among matters to be studied is the recommendation, made June 30 by the Medical Board of Review, that isotopes he made available to foreign investigators. Ten days ago the commission announced these by-products of atom bomb manufacture would be sold to overseas researchers, a decision which aroused protests that other nations might be provided a short-cut to bomb making.

Appointment of the Medical Board of Review, four of whose members are on the advisory committee, was made public June 16, four days before it recommended overseas distribution of isotopes.

Besides Dr. Gregg, members of the advisory committee are Drs. G. W. Beadle, professor and chairman of the division of biology of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena; Detlev W. Bronk, director of the Johnson Research Foundation of the University of Pennsylvania and chairman of the National Research Council; Ernest W. Goodpasture, dean of the school of medicine and professor of pathology at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.; A. Baird Hastings, professor of biochemistry at Harvard Medical School, Boston; E. C. Stakman, chief of the division of plant pathology and botany of the University of Minnesota, St. Paul; and Joseph T. Wearn, dean of the school of medicine and professor of medicine at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.

Doctors Gregg, Bronk, Goodpasture and Hastings also are members of the Medical Board of Review. Other members of the board are Drs. Robert F. Iran Assured U. S. Will Back Her on Oil

Allen Tells Nation To Make Free Choice On 'Foreign' Demands

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—American Ambassador George V. Allen assured Iran tonight that she would have the full support of the United States in resisting any aggressive foreign demands for oil concessions.

"The United States has dedicated its full energy and resources to freeing the peoples of the world from the fear of aggression," Allen said in a speech to the Iran-American Relations Society.

"Our determination to follow this policy is as strong as regards Iran as it is anywhere else in the world. Patriotic Iranians . . . may therefore rest assured that the American people support fully their fredom to make their own choice."

Hint to Russians

Allen did not mention Russia but said the United States would become concerned if threats were made against Iran in attempts to force her to grant oil concessions —which seemed an oblique reference to the Soviet Union.

A draft of the oil concession which Russia is demanding was drawn early in 1946 as one of the main conditions for withdrawal of Russian troops from Azerbaijan Province, which they occupied during the war.

According to an announcement at that time by Premier Ahmad Ghavam, the concession was conditional upon ratification by a new Iranian Parliament which was to be elected. The Parliament was elected this year and will meet shortly to act on the oil agreement.

Under the tentative agreement, Russia would receive a 50-year oil concession. Russia would hold 51 per cent of the stock for the first 25 years. Russia and Iran each would hold 50 per cent for the last 25 years.

Allen pointedly refuted reports

The Gallup Poll

Union Members Vote Against Use of Funds for Politics

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., September 11.—Neither labor unions nor business corporations should be permitted to spend money to help elect or defeat candidates for public office, in the opinion of a majority of American voters polled by the Institute.

Section 304 of the Taft-Hartley Act makes it unlawful for any labor organization to "make a contribution or expenditure" in connection with elections. Corporations, including banks, had already been forbidden to do so by law.

To test the current opinion of American voters, including labor union members themselves, the Institute put two questions in a nationwide survey.

The results show that people who are members of labor unions vote approval of the principle that union funds should not be used to influence elections. The majority is almost as large as for the rest of the Nation.

The two questions in the survey dealt with general principles. Many ramifications of the Taft-Hartley provisions against use of union funds politically have been pointed out since the act was passed. Future polling will be conducted on some of these ramifications if the law is officially interpreted by the courts or by Federal authorities to include them.

The survey questions and results were:

Woman Achieves Objective In Death: Poetry Is Published

A 25-year-old woman yesterday achieved in tragic death what she had been unable to attain in life—her poetry was published.

Appearing on front pages in the story of her death was the four-line epitaph, which Rita Rafferty, a civilian clerk for the Marine Corps, finished in her room at 1819 M st. ne., shortly after 1 a. m. yesterday. She wrote:

"For epitaph just carve what's true . . .
In case my dogged silence lied:
Born when I started loving You,
Stopped loving You the day I died."

Then Rita swallowed 40 sleeping tablets and went downstairs to call a friend, police said.

"I've just taken 40 sleeping pills," she told Mrs. Rhoda Bowman of Arlington Village, by telephone and collapsed in the hallway, the receiver still in her hand.

Mrs. Bowman, who said she worked in the same office with Rita, called police. They arrived to find that Mr. and Mrs. John Liberty, with whom Rita resided, had found the girl unconscious and carried her to her room. She was rushed to Gallinger Hospital, where she died at 3:05 a. m.

Death was caused by a sleeping potion, according to Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, who issued a certificate of suicide.

Friends were unable to find a reason for Rita's ending her life, police said. They described her as a lonely, quiet, but not unhappy girl, who aspired to be a great writer. She spent much of her time writing, particularly poetry, they told police. A num-

Grand Jury Hears Witness On Clegg's Brutality Charges

The physician who examined Julius Willie Clegg after release by police testified yesterday before the grand jury probing the Negro war veteran's complaint of police brutality.

Dr. Hugh Browne of 1934 Benning rd. ne., said he was called to give medical testimony of Clegg's face hurts.

An earlier witness, Charles E. Davis sr., news reporter for The Washington Post, said he was asked about Clegg's appearance when interviewed for a news story.

Clegg, 26-year-old employe of The Washington Post, has charged he was beaten, cursed and threatened by two detective sergeants who questioned him during the 34 hours police held him incommunicado.

He was picked up for questioning about 6 a. m., August 2 on complaint of a waitress that he made lewd remarks to her. She was later unable to identify him as the man, and police released Clegg nearly a day and a half later, without charge.

Following his complaint, Clegg picked two detective sergeants of the police sex squad from a line-up of 10 as the men who beat him. Their identity has been withheld pending outcome of the grand jury investigation.

Other witnesses who testified before the jurors yesterday included Elcer A. Clayton of 469 I st. nw., who occupied a cell near Clegg's at No. 1 Police Precinct; Roger Robb, the complainant's attorney; Robert Bruskin, news reporter of The

Getting Food Vital Issue In Germany

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 11.—The young university professor was apologizing for the turn our conversation had taken.

"It does not matter what we start to talk about," he said, "whether we begin with philosophy, politics, art or music, we always come around to food."

This is not hard to understand. Germans in the American zone have a ration that entitles them to 1550 calories a day, but Military Government officials frankly admit they generally are unable to get that much—the supplies are unavailable.

[The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council in America recommends diets of from 2500 calories for men of sedentary occupations up to 4500 calories for very active ones, and from 2100 for women of sedentary lives up to 3000 for very active ones.—Editor's note.]

Accordingly, food is the primary interest to the German, impinging relentlessly on his consciousness no matter how much he tries to think about other things. Unless he is himself a farmer, he plots how to get to the land and how to acquire something to swap with the farmer for food.

One stage of this process can be seen at any city railway station and almost any time. Germans

Balkan Controversy Flares in U. N. Again

Soviet Ignored

Atom Body Approves 2d Report

Lake Success, Sept. 10 (AP).—The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission disregarded bitter Russian opposition today and approved its second report stating general principles for creation and operation of an international atomic control agency.

The roll-call vote was 10 to 1. Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko said "no" and Poland abstained.

The ballot came after the United States' Frederick H. Osborn answered a volley of Russian charges with a counter-charge that the Soviet Union had impeded the work of the commission since its start 15 months ago.

Gromyko, who is council chairman this month, mentioned that delegates would be busy with the General Assembly beginning next Tuesday, indicating that the atomic report certainly would not soon receive council consideration.

Milan, Sept. 11 (AP).—An estimated 200,000 sharecroppers in northern Italy have joined the strike for better pay for farm laborers which began Monday, bringing the total estimated land workers on strike to 1,000,000.

The strike threatens crops, chiefly rice, and has created a milk shortage in Milan, biggest northern city.

Security Council's Request on Greece Faces Soviet Veto

Lake Success, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Balkan controversy flared up in the United Nations again today when the United States proposed that the Security Council call on the General Assembly to find a solution to the dispute between Greece and her Soviet satellite neighbors.

The maneuver, intended to remove technical obstacles under the U. N. Charter, was expected to run into immediate opposition from Russia, which last year vetoed a similar move to ask for Assembly action on the Spanish question.

The charter provides that the Assembly may discuss matters which are under active consideration by the Security Council, but may not then act on them without a specific request from the Council.

Informed quarters interpreted the American move as a part of its strategy to keep the subsidiary frontier watch group of the U. N. Balkan Investigating Commission in Greece.

Russia argued that this group had ceased to exist legally when the Security Council failed to find a solution to the problem after two Soviet vetoes killed United States—led efforts last month, but Secretary-General Trygve Lie ruled that the body could continue operations until the Council decided to liquidate the watchers or drop the Balkan question from its agenda.

Under the American proposal, the Council could keep the issue on its calendar, thereby preserving the Balkan unit, and at the same time give the Assembly a free

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Bulgaria today charged that the United Nations Balkan subcommission had favored Greece during investigations of frontier incidents and declined to cooperate with the group.

A government note rejected the subcommission's request to investigate four border incidents and listed nine alleged frontier provacations by the Greeks in May, July and August.

The note charged that the subcommission had shown "no interest in alleged Greek frontier violations, thus openly acting one-sidedly in favor of Greece, against Bulgarian sovereign rights."

Dewey Urges Quick Action On Palestine

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey called today for quick United Nations adoption of a plan to establish separate Jewish and Arab states in Palestine to end what he termed the tragedy of shipping homeless Jews into Germany.

Dewey urged the American delegation to the U. N. General Assembly to throw full support behind a U. N. special committee majority report on Palestine although, he said, "it does not give the Jews all that was promised by the Nations."

"The partition recommended," he added, "seems a minimum for Jewish needs."

His statements came in Rosh Hashonah (Jewish New Year's) greeting to Jewish residents of New York State.

The governor, an undeclared contender for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, also urged:

1. Federal legislation to permit the absorption of our share of displaced persons of all religions.

2. Adoption without delay of another U. N. special committee recommendation to permit the immigration of 150,000 Jews into Palestine within the next two years.

Although he did not refer specifically to the forcible removal of Jewish refugees from British transports at Hamburg earlier this week, Dewey asserted:

"It (the partition) should be carried forward quickly to end the further sowing of the seeds of discord and the tragedy of homeless Jews being shipped against their will to a land of bitter memories."

that if a union newspaper, supported by union funds, comes out in favor of a candidate, that might be construed as a violation of the law; in short, that the law gags freedom of speech and freedom of the press so far as labor organizations are concerned. U. S. Properties In Colombia Are Damaged

The State Department reported yesterday that property of the United States Embassy and an American shipping firm in Bogota, Colombia, was damaged yesterday by a throng of demonstrators.

A report from the embassy said the Colombian foreign office and the chief of police had expressed regrets for the affair, touched off by a United States note to the Colombian government protesting alleged discrimination in shipping privileges.

The American note was described by Lincoln White, State Department press officer, as "expressing concern of the United States Government" about discriminatory practices against American shipping in Colombia.

UNESCO Official Favors Free Flow Of World News

Chicago, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the United States National Commission of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, said today that UNESCO should move directly "to eliminate all barriers to the international flow of information."

Eisenhower said that "if an international convention fails to reach an agreement on this question, those nations which do subscribe to the principle of a free flow of information should be persuaded to enter into agreements with one another for the implementation of this principle."

Gen. Eisenhower Gives Views On Soldiers in Partisan Politics

New York, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, frequently mentioned as a possible 1948 candidate for President, said today that a professional soldier should never enter politics or seek partisan office.

Eisenhower, who visited Columbia University to "find out what my duties will be" when he becomes its president after January 1, did not completely eliminate himself, however, as a possible "draft" presidential nominee in 1948.

Reiterating the stand he took at a Washington press conference yesterday, he said:

"There never has been a draft movement without artificial stimulus. I will be no party to anything artificial."

He was emphatic in his opinion that such a stimulus was necessary to any presidential draft.

Eisenhower held a press conference at the university's Lowe Memorial Library. Later when newsmen again questioned him, he said:

"I can only repeat that I will have nothing to do with partisan politics. A man who has spent his life in military service should never enter politics and seek partisan office."

Eisenhower smiled when a newsman asked him if in his new office he should be addressed as "General" or "Mr. President."

"I shall always answer most readily to the name of Ike," he replied.

Eisenhower said he had "practically made up my mind to seal my mouth" about the question of an Eisenhower boom for the Republican nomination. He also has been mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate.

"Whatever I say seems to be misinterpreted to suit a particular point of view," he said. "I intend to do my best for Columbia. It's a big enough job to challenge any man."

Start Arnall Boom

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 11 (AP). Representative Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and a group of Tennessee and Georgia Democrats have proposed former Georgia Gov. Ellis Arnall as a 1948 running mate for President Harry Truman.

Speaking last night at a meeting of the Hamilton County Young Democratic Club, Representative Kefauver said "Arnall is a capable man for the job."

In answer to the question why Arnall shouldn't run for President, Kefauver said "we are saving him for 1952 for that."

AFL Plans Active Role

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 11 (AP).—The AFL-Pennsylvania Federation of Labor plans an "active role in both State and congressional elections" through organization of a political action committee.

President James L. McDevitt announced formation of the group last night at the close of a two-day meeting of the executive council. The 17 members of the council will compose the political action committee with McDevitt as chairman.

All Other Issues in Germany Subordinated To Compelling Business of Obtaining Food overwhelm the dirty little passenger cars, pack themselves like sardines in compartments, stand in a solidly wedged mass between cars, hang on to steps, even ride on the roofs—anything to get out to the country and swap valuables for vegetables.

This sort of scrounging has become almost the customary way of life. A trip from Frankfurt into Bavaria for a sack of potatoes is not uncommon. Various American Military Government offices in the larger cities unofficially grant their German employes an extra half day holiday every so often to go out to the land to see what they can forage.

The causes of this terrible food shortage in western Germany are well known and have been described in the world press thousands of times, but perhaps another repetition won't hurt.

Never Self-Sufficient

1—Germany never was self-sufficient in food; it depended always on imports. Prewar figures of Hjalmar Schacht showed 20 per cent of the total food was brought in from abroad. Germany's own economy—and the world's economy—at this time is not such as would permit it to export goods with which to pay for food imports.

2—One fourth of Germany, and precisely that part with the best agricultural land, now belongs to Poland or is in the Russian zone. Practically none of its produce flows to the British, French and American zones in the west.

3—But 5 million of its former inhabitants have migrated into the western zones, where they must be fed.

4—All of Europe, and particularly Germany, has experienced the worst growing weather since the time of Napoleon—summer drought in 1946, a winter of frightful freezes and cold, and another summer drought.

A bitter aspect of the problem is that there are no solid hopes for improvement in the near future. Better weather next year will, of course, alleviate the situation somewhat. But for the coming winter the prospects are unrelievedly black.

American Military Government officials had privately been discussing the possibility of boosting the daily ration to 1800 calories. They now declare they will consider themselves lucky if they can maintain—or even reach—the present standard of 1550.

They had hoped for an increase in American grain shipments in the next twelve months from 3,600,000 tons promised by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to 4,400,000 tons. But that hope now is blasted. Even America's bumper wheat crop will not make up the loss represented by our poor corn harvest.

Ultimately Military Governor General Lucius D. Clay hopes that the German diet can be brought up to 2000 calories per capita per day. But that goal is not seen until 1951 and depends on an ultra-ambitious new-level German industry program.

If it were accomplished, the bizonal area [United States and Britain] of Germany would have enough manufactured and other goods to export to pay for enough food imports to bring up the diet to that 2000-calory level. But this plan also has another big "IF"—Where will Germany sell those exports to acquire dollars necessary to pay for Western Hemisphere food?

Meantime Germans drag along, such nourishment as they have coming almost entirely from starch, and not enough to give them the punch and drive needed for good physical and intellectual work.

Peasants Resented

Those in the cities are acquiring at the same time an evergrowing resentment for peasants, who are making the most of a sellers' market. They are declining to let their produce go for marks. Instead, they insist on gold, real valuables, chocolate, sugar or tobacco.

My apologetic young university professor, caught in this plight, can buy less with his full month's salary than he could with three packs of American cigarettes.

And the crack often heard these days when two Germans meet is "are you eating or smoking this week?"

American officials here are worried lest another kind of deep and enduring bitterness be built up, not only in Germany, but throughout Europe. We are sending great tonnages of food to the Old World. But if these are not enough, and if Europe drags on in dreary malnutrition because Americans decline to cut their own diet a bit and save some surplus to be sent abroad—if America eats too well while the rest of the world hungers, how then will our great Western democracy appear in the eyes of the world?

(In tomorrow's article, Mr. Friendly describes "the most concentrated mass tragedy of today's world," the "twilight existence" of the hundreds of thousands of Displaced Persons.)

Paris Conference May Delay Report

3-Weeks Extension Likely to Overhaul Program to Meet Clayton's Criticisms

Paris, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Marshall Plan conference may be delayed nearly three weeks beyond next Monday for a complete overhaul of the final report to satisfy criticisms of United States Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton, a secretarial source said tonight.

This source said Clayton's objections, presented at a meeting with members of the conference's executive committee at th American Embassy last night, was not aimed at the amount of aid requested but rather at the way the statistical data was presented.

"Clayton found the report too indigestible," the source said, adding that the American official had declared the report was unlikely to obtain the backing of the American public in its present form.

Down to 18 Billions

It was learned on good authority, meanwhile, that overall aid the United States will be asked to underwrite was further lowered to nearly 18 billion dollars during the meeting this afternoon of the full cooperation committee.

Prior to today's meeting, the estimated balance-of-payments deficit between the 16 participating nations and the western hemisphere for the next four years was $19,726,000,000, the conference source said.

The final session was still officially set for simetime Monday afternoon.

Decision Will be Made Today

Decision whether to postpone the final session until after the report is rewritten or to hold the meeting on schedule and finish the report afterwards will be made tomorow after another conference of the executive committee with Clayton, the secretariat source said.

Another source said the cooperation committee today knocked more than one billion dollars off the stimated deficit in the balance-of-payments report, principally by revising the future estimated prices of some products western Europe will need during the next four years.

One item, this source addde, was wheat. The primary price used for calculating costs was $1.90 a bushel. This was lowered approximately 10 per cent to $1.70, which the committee felt would be about the price prevailing in 1949.

Union Says Industry Could End Steel Lack

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

As demands mounted that the Government take a hand to force expanded steel production, the CIO United Steelworkers Union told Congress yesterday that industry itself could be persuaded to do the job.

Warning that the shortage of steel and steel capacity threatens this Nation with a serious depression the CIO urged the Government to encourage industry to raise its sights and prepare for a permanent demand for more steel.

The CIO statement was given before the Senate Small Business Subcommittee investigating the need for steel and the prospect of meeting it by Otis Brubaker, director of research.

Meahwhile the American Iron and Steel Institute announced industry plans for increasing production by 2,500,000 tons of ingots by 1948.

Kaiser Calls "Famine Serious"

Henry J. Kaiser, West Coast industrialist and steel manufacturer, who was an interested auditor at the hearing, told reporters "the steel famine is serious and threatens the future prosperity of the country."

Kaiser has announced plans to increase the productive capacity of his Fontana steel plant provided the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will agree to write off some 35 million dollars of his 105 million dollars indebtedness to it.

The big builder has long contended that he was not treated on an equal basis with large steel companies who bought government built plants.

Chairman Edward Martin (R., Pa.) said it was possible his committee would call upon Kaiser to testify.

Kaiser Asks Probe of RFC

The industrialist requested Chairman George Bender (R., Ohio) of a House Executive Expenditures Subcommittee to investigate his proposal to RFC.

His action was prompted, Kaiser said, by the fact that Representative Robert F. Rich (R., Pa.), a committee member, has warned RFC that agreement to Kaiser's request would precipitate a demand for an investigation.

Kaiser declared that the inquiry should precede any action by RFC rather than follow it.

The steel industry was singled out yesterday by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) as an example of an industry in which Government might have to enter production in order to boost capacity, lower prices and avoid a depression.

Industry "Unwilling or Unable"

The steel industry, O'Mahoney declared, is "at the moment unwilling or unable to increase production."

Brubaker cited Government estimates that by 1950 steel requirements will approximate 110 million tons in contrast with a current capacity of 90 million tons.

He suggested that if neccessay the Government should buold and lease plants and establish long-term low interest loans to industry to encourage expansion.

Other industries, he declared, are as dependent upon steel that widespread unemployment and economic collapse will result from failure to expand steel production.

A New England witness yesterday complained to the committee about the shortage of nails and the "thriving gray market" in the important construction material.

The witness, Russell R. Mueller of Boston, managing director of the New England Hardware Association, said essential construction in New England is being delaped by the extreme shortage in nails.

Walter S. Tower, president, American Iron and Steel Institute, declared that in the 24 months since the fall of Japan, the steel industry has lost 18 million tons of steel ingots through strikes in coal or steel.

He insisted it was strikes and delays in industries supplying machinery which had hampered expansion and improvement plans in the industry.

Renewal of Food Controls Urged to Back Marshall Plan

be the most direct way to avoid using up the wheat supply as livestock feed.

His suggestion as to a "voluntary campaign" indicated also that he may be considering an early meeting of the Famine Emergency Committee which he headed during the famine relief drive early in 1946. That committee has been "semidormant" since 1946, Davis said.

Blames Export for Price Hikes

Davis earlier had agreed that the grain export program was largely responsible for recent spurts in prices. He denied, however, that the Government's program of wheat purchases was such as to accelerate the bull market in grain.

"The market knows that the world needs great quantities of wheat," he said. "The present market spurts are not accompanied by any considerable takings by the Department of Agriculture. They are mainly based on deterioration of the corn crop, and not on aggressive buying by the government."

Harriman told the conference that there will have to be close Government supervision in providing materials for Europe's reconstruction under the Marshall Plan "to minimize the impact upon our own economy."

"We want to interfere as little as possible with normal business transactions," he said.

Before the committee can complete its work and start construction of its report, it will have to have detailed information of what is needed in Europe, Harriman said. That is now being considered at the Paris conference.

Some items, he said, such as wheat and coal, are known to be needed, and shipments will continue. Coal exports, he said, were 4,200,000 tons in August, and allocations were made this week for 3,300,000 tons for October. "The greatest bottleneck on coal exports," he added, "is our interior transportation system."

Proposes Coal Embargo

Earlier J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, proposed a 30-day embargo on coal exports from north Atlantic ports, to relieve the freight-car shortage.

He warned that less coal will be available this winter because of the car shortage.

James Boyd, chief of the Interior Department's Bureau of Mines, said an embargo also is being discussed by presidential committees studying Europe's needs. The State Department, he said, is "wrestling with the matter."

Boyd said the proposed embargo would hit England and occupied countries "very hard" since they are on a hand-to-mouth basis and dependent on American coal.

Meantime Undersecretary of War William Draper met in New York with Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Shortly thereafter Taber boarded the Queen Mary for a European inspection trip with two committee colleagues. Before leaving, he declared that Draper, who was accompanied by a representative of the State Department, "gave me no information which made me feel it was necessary to call a special meeting of my committee."

In Georgia, Senate George said he believes President Truman will call a special session of Congress, but that he personally saw little good that could result from it. He did not believe that an emergency relief program for Europe could be pushed through before January 1.

Factor's Release Plea Is Denied By Court

fact that we recognize our first obligation to our Government."

AFL Board Reaffirms Stand on CIO Merger

Chicago, Sept. 11 (AP).—The AFL Executive Council today reaffirmed its willingnes to talk merger with the CIO, but President William Green said past peace efforts were stymied by Communist leaders in "some CIO unions."

Green did not identify the CIO unions to which he referred.

The AFL president told a news conference that the federation could not compromise on its stand for organic unity, rather than cooperation, with the CIO. (The CIO says that organic unity must be preceded by a period of cooperation between the two large labor groups.)

Green said that the Taft-Hartley Labor Act made the need for immediate merger of the two big labor organizations even more imperative. He called for an "end of the division in the ranks of labor."

2 Greeks Fined In Griswold Insult

Athens, Greece, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—A court today convicted two Athens newspapermen of printing guerilla communiques and remarks insulting to Dwight Griswold, head of the American Aid Mission. Three other leftist defendants were acquitted.

The convicted newspapermen, sentenced to 25 months in prison and fined 1,832,000 drachmas $362 at the official rate), were Michael Krykos, editor of the leftist EAM newspaper Eleftheri Ellada, and Hercules Djathas, a staff member, in hiding and tried in absentia.

Those acquitted were Dimitrios Partsalides and Constantine Gavrielidis, members of the EAM central committee, and John Kallonas, manager of the newspaper.

the way. Such aid can come in part from the Fund and Bank.

"Even those fortunate nations on whose country no bombs fell, and through which no enemy forces marched, are indissolubly bound by the ties of common interest to the battered lands of Europe and of Asia . . . we are all indeed, whether we like it or not, members of one another."

Dalton sounded his appeal as other British Foreign Office and Treasury officials declined comment on Bevin's proposal that the United States revive lend-lease as an alternative to redistribution of the $12,500,000,000 Fort Knox gold hoard.

The Foreign Office said his speech was extemporaneous and there was no advance indication he even intended to address an American Legion dinner in London last night, where the proposal was made.

"Thinking Out Loud"

Whitehall sources said it was just another case of Bevin "thinking out loud." They said Bevin was desperate in his quest for some means by which Britain can get more dollar aid and apparently was airing every idea that came into his mind.

Other government sources meanwhile disclosed that Britain still has one last line of defense against starvation—$2,400,000,000 in dollar and gold reserves.

This reserve has not yet been tapped, government sources said, but the British Financial Times speculated that it might begin to be used within the next few weeks if Dalton fails to convince U. S. Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder that the remaining 400 million dollars of the American loan should be made available. The last of the loan was frozen when Britain suspended convertibility of sterling into dollars on August 20.

Meanwhile, other British officials began to release more details of the closely guarded plans to build up export production with a tightly directed program of raw materials diversion and production schedules, coupled with a virtual peacetime labor draft.

landlubber and polliwog" undertook to plead his case before the baleful glare of bearded King Neptune. His speech was so long that politics-wise spectators began to think he was filibustering to avoid initiation.

"I cannot deny that I am a democrat, with a little 'd,'" he said. He conceded that he had no "adequate defense" against the charges but pleaded that "these poor polliwogs," his presidential aides, be treated as mercifully as possible. He said he himself had a "prerogative as Commander in Chief of the Navy, but did not intend to use it.

Mrs. Truman escaped punishment, and Margaret Truman was required only to sing "Anchors Aweigh" with a sextet of polliwog seamen.

First of the Presidential party to get the complete works was Presidential Adviser John R. Steelman.

He got a dose of bad-tasting medicine, was given mild electric shocks, was painted with heavy machine grease, tossed into a canvas pond from a teetering barber chair on platform, then ran a long gantlet of enthusiastic sailors armed with stuffed canvas shillelehs.

Sailors especially enjoyed giving the works to the top Army man aboard, Maj. Gen. Wallace Graham, the President's physician. He got more grease, more medicine, more everything than anybody else but enjoyed himself.

A former football player, he bowled over three sailors while running the gantlet.

Gets Big Laugh

Mr. Truman sat in a sort of jury box after being the first one summoned before Neptune. From that vantage point he witnessed members of his party, newspapermen and officers get initiated as "shellbacks." He laughed frequently, called Margaret's and Mrs. Truman's attention to several incidents.

The most interesting spectacle in many ways was that of Stanley Woodward getting the treatment. Woodward is a tall, slender, very dignified man who personifies what he is: Protocol officer of the State Department.

To see him running the gantlet, dripping wet, grease covered, was like seeing Calvin Coolidge in a wrestling match.

The initiation ceremonies finally had to cease when some sailors began getting rough with each other. This, complicated by slippery decks, caused several to fall or suffer cuts or bruises. A total of 16 were treated in the sick bay, of whom only three remained off duty. One lieutenant commander fractured a toe when he ran into something during the initiation.

The brew which initiates were forced to drink contained alum, mustard, quinine and lemon juice.

The ship is proceeding north at 20 knots, and is due in Norfolk a week from tomorrow. The President is getting sunburned and looking rested. The ship left Rio de Janeiro Sunday, after he spent six days there on a state visit.

'Mo' in Storm's Path

Miami, Fla., Sept. 11 (AP).—The mighty Missouri, with President Truman aboard, continued her northward course tonight toward a tropical storm which the weather bureau reported at 4 p. m. (EST) was 550 miles east of Guadaloupe in the French West Indies.

The big "Mo.", assigned to return the President to this country from the Rio de Janeiro conference, was miles away from the storm, but unless she reduces speed apparently was headed for rough, but not necessarily dangerous weather.

The weather bureau said winds near the center of the storm are now clipping across the open water at 50-60 miles per hour and gales are extending outward from the center for 80 to 100 miles. The speed of the storm on a west northwestward course was nidicated at 15 miles per hour.

"Indications are," the weather bureau said, "that this storm will increase to hurricane intensity during the night and will reach a position about 350 miles east of Antigua in the British West Indies by 10 a. m. Friday."

All vessels in the storm's path were warned by the buearеu to exercise etreme caution and all small craft in the Leeward and Virgin Islands were advised to rxemain in port until further notice.

By A Post Reporter

Aboard the USS Missouri, Sept. 11.—Charles A. Scott, 27, the merchant sailor whose illness caught the attention of the whole United States briefly yesterday and today, was sitting up in the Missouri's sick bay this afternoon.

His only worry at that point was how his mother in Egermont, Miss., would feel when she heard he was sick, and asked a reporter of The Washington Post to make clear to her that he's all right now.

He cut a finger on his left hand a week ago in the engine room of the small freighter Del Sol, out of New Orleans for Brazilian and West African ports.

When blood poisoning set in, he was put in a hospital at Belem, Brazil, but decided he wanted to sail with his ship. Then the infection got worse, a distress call was sent out yesterday and the destroyer went to the rescue.

Scott today said he felt fine, and feels sure he's all right.

Brazilian Porter Zinks Stazzen or Zaltonzall Should Be President

Post Reporter

Rio de Janeiro (by mail).—In the United States the taxi driver is the great common denomintor of public intelligence, but in Rio it is the hall porter.

The hall porter at the Hotel Gloria is Ladislaw Weinslezski, or something like that.

"What do you think of the United States?" asked a correspondent here with President Truman last week.

Stazzen Is First Choice

"I zink Harold Stazzen ought to be elected President," Ladislaw replied promptly. "Or Zaltonzall of Mazzachusetts."

"What's the mater with Truman?" asked the newspaperman, after recovering.

"Nozzing ezcept it is time for a change," rejoined Ladislaw. "But I zink it will be Truman again or one of t'ose Republicans like Dewey or Taft. They are, what you say, too conservative. No?"

Porter Is Polish Exile

It turned out that the porter, who is a fat, thick-spectacled Polish exile who has lived here 15 years, thinks General Eisenhower could beat any other candidate. But he believes Eisenhower would not run.

He thinks Gen. Omar Bradley would make a good candidate, but in principle is opposed to military men in office.

Brazilians are much interested in United States politics. They feel the future of their country is bound up in who holds office in Washington.

President Dutra said to United States newsmen at a press conference, in answer to the question, "What is the economic future of your country?" that "That depends on the U. S."

U. S. Follows Hoover on Foreign Policy, Wallace Declares in Anniversary Address

New York, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Henry Wallace, at a rally which marked the first anniversary of the speech which forced his resignation from the Cabinet, said tonight that the United States is pursuing a reactionary foreign policy guided by former President Herbert Hoover.

Wallace told a capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden that in the year since his speech assailing America's "get tough" with Russia policy, the two political parties have entered a red-baiting race which is "breeding hate and war hysteria."

The meeting was sponsored by the Progressive Citizens Committee.

He assailed "so-called liberals" who criticize him for attacking U. S. foreign policy and telling "me that I should confine my speeches to the domestic problems. . ."

"They are quite willing to attack the economic and political philosophy of Herbert Hoover as it applies to domestic issues," he said, "but they are equally willing to blind themselves to the fact that the foreign policy of the United States is based on the former President's philosophy."

He said tonight's meeting was "political," and that unless it produced action at the Democratic convention and in the election next year, it was a failure.

"There will be charges that we are out to dominate the Democratic party," he said, "but it will be more accurate to say that we are out to prevent the Democratic party from committing suicide."

Military men and investment bankers are running American foreign affars, Wallace said. Under the Republicans, Wall Street ran America, he asserted, and under the present administration "Wall Street is all set to run the world."

Wallace said that if Hoover's philosophy" continues to dominate our foreign policy" the nation will have made its war sacrifices in vain.

"In February of this year Mr. Hoover went to Germany as a special investigator for President Truman. Today his report, urging the rebuilding of German industry, is the very core of our entire program for European reconstruction. It is a program which is a direct contradiction of the Potsdam Agreement."

$1000 Bond Set For Carpenter In Larceny Case

Richard A. Cooper, 38, a carpenter, of 239 17th st. se., was placed under $1000 bond yesterday for action of the Arlington County grand jury on two counts of grand larceny involving construction contracts.

Complainant Harold W. Scott, 3201 S. 12th st., Arlington, said Cooper on May 18 contracted to build him a dormer window, did no work on it whatsoever, although $100 was advanced for the job.

Mrs. Catherine E. Jacobs, 831 N. Woodrow st., Arlington, said on May 16 Cooper contracted to build her a new porch. She said he ripped out the old porch, received $70 for building materials for the new one, but delivered neither work nor materials.

Both complainants have been repaid the full amounts due, according to Judge Hugh Reid.

Transfer of Jews Completed With Arrival of 'Ringleaders'

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 11 (U.P.). — "Operation Oasis," the forced transportation to Germany of 4311 illegal Jewish emigrants to the Holy Land, was completed today with the arrival at Poppendorf internment camp of 62 "ringleaders" of Jewish resistance to the move.

They were the men who sparked the bloody battle against truncheon-wielding British aboard the vessel Runnymede Park when it was cleared of 1485 refugees Tuesday. The 62 were tossed into prison for a 2-day cooling-off period.

British authorities had taken extra precautions to prevent any outbreak at Hamburg or Poppendorf and increased British and German guards were posted at military government headquarters and other important buildings.

(In London, Dr. Noah Barou, general secretary of the World Jewish Congress, charged that there was "danger of mass epidemics within three weeks" at the refugee camps. Barou, who witnessed the Hamburg disembarkation and toured the camps as an "official observer," said the camps were "not fit for human habitation.")

British officials were encouraged by London reports of Anglo-French proposals under which some of the Exodus 1947 refugees may be shipped to France if they so desire.

The French consulate here announced it was ready to issue collective visas to those who accept temporary French residence. It was reported that the refugees would remain in France until admission to Palestie through "channels" could be completed.

Yesterday, three United States Congressmen visited the dock prison where the 62 Jewish "troublemakers" had been held. Thinking them British, the prisoners defiantly spat in the Congressmen's faces and refused proffered cigarettes with the scornful reply: "We don't take anything from you Fascists."

"Gad Ali-Zur," described as secret leader of the Exodus refugees told American correspondents that there will be violence in the interment camps.

Bender and Sabath Urge American Stand

By The Associated Press

Representative Bender (R., Ohio) yesterday described the unloading of the Exodus 1947 Jews in Germany as "an outrage against the Jewish people which is in the worst traditions of Hitler."

In another statement, Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) asked President Truman to deny further economic aid to England until it accepts a recommendation by the United Nations Committee on Palestine for admission of at least 100,000 Jewish refugees to the Holy Land.

were doing yesterday

Hogs—Jumped to a new record price of $31 per 100 pounds, in the Kansas City market.

Butter—Went to $1.05 a pound in New York.

Beef—Sold for $35.50 per 100 pounds at the Chicago yards, a new high for this year. The previous record was $35.25, day before yesterday.

Wheat—Went up 9 cents a bushel to new highs for the season early yesterday. But when Flanders called for bigger margins wheat slid off, to close around $2.75 a bushel in both Chicago and Kansas City.

Corn and Oats

There was a day a few years ago when traders in Chicago cheered themselves hoarse over a bid of a dollar a bushel.

Other grains—Corn around $2.97, oats around $1.19 a bushel.

For the seventh day in a row, the Associated Press said its weighted wholesale price index for 35 commodities had set a new record. Yesterday, the index was 194.99—with 1926 average prices equaling 100. A year ago the AP index was 140.68, and three years ago it between 106.03 and 108.73.

People in several cities were trying out some price control methods of their own.

Housewives in Toledo, Ohio, were trying to start a buyers' strike. The Toledo CIO voted to picket local grocers and urged the CIO convention to make it a State-wide tactic. Toledo retail merchants pointed out that they couldn't do anything about prices, saying what they charged depended on what they had to pay for their goods.

Ministers at Springfield, Ohio, were reported backing a housewives' buying strike.

Both the Toledo and Springfield strikes were being pushed by telephone chains. That is, one person calls five others to ask them to join the buying strike, and also, that he telephone five persons himself.

Detroit locals of the CIO auto workers union were going in the grocery business. Local 212, which has 16,000 members, on the Briggs plan put up $10,000 to start a store in the union hall. A local of Ford workers got a $1500 stock, sold out in a few hours. Union spokesmen said their customers saved about 25 per cent. The union stores were selling at cost, with union officials acting as clerks, without pay.

Butter Exports Blamed

Our price troubles were tied up with the flow of food and goods to Europe. New York dealers blamed the high cost of butter on an export order of a million pounds—which would be two days supply for the city.

Senator George (D., Ga.) told the Associated Press in Vienna, Ga., that he was expecting President Truman to call Congress in special session to deal with aid to Europe. George thought rigid controls might be clamped on exports. A broad foreign relief program would keep prices up in this country, he added.

Butter Price Goes Up 2 Cents As Eggs and Meat Also Rise

ing shifts, such as from butter to oleo, and from high-priced meat cuts to less favored cuts, the Americans for Democratic Action in Baltimore made plans to call on housewives to stop buying butter and eggs entirely for five days as a price-holding measure. Butter there was as high as 98 cents a pound, with eggs at 73 to 83 cents.

In Springfield, Ohio, housewives began chain telephone calls for a buyers' strike, using a woman-to-woman persuasion method. Other campaigns against high food prices were being carried on in Toledo, Ohio, and at other points.

Marriage of Carol To Magda Legalized

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 11 (U.P.)—King Carol's "deathbed" marriage to red-haired Magda Lupescue, his mistress of 23 years, for whom he once renounced the Romanian throne, was legalized by the Brazilian district court today.

Carol and Magda, whom he renamed Princess Helena, were married July 3 without benefit of clergy or a civil official, when it was believed she was dying.

Riot-Wracked Punjab Now Hit by Cholera

New Delhi, India, Sept. 11 (U.P.)—Cholera, the dread Asiatic scourge which makes its home in India and spreads to other countries, has broken out in the riot-wracked Punjab, a military spokesman said today.

Four hundred cases have been reported at the refugee camp at Kasur alone, in the Pakistan area of the Punjab, and large numbers of cases have been reported at other centers, the spokesman said.

The riot situation here continued to improve today, but there was still disorder.

The government information service issued—and then for some reason withdrew—a statement describing the capital as generally quiet, but saying that looters had killed some persons during the last 24 hours and that troops had dispersed some crowds.

The statement said rifles, automatic weapons and hand grenades were used against troops who broke up a demonstration at the Sarder Bazaar, a big Moslem business section.

Iran Assured U. S. Support

in the local press alleging that the United States may agree with Russia on the exploitation of Iran's oil resources.

An indication of the sentiment in the Iranian Parliament was given when it voted 78 to 38 to return Ghavam as premier last month. Voting against Ghavam were deputies from Azerbaijan, who reported in favor of granting the oil concession to Russia.

Recent press reports have alleged that Russia is concentrating large troop forces on the country's northern border in an attempt to intimidate the Iranian government into granting the oil concession.

One of these reports, carried in a newspaper which is close to military circles, added that Soviet Ambassador Ivan Sadchikov was bringing heavy pressure on the government to approve the concession.

Iranian general staff officers said Iranian troops had been sent north to the border to be ready "for any emergency" but the situation was normal.

A Dog Reunited Them . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TOGETHER AGAIN—A poem brought Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Lyons of Sacramento, Calif., together. A war separated them. And Judy, 12-year-old Pomeranian dog, reunited them. Lyons, a former field artillery sergeant, was reported dead by the War Department in May, 1943, but he had been captured by the Japanese after a troopship torpedoing. Mrs. Lyons remarried and early this year was divorced. Lyons returned to America in February, 1946, and failed to find her at their old address. Then on Wednesday he espied Judy trotting down the sidewalk in Sacramento and the pet led him back to his wife

Va. Press Association Hits Fairfax for Advertising Ban

The Virginia Press Association has reopened the issue of a free press in Fairfax County by sharply rebuking the county board of supervisors for withdrawing county advertising from an opposition newspaper.

In a statement released yesterday, the association asked the county board to rescind its action of August 6, which cut off advertising from the Providence Journal because its editors, Richard M. Smith, "has been criticizing the board of supervisors, and has been very unfair in his criticism."

A resolution adopted September 6 by the associations' executive committee referred to the action as "undemocratic, as contravening the spirit of the constitutional provision for a free press and as against the interest of the people of Fairfax County."

"Such action by public officials," the resolution said, "constitutes a direct threat at freedom of the press and threatens it with political reprisals if it dares to criticize official actions."

The board contended that Smith, whose paper carries no editorials, colored his news stores with editorial comment. They explained they were under no legal compunction to place advertising in the Journal and had no contract with Smith.

Anti-British Rioters Stone U. S. Consulate at Port Said

Cairo, Egypt, Sept. 11 (AP).—The American Consulate was stoned, the statue of Ferdinand de Lesseps, Suez Canal builder, pulled down, and an attempt made to burn the British Consulate today at Port Said by crowds of angry Egyptians protesting failure of the U. N. Security Council to oust British troops from the Nile Valley.

Other crowds in Alexandria threw rocks at police and were routed by gunfire over their heads. Cairo itself was quiet, but police maintained heavy patrols tonight.

Doors and shutters of the American Consulate were closed and no harm was done by the barrage of stones and bottles at Port Said, where rocks also were thrown at the Queen Victoria memorial fountain at the British school, and at the Britannia Club.

Mob Shouts For Russia

Crowds of youths shouted "Down with the Security Council," "Down with Britain," "Down with imperialist France," "Long live Egypt and the Sudan," and "Long live Russia, Poland and Syria" as they marched at Port Said and Alexandria.

The crowd at Port Said, in the Canal Zone, first tried to attack the British Consulate, then tried to march on the British camp on Kitchener st., but was turned back in each instance by 400 Egyptian police. The marchers then stormed into De Lesseps st., where they destroyed the statue of the French engineer.

Police, Marchers Clash

Police clashed with 4000 marchers at Alexandria, where workers of a textile fctory went on strike as a protest, and dispersed them with gunfire over heads of the crowd. A number of police and demonstrators were taken to hospitals.

The executive council of the Moslem Brotherhood, which led similar demonstrations several days ago, prepared to meet to consider the failure of the Security Council to act on Egypt's complaint. Sheik Hassan el Bana, brotherhood leader, said "We want the government to lead the revolution."

The government should sever all relations with Britain and expel the British Ambassador, he declared.

and all American units in Rome will be withdrawn within 30 days after R-Day.

6. Troop shipment schedules will be worked out so that the last American troops will be on their way home, or redeployed, by December 14.

Thus will come to an end, but for the scattered troops remaining, the American military occupation which started when the Allies invaded Italy September 3, 1943.

General Lee said at a "farewell" press conference that under terms of an order issued by the Secretary of War June 10 he would leave the theater and turn over his command to Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Jaynes, deputy commander and chief of staff.

[According to a correspondent of The New York Herald Tribune, General Lee plans a career as a religious worker after his retirement. General Lee, an Episcopalian, said he had offered his services to "the presiding bishop of my church, Bishop Sherrill of New York." He added that he did not know what sort of assignment he might be given.]

Lee plans to visit Washington briefly and then go to San Francisco to await retirement under his request to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower of last February.

Lee, 59, has served in the Army 42 years.

He declined comment on the current visit of Lieut. Gen. Wyche, inspector general of the Army, but said Wyche planned to leave for Washington by the end of this week to report to the War Department on his findings.

Indicating that he would make a statement of his own after his return home Lee said:

"It is not my intention to let slanders against my staff and my Army family here go unanswered."

Habeas Corpus Action To Free McAffee Lost

A habeas corpus action to secure freedom for William McAffee, convicted in 1939 for the 1937 murder of Mrs. Henrietta B. Anderson, yesterday was rejected by Associate Justice Alexandria Holtzoff in District Court.

In rejecting the move, Holtzoff held that the question of admissibility of McAffee's confession had been disposed of by the trial court. McAffee, a janitor, had confessed to slaying Mrs. Anderson with a furnace shaker.

City Planners Told U. S. Aid Is Basic Need

Continuation of Federal aid is "a basic necessity" in the solution of urban traffic problems, Paul G. Hoffman, said yesterday at the opening of a two-day United States Chamber of Commerce conference on urban problems.

Hoffman, president of The Studebaker Corp. and chairman of the board, Automotive Safety Foundation, South Bend, Ind., said:

"The Federal Aid cooperative plan has done much to remove highway development from the realm of the pork barrel and the gravy train, and has enabled highway agencies to operate more completely in the public interest.

U. S. Aid Held Essential

"The trend today is for the States and the Federal Government to recognize an obligation in the cities' traffic dilemma and to cooperate in helping to solve it," Hoffman told the conference, which generally viewed improvement of traffic problems as the key to solution of many urban problems.

"Continuation of Federal aid has become a basic necessity to the expanding economy of the United States," he declared.

The physical structure of cities is now being tested "by heavier stresses than at any time in their history," Earl O. Shreve, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told the approximately 500 business leaders at the luncheon, at which Hoffman also spoke.

"These stresses arise from the mechanical forces which have given us the motor vehicle and mass transit," Shreve said.

Asserting that the two principal problems confronting cities were traffic congestion and rebuilding of blighted areas, Shreve said it is "unrealistic to plan for future development without careful study of how this development is going to be financed."

Although acknowledging attention must be given to the amount of Federal assistance that can be obtained for city improvements, he urged that greater stress be put on city-state cooperation.

"The whole problem of city planning is interwoven with the highway transportation problem," Charles B. Bennett, planning director of the Los Angeles City Planning Commission, said.

City Losses to Merchants

"If city people cannot move about expeditiously and with safety to structure of living begins to sag," Bennett said. "Blight sets in in certain areas and before long the central business district becomes completely surrounded by neighborhoods of low economic status."

Grant Mickle of Washington, Automotive Safety Foundation traffic engineer, asserted that "congestion imposes heavy losses on the merchant in particular, not only by restricting his volume of business but also through increased cost of delivery of goods because of traffic delays."

Coordinated traffic signals, one-way streets, rerouting of traffic were among the devices he urged to improve the situation.

Among other speakers at the day-long sessions were Commissioner Thomas H. MacDonald of the Public Roads Administration; Earl O. mills of St. Louis, president, American Institute of Planners; George C. Smith, president, St. Louis, Mo., Chamber of Commerce, Newton C. Farr, president, Urban Land Institute, Chicago, and H. S. Fairbank, deputy commissioner, Public Roads Administration.

Sessions will continue today in the Chamber of Commerce Bldg., 1615 H st. nw. Jay D. Runkle, chairman of the board, National Retail Drygoods Association, will speak on "The Downtown Merchant Looks to the Future," at the 12:30 p. m. luncheon in the Hotel Statler.

2 Md. Officers Face Hearings

Frederick, Md., Sept. 11.—Hearings on dereliction of duty charges against Police Chief Frederick M. Straley and Lieut. Reno Six will be resumed here on September 19, it was announced today by the City Police Commission.

The hearings, held in July behind closed doors, were recessed during August while William M. Storm, commission chairman, was out of the city. Charges against the two officers were preferred by Sergt. Daniel Swomley, and a number of witnesses already have appeared before the five-man police commission.

Storm accused his superiors of dereliction of duty after he was transferred from a day-time cruiser job to a night foot beat, but failed to state the specific basis for his charges pending completion of the hearing. The commission has not revealed details of the testimony it has heard.

The present Filipino participation in domestic trade of the Philippines is estimated between 25 and 30 per cent. In 1918, it was only 10 per cent.

Judge Raedy's Case Closed As She Forfeits Collateral

feiture saying, "This is not an offense which the defendant may elect to forfeit, and I will myself say that the time for trial having arrived and collateral having been posted, and the defendant not appearing, I do declare the forfeiture in the amount of the bond."

The judge then ruled against ordering an attachment requiring the appearance of Judge Raedy. He said he took this position because the prosecutor, Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King, had failed to ask for an attachment.

"It is my impression," Judge Clagett said, "that a judge of this court ought not to act as prosecutor and judge, whatever personal opinion I may have in the situation."

King said that he was not going to ask for an attachment for these reasons:

1. That there was property damage only.

2. That the amount of the bond forfeited was high.

3. That this followed the practice in previous property damage cases.

The prosecutor and judge reached this result after the judge read in open court the text of an order adopted by all the Muncipal Court judges on August 15. The order set down procedure for handling collateral in traffic cases.

History of Case

Charges of hit and run were filed against Judge Raedy following a collision in which her automobile was involved at 1st and K sts. nw., on the night of August 19.

Judge Raedy has steadfastly denied driving her car that evening, saying that she had loaned it to a friend, Edward Emerson, a New York newspaperman. Police never have been able to locate him.

Said Judge Was Driving

Police, however, secured witnesses, one of whom said 'Judge Raedy was driving the car at the time of the accident and another who said the judge was in the car when it was parked in the rear of her home that night.

Damages to the parked car which was struck were slight. In asking Judge Clagett to set collateral, Attorney Charles E. Ford said that estimates for repairing the struck car ranged from $9 to $27.50.

Courtroom Jammed

The courtroom was jammed to capacity. A whole section of the room was set aside for attorneys who expected to witness a great legal battle. Proceedings began with a motion by Defense Attorney Ford asking Judge Clagett to set the amount of bond or collateral.

It was then discovered that no bond had ever been set in the case and that Judge Raedy was released on the hit and run charge on the guarantee of Ford that she would appear at the time of trial.

The judge granted the motion and court was recessed to permit Ford to post the $200, which was the minimum collateral on a hit and run charge, in the finance clerk's office. Then the forfeiture question came up.

Judge Clagett declared a forfeiture in the amount of the collateral, but added that, "if the defendant should appear or anything else should happen, I, of course, would be willing to consider a remission of the collateral."

The motion asking for collateral to be set and the subsequent forfeiture of the collateral came as a complete surprise to King who had more than a dozen witnesses ready to testify.

Confusion over the bond originated at the first arraignment of Judge Raedy before Judge Nadine Gallagher. Although Judge Raedy was not present, the clerk of the court made a notation of personal bond on the information papers.

At a subsequent hearing two days later, Judge Gallagher asked King and Ford what arrangements had been made for posting collateral, and Ford said he would vouch personally for Judge Raedy's appearance at the trial.

Burglars' Loot Totals $1790

Pants burglars who left their victim 50 cents and safe robbers who didn't even leave the safe, got $1790 loot in Washington early yesterday.

The pants pilferers took $776 in cash and a check from a second floor bedroom of the David A. Freid residence, 1929 Lamont st. nw. and left him 50 cents in change. They took $4 from a purse owned by his sister-in-law, Miss Bella Goldstein, but overlooked Mrs. Freid's $1000 diamond wristwatch and her pocketbook—which was hidden.

A 22-by-16-inch safe containing $800 in cash and $210 in travelers checks was rolled out of the Capitol Hill cafe, 101 B st. se., the proprietor George Scarlis reported to police.

Police also were seeking a fake photographic ring which has been leaving its victims little more than negative results.

One man, described as having sandy hair, rimless glasses and a "sincere and convincing manner" appeared at the George W. Lipscomb home, 317 Bryant st. ne., and acquired a 50-cent deposit on photos to be taken later.

A few days later, a woman appeared, took two pictures and collected $1.45. Several days after that, a second man appeared with proofs and said the photos would be ready at a studio in 1200 block of H st. ne.

A stationery store near the address given reported it has had "many" calls, but knows nothing of the studio, police said.

Capt. A. P. Storre of Oswego, N. Y., is the Coral Sea's prospective skipper.

The Midway and the Franklin D. Roosevelt, completed too late for action in World War II, are now the Navy's first line carriers. Each has some 125 planes assigned to her air group. The Coral Sea, built at the Newport News plant, was christened on April 2, 1946.

The girl first came to Washington in 1942 and worked for more than a year at the War Department, it was learned. She left in 1943 for her home in Altoona, Pa., because of ill health, but returned here in May, 1946, to work for the Marine Corps, police said.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Margaret Rafferty of Altoona was to have visited Rita here Wednesday, but had to postpone the trip, they said. A sister, Mrs. James Barr of Altoona said she would take Rita's body for burial.

Police witnesses were Pvt. George Burkley of the Missing Persons Bureau, who said he merely identified police records for the jurors, and Precinct Detective Sergt. John C. Daniels of No. 10 Police Precinct.

Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Conliff, who is presenting the case to the grand jury, said additional witnesses have been summoned to appear this afternoon and others on Monday afternoon.

Also pending, is District Corporation Counsel action on the request of Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett that it study a report of the department's own investigation of the Clegg case to determine whether police trial board action should be taken.

Veterans Warned of a Business Slump's Effect on Their Employment

Should a business slump develop, veterans would be "greatly affected."

The warning was voiced yesterday by O. D. Hollenbeck, consultant to the chief of the Veterans Employment Service, at the fourth session of an educational institute on "employment security" at American University.

So many veterans are "low on seniority lists" and "less experienced" than many in the labor market that a "recession of any consequence" would hit hard at them, Hollenbeck said.

Hollenbeck pointed out that although veterans' employment is now at "an all time high," the job "is not finished by any means." Thousands are still in school, he said; others have yet to be discharged from hospitals and other thousands "want to make changes in their present jobs."

Louis Sherman, general counsel for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL), defined three means of achieving administrative improvements to assure greater employment security. He listed legislation, Government reorganization and personnel "interest."

Dr. Emerson Schmidt, director of the economic research department, Chamber of Commerce, contended that the Government has a "responsibility to provide a stable currency and a contra-cyclical fiscal policy." He urged that public works be postponed for "possible depression periods."

Jennings Randolph, assistant to the president of Capital Air Lines, revealed that air transportation companies expect to carry some 17 million passengers this year with fewer employes than were required to carry 12 million last year.

Express Bus Runs to Md. Line Proposed

Plans for express bus service from points on the District line to downtown Washington for a 20-cent fare weer announced yesterday by Capital Transit Co.

At the same time, officials of both the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency hailed CTC's application for experimental express lines to Prince Georges County, Md., as "a step in the right direction."

Forest E. Flanagan, chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, declined to comment until the commission can act on the transit company's request.

PUC to Rule Soon

He predicted PUC will issue a ruling "within a week" on CTC's plan to operate two experimental extra-fare express lines from Riverdale to 9th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

CAC Vice President E. C. Giddings said last night the Maryland Public Service Commission had already approved the proposal.

If the company "breaks even" on the experimental runs, Giddings said, similar express service will probably be put into effect from Bethesda, Chevy Chase and Silver Spring, Md.

Deputy Traffic Director Wallace L. Braun said he doubted if the fast moving express buses would increase downtown traffic congestion.

"On the other hand," he pointed out, "if people who now drive to work from the suburbs are encouraged t ouse bus service, there will be fewer vehicles on downtown streets."

Braun said he thought the plan might also "alleviate the downtown parking situation somewhat."

'Hopeful Sign'

It's a hopeful sign we are going in the right direction," declared C. T. McGavin, economic analyst for the Highway Department and author of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency's recent parking study.

"Mr. Howat (P. Y. K. Howat, MVPA chairman) has favored the express bus idea for a long time," he pointed out. "We believe it's a good, sound principle. We want to see the transit company improve its service. And we hope to see 'intelligent' coordination of transit services with vehicular transportation."

Although PUC officials declined to discuss the matter, Chief PUC Engineer F. A. Sager pointed out that the proposed experimental lines are "quite similar" to PUC-approved express business now operating from Bethesda and Rockville, Md., to downtown Washington.

Capital Transit officials said they would not seek approval of the arrangement by the Interstate Commerce Commission. "It's a new operation—but not new routes," he explained. "We'll be operating over regular routes."

Orphan Gets Nursing Care Needed to Live

A 15-year-old ward of D. C.'s Board of Public Welfare, hospitalized at Gallinger Hospital with a broken neck and complementary paralysis, today for the first time will get the constant nursing care he needs to live.

Disclosure of his case by hospital and charity officials dramatically pointed up Washington's urgent need for additional nurses at Gallinger and other hospitals here.

The orphan was brought to Gallinger August 28 from Baltimore's City Hospital where he had been since last May. His broken neck was the result of a dive into shallow water of Middle River, near Essex, Md., where he had been living with his fourth set of foster parents.

Requires Nurse Care

His condition requires that feeding and exercise be done by nurses, because of paralysis from the neck down. A hospital official yesterday described his condition as serious and added "the boy needs more nursing care than we are in a position to authorize."

Only two nurses are on duty in his ward. They have been doing what they can for the boy—some of it on their own time. His body is covered with bed sores caused by his own inability to move and lack of nursing-care exercise.

The Board of Public Welfare, the hospital official said, has no budgetary provisions for special nurses. Neither does Gallinger Hospital.

Last night, it was learned, the St. Vincent De Paul Society had made arrangements to provide the special nurse today which may tip the balance of life in the boy's favor.

Mrs. Z. V. Warner of 2016 G st. nw., who teaches crippled Catholic children at the hospital their catechism every Sunday, said she had recruited four students at George Washington University as blood donors for the paralyzed youngster.

Mrs. Warner, a part time worker for the Legion of Mary of Holy Comforter Church, called his case to the attention of the Rev. Joseph A. Eckert, head of the Legion.

Father Eckert visited him, then contacted his welfare board social worker, who informed him a petition had gone to the board for a special outlay of funds.

A spokesman for the welfare board said the "case is under discussion," but refused further comment.

His condition has been "staying about the same," a physician said. The nursing care he will get starting today may one day return him to his high school classes.

Kirchner Choice Draws Fire

Appointment of J. Fred Kirchner, state labor inspector in Alexandria, as director of Virginia's apprenticeship training program, yesterday drew fire from three members of the State Apprenticeship Council who charged they had not approved the appointment.

One of the three, L. Gordon Shesin, an industry representative to the council, disclosed that his abrupt resignation from the council Wednesday was in protest of the appointment. Kirchner was named to the post by Labor Commissioner John Hopkins Hall, an ex-officio member of the council the same day Shesin resigned.

Shesin said he did not wish to enter ny controversy in the matter, but added, "In my opinion Mr. Kirchner is not qualified for the job and I do not believe his employment as director is in accordance with the wishes of the council as a whole."

The appointment also was criticized by G. Guy Via of Newport News and Robert J. Maybin, Roanoke, both of whom also are industry representatives to the council.

The apprenticeship unit is composed of three industry representatives and three labor representatives, plus Commissioner Hall and Dr. B. H. Van Oot, State director of vocational education. Hall and Van Oot are ex-officio members.

Via, who said he had neither "approved nor recommended Kirchner," declared he was amazed when the appointment was made. He said it had been the practice since the council was formed in 1938 for such appointments to be discussed by the council for the purpose of making recommendations to the commissioner.

Maybin said he had included Kirchner's name on a list of "9 or 10" applicants whom he believed to be qualified for the appointment by reason of experience and education, but thought personal interviews would be conducted before any appointments would be made.

Two of the labor members of the council, J. Fred Cherry of Norfolk, and O. E. Barnes of Alexandria, said yesterday they had approved Hall's choice of Kirchner, S. R. Wheeler of Roanoke, the third labor representative, was in New Orleans and could not be contacted.

Commissioner Hall, in defending the appointment, said it was an "administrative" matter in which he was not legally bound to follow the council's advice.

Kirchner came into public attention in January, 1946, after a fracas at a meeting of the Alexandria Central Labor Union (AFL) which resulted in conviction of two labor leaders on assault charges.

James D. Hardman, then president of the union, and J. C. Turner, acting secretary, were fined $400 apiece for assaulting Kischner, who suffered a broken nose and bruises in the altercation. The staff penalties assessed against the two brought about a bitter controversy which on one occasion reached the floor of Congress when Representative Howard W. Smith of Alexandria and Representative Charles Savage (D., Wash.) engaged in a heated verbal exchange.

Hardman, who resigned as president of the Alexandria union last May, when he was transferred by the Bureau of Aeronautics to New York, is currently under investigation by Civil Service Commission for alleged Hatch Act violation. He was accused of electioneering in Alexandria in 1944, 1945 and 1946.

West Virginia U. Seeks House for Prolific Father

Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP). West Virginia University was handed its severest housing headache today when Alfred Howard, 38-year-old Navy veteran, rolled into town and started looking for a place for himself, his wife and his seven children.

Howard, who says he will enroll for vocational agriculture, announced he wants a six-room house and a few acres of ground where he can "raise a garden and a pig or two."

Five of the children, ranging in age from five t o17, remain at the family home in Keyser, W. Va., until the parents find a house.

12 Traffic Deaths August Area Toll

Fatalities Reach Total of 100 In Eight Months, 19 Above 1946

Traffic caused the death of 12 persons in Greater Washington last month.

This brought to an even 100 the number of traffic fatalities in the area for the first eight months of this year, 19 more than during the same period last year.

Statistics compiled by The Washington Post from police records of the District, Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., and Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., show the facts.

They don't show who, or how, or why.

Victims in District

Four of August's traffic dead succumbed after District accidents. They included:

A 62-year-old barber shop owner, struck down by a hit-run car as he ran for his bus at Alabama and Boulevard aves. se.; a middle-aged painting contractor, crowded to a house wall and crushed by an errant laundry truck; a 26-year-old truck driver, thrown under his overturning vehicle at 4th and I sts. ne., and a 36-year-old pedestrian whose sole apparent injury when hit by an automobile at Maine ave. and 1 st. sw., was a broken leg.

Greater Washington traffic injured 473 persons in August, or 75 more than the number patched up after traffic accidents in August, 1946. The totals include only those requiring treatment, not the drivers and passengers who escaped injury.

Unrecorded Injuries

Again the statistical tables fail. They do not show the number blinded, or maimed, or cut, or bruised. They don't reveal the number of heads and noses that were bashed against windshields or the total of drivers whose chests bore the imprint of their steering wheels.

They do show that 334 of the injured in August traffic accidents were hurt in District mishaps; that 410 injured were hurt in District traffic accidents in July, and that the figure for August, 1946, was 327. They show that the District's traffic injured in August alone exceeded Montgomery County's total of 304 persons injured during the first eight months of 1947.

Prince Georges County registered seven traffic fatalities last month, or more than half of the area's traffic death toll. It was midsummer. Vacation traffic was heavy, and the open spaces of the county's main arteries to the north and west looked inviting to motorists slowed down by Washington or Baltimore traffic.

One Arlington Death

Arlington County, Va., almost got through August without a traffic death. But on August 30, a speeding automobile left Columbia pike near the Fairfax County boundary line, hit a telephone pole and a tree and was ditched. A 38-year-old man was thrown out and killed.

Eight other persons escaped death in traffic mishaps in Arlington in August, but not doctor's care, bringing to 55 the total number of persons hurt in traffic within the county since the first of the year.

Alexandria, Va., passed through another month without a traffic fatality. Police there haven't had to call in the coroner for a traffic cause since February 11. Two persons were killed then when a car struck a bridge abutment on Shirley Memorial Highway, just within the county boundary.

20 Hurt in Alexandria

Alexandria did have 20 persons hurt in varying degrees in August highway accidents. The total comes to less than one person hurt in each three of the city's 65 recorded traffic accidents during the month.

Fairfax County, Va., had no traffic fatalities during August and thereby kept its highway death toll to four for the first eight months of this year. By September 1 or last year, 19 dead were recorded in the county.

It doesn't take a mathematician to see that this year's record of Fairfax County as against its high fatality rate in the first eight months of last year was needed to level off the latest comparison totals for Greater Washington.

Ruling Held Boon to D. C. Play Spaces

Recreation Board officials said yesterday the District Corporation Counsel has provided an antidote for one of their major headaches—how to obtain land for recreational purposes.

Harry S. Wender, board chairman, announced that Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West had informed the board Tuesday that property owners are not liable for injuries which occur while their land is being used by the recreation board.

"This will remove a major objection advanced by property owners who would otherwise let the board use their land in the city's recreational program," Wender predicted.

West's opinion also removes legal objections to leaving playgrounds open without supervision, Wender added.

This might make it possible to open for public use playgrounds heretofore closed on Sundays and holidays, he said. Many Washingtonians have complained because some recreational facilities are available only on weeq days, he recalled.

"This doesn't necessarily mean we'll change our policy about Sunday closing," Wender declared, "but we're free to do so now if we choose to."

The legal opinion also rules that members of the recreation board are not liable for injuries which occur on such property, unless the injury is due directly to negligence on the part of recreation employes.

Wender hailed the opinion as "a satisfactory answer to a problem which has confronted the board since its inception."

"We now have a clear conception of the legal liability of the District government and, particularly, of citizens whose property is used in our program," he added.

Attendant Gives $50 Forfeit for Running Into Car

Harold B. Adams, 36, an attendant, of 224 Bryant st. ne., elected to forfeit $50 yesterday rather than face trial here on a charge of pulling away from the curb in such a manner as to interfere with passing traffic.

Warren C. Tomlin, 30, 3205 Buena Vista ave. se., said that on September 5, in front of 233 17th st. se., an automobile brushed his car, causing between $10 and $25 property damage. By the license plates, the car was traced to its owner, James Mahorney, 3727 Adams st. ne.

Mahorney visited the offices of the Accident Investigation Unit and said Adams was the driver of the automobile at the time of the accident. Adams admitted this to police, who placed charges. Previously the AIU had referred to the case as possible hit-and-run.

British Tanks Quell Strike of Reich Workers

Berlin, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—British tanks and troops were called out today to squell a general strike of 60,000 German workers in Kiel, in the British occupation zone 50 miles north of Hamburg, and enforce a British order to dismantle the Holmag Diesel Machinery plant for reparations.

The strike was called by local German union officials after the Holmag plant management had rejected a British ultimatum to cease operations.

British troops took over the plant last night and evicted some 1800 workers, who protested only passively.

The general strike, staged between 10 a. m. and noon, was orderly and without violence. It was the first resistance of its kind in the western zones by Germans attempting to halt dismantling procedures under which the Allies are killing off German war industry and providing themselves with reparations.

Negro Pupils Handicapped In D. C., Howard Journal Says

Efforts of the District to provide equal educational opportunity for Negroes and white children were declared "ineffective" and "costly" in an article published yesterday in the Journal of Negro Education.

The journal, a publication of Howard University, listed these factors as limiting the ducational opportunity of Negro children:

1. The superintendent of schools and administrative members of his staff who have authority over both Negro and white schools are white.

2. Schools for Negroes are overcrowded, while some white schools have unused pupil space.

3. Part-time classes last year occurred eight times more frequently in Negro schools than white schools.

4. Negroes inherit old school buildings and have fewer and smaller playgrounds and fewer gymnasia than white students.

5. Teaching loads in Negro schools are heavier than standard while in white schools they are lighter than standard.

6. During the fiscal year ending June 30 school operating funds were spent at the rate of $126.52 for each Negro student and $160.21 for each white pupil.

The study which was prepared by Miss Mary A. Morton, formerly an associate professor of psychology at Howard University, pointed to the construction of Negro schools in areas in which there are white schools not fully occupied as contributing to the costliness of a dual system.

The fact that Negroes have no part in administrative jobs covering both white and Negro schools "has serious implications for the equitable racial apportionment of educational opportunities," the study said.

Miss Morton pointed out that 3258 Negro pupils attended school part-time last year as compared with 413 white grade school pupils. Junior high buildings used by Negroes serviced 2243 more pupils than they were designed to accommodate while there were 1851 unused pupil spaces in white junior high schools.

Since 1926, the report said, ten buildings have been transferred from white to Negro use. Two buildings formerly used by Negroes are now occupied by white students. One athletic field now serves the three Negro high schools.

The report showed that the pupil load of Negro teachers for all levels ranges from four to six pupils above the standard set by the Board of Education while in white schools at all levels the pupil load is from one to three students less than standard.

There is only one vocational counselor for every 690 Negro pupils as compared with one for every 390 white students, the report said.

It also was pointed out in the report that while sight-conservation classes are limited to the elementary school level in Negro schools, the program has been in effect in white junior high as well as in white elementary schools since 1936.

10 Slayers Among 35 Freed From Md. Prisons by Governor

Ten convicted slayers were among the 35 inmates of state penal institutions granted paroles or commutations of sentences yesterday by Gov. William P. Lane of Maryland.

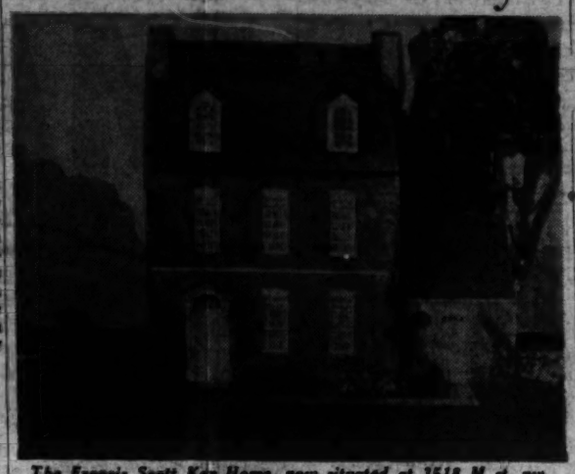
There were 29 paroles and six commutations granted by the Governor whose action was taken on the advice of Director of Parole and Probation F. Murray Benson.

One of those to win a commutation of a life sentence was Frederick Brown, a Dorchester County farmer who in 1938 was convicted of chocking to death his 17-year-old bride and throwing her weighted body into the Nanticoke River.

Another commutation was for Raymond F. Miller, who was only 19 when he was arrested for armed robbery in Baltimore in 1937 and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary. Miller is under sentence in Portsmouth, Va., and he will be returned there to serve the sentence.

A parole was granted William Owens, 68-year-old farmer in Anne Arundel County, who last February was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction for assault with intent to kill. Owens wounded a county policeman with a shotgun when a force of police entered his farm to seek a man who reportedly had been shot by the farmer.

Ruling on Historic Key House Is Due at Conference Today



The Francis Scott Key Home, now situated at 3518 M st. nw., would look like if plans of the Columbia Historical Society are adopted

Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst wil meet with contractors this morning at 10 a. m. to decide if the old Francis Scott Key house is to be dismantled in small sections for reconstruction and restoration at a new site later.

The house, remodeled many times since the composer occupied it, now stands in the way of construction of the new K st. elevated highway in Georgetown and must be dismantled.

Since it takes more time and work to dismantle a house with an eye to removing parts of it intact, the request that the Key house be taken down with special care must be discussed with the contratcors, Whitehurst said.

The parts of the original house, such as the stone foundations, about 10,000 bricks and part of the interior trim will be stored until reconstruction can be started, H. Paul Caemmerer, president of the Columbia Historical Society and secretary of the Fine Arts Commission, said yesterday.

Reconstruction cannot begin unless the House completes action on a bill authorizing $65,000 for restoration of the Key house when Congress reconvenes, he said. The Senate approved the bill last July.

The District Commissioners have already agreed to use a Federally-owned site, fronting on M st. and the Key Bridge approach, about 100 yards down the river from the present site as the new location, he said.

Chest Merger Seen Efficient

Reorganization of the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies to combine the trustees of both groups into one board of supervisors is "bound to bring economy of operation and increased efficiency," Edward J. Keys, director of the Community Chest Federation, said yesterday.

The proposed merger, he told a luncheon meeting of the Junior Board of Commerce, will give the public equal representation with member agencies in determining chest and council policies. The plan calls for a board of 212, half representing the public and half member agencies.

Keys urged support of the chest campaign for $3,900,000 opening November 12.

"A withholding of contributions by the public because of past mistakes will only hurt those who benefit from the chest," he said.

"No one is more aware than the trustees of the chest and council that mistakes have been made."

Mayor of Jena Flees Red-Controlled Zone

Berlin, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The duty officer at Jena police headquarters confirmed reports tonight that Heinrich Mertens, gray-haired mayor of Jena, had fled the Soviet zone, the second high German official to run out on the Russians in a week.

Dr. Rudolf Paul, minister president of Thuringia, led the way last week. His whereabouts still are unknown.

Labor Party Runs True to Form in Liverpool Vote

Liverpool, England, Sept. 11 (AP).—A Labor Party candidate was elected to Parliament from the Edgehill division of Liverpool today, maintaining the party's unique record of losing no parliamentary seats in 28 consecutive by-elections since it took over the government in July, 1945.

Labor Candidate A. J. Irvine, 38-year-old lawyer and former president of Oxford University's famous Union, polled 10,827 votes in the polyglot district to 8874 for J. R. Bevins, Conservative Party nominee.

Today's elections, caused by the death of Dr. R. Clitherow, a Laborite, in June, was looked upon as a test of the sentiment of British voters during the current economic crisis.

Army's Exotic Rolling Stock In Demand

An Arlington-Alexandria auto agency with imagination—and a good dash of audacity—is supplementing its 1947 line of cars and trucks with some of Uncle Sam's more exotic rolling stock.

Army surplus "half-tracks," amphibious ducks, an armored car, a pair of "sterilization trucks," and a bridge-building unit stand row-on-row on lots owned by the Central Motor Co. at 3200 Lee hwy. in Arlington, and 1201 Oronoco st. in Alexandria.

"What's more," says General Manager Hanson Bucker, "we're selling 'em, too."

Half-Tracks Selling

Today, you can walk in and buy an amphibious "duck," ready to roll (or float) for about $900, he says. They cost the Government approximately $8000. Or one of two-dozen half-tracks for $800.

Or a sterilization unit, once used to steam-clean clothing of refugees in war-torn Europe, for $3000, minus the tractor-truck to pull it.

Buckner says his firm picked up the war babies in surplus sales all over the country, had trouble with the armored car passing through Indiana, which specifically forbids them on its highways.

Who buys them? The 60-mile-per-hour half-tracks, with their endless rear-wheel treads and standard front wheels, make excellent work trucks over tough terrain. They've been bought by contractors, loggers for swamp work, and in strip mines. Buyers even mount dump bodies or cranes on them.

Many of the huge, amphibious "ducks" have been exported to South America, Buckner says, for use as barges to get supplies to remote plantations. Or they're used as bus-ferries or for logging.

Several have been sold to oystermen on the Eastern Shore. They take the ducks out to the beds, tong or dredge for the bivalves, and then drive the booty to market. "Pretty neat," Buckner believes.

Taylor en Route From Vatican

Rome, Italy, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's personal envoy to the Vatican, left by plane today for Berlin after a brief visit here during which he had four conferences with Pope Pius XII.

Taylor also will stop at Paris and London en route to New York.

The extreme Rightist newspaper L'Ora d'Italia said today that the Pontiff told Taylor American aid to Europe was "extremely urgent and indispensable."

Police Told to Give Children Fullest Measure of Protection

With reopening of the schools, District police were ordered to "insure the fullest measure of protection to school children" by Inspector Walter H. Thomas yesterday.

Pointing out that the safeguarding of schoolchildren is "one of the most important duties of the department," the assistant superintendent instructed precinct commanders to make a personal survey of the school locations in their neighborhoods. Up-to-date lists of the schools and nearby intersections requiring traffic control are to be maintained by commanding officers.

Policemen are to be assigned to intersections "as far as possible" and one private with special qualifications will supervise schoolby patrols. These patrol coordinators are urged to attend meetings of the patrols to confer on their traffic problems.

Clark Making List of Red Organizations

By Fred Mullen
United Press Staff Writer

Attorney General Tom C. Clark will complete within a few days an initial master list of Communist organizations for use in ferreting out disloyal Government employes, it was revealed last night.

Clark also is perfecting novel plans for determining whether certain organizations about which he is doubtful, are or are not Communist-dominated.

He proposes to call officials of such outfits before a hearing board for questioning, and what they have to say—plus information obtained from the Federal Bureau of Investigation—will determine for or against the organizations.

Clark personally is going over the mass of data turned up by the FBI, and making the final determination as to which organizations are Communist fronts.

List To Be Published

Those working on the master list and assisting Clark would not say how many organizations will be proscribed at the outset, or how many will be put down for questioning. The list will be made public.

Clark has been under pressure from Federal workers and newspapers to reveal the organizations considered subversive.

The list will serve not only in President Truman's program to rid the Government of subversives. It also will be used by the National Labor Relations Board under the Taft-Hartley law requirement that union leaders file affidavits that they are not members of Communist-front groups.

It will be the first time in five years that the public has been given an official list of organizations which the FBI considers Communist-controlled. An original list was compiled during the tenure of Attorney General Francis Biddle.

Data for Loyalty Board

The new list, compiled under the President's loyalty program order, will be furnished directly to the Loyalty Review Board by Clark. This board, to which final appeal can be made by employes facing disloyalty discharge, will in turn furnish the list to all departments and agencies for use in examining the loyalty of their employes.

Two Factions Vie For Greenbelt Vote

Strife Mounts in Town Council Race With Mass Meeting Set for Monday

Political strife mounted yesterday in nearby Greenbelt, Md., as opposing factions groomed for the town council elections next Tuesday.

Two organizations took the lead in the campaigning, the Committee for Better Government in Greenbelt and the Greenbelt Improvement Association.

Each announced approval of Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., the town's cooperative business structure, which was lambasted and dubbed a "monopoly" at a recent hearing before a House Small Business subcommittee.

Both urged that private enterprise be admitted into the town, but the CBG advocated that new businesses be restricted to the "north end."

Split On Candidates

There was mutual agreement on other points, including need for a new zoning ordinance, an adequate budget and giving residents first consideration when the project is sold.

However, the two organizations split sharply on selection of candidates.

Primary target of CBG was George F. Bauer, the incumbent mayor, who, meantime, headed the slate selected by the GIA.

Said a spokesman for CBG.:

"We don't have a slate of candidates but we feel there are a lot of good people running who we can support. Bauer and Jack Cain (another incumbent councilman) are definitely not the kind of people who should represent Greenbelt."

Later, Bauer reported that Cain had withdrawn his candidacy.

Cain Confirms Withdrawal

Cain last night confirmed this, declaring that he had done so only because of his doctor's orders. He said that he is still suffering the effects of an auto accident on August 28 and that his doctor had advised him to refrain from all outside activities for at least a year.

In addition to Bauer, nominees chosen by the GIA at a meeting Wednesday night were: Benjamin P. Goldfaden, former recreation director of the town; George M. Eshbaugh, Frank J. McConnell and Albert J. Schaffer.

Fifteen independent candidates were reported running for the council posts.

A mass meeting, sponsored by the Greenbelt Citizens Association, will be held 8:30 p.m. Monday, at which candidates are scheduled to speak for three minutes each.

Mayor Bauer announced that he intends to "answer all the dirty flyers put out about me."

Two More Victims Identified in Boat Explosion

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP).—Two more victims of the ill-fated Island Queen were identified today, to bring the total number of bodies recovered to 14 as Coast Guard officers interviewed injured survivors in an effort to learn what caused the explosion and fire which destroyed the $600,000 excursion boat here Tuesday.

The bodies of Chief Engineer Fred Dickow, about 66, of Cincinnati, and of crew member William Williams, also of Cincinnati, were taken from the Monongahela near the blackened hulk this morning.

Robert Horton, an engineer, testified he saw Dickow welding a loose railing near the front of the ship shortly before the blast.

All the dead and the 18 injured were members of the boat's crew of about 90. Six are listed as missing.

Vatican Acts In Yugoslav Priest Killing

Vatican City, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—The Sacred Congregation of the Council today decreed excommunication for all persons who participated "physically or morally" in the decapitation of a Catholic priest and the wounding of another ni Yugo-slav-controlled territory last month.

Mass excommunications were ordered as a result of the death of Msgr. Miro Buselich and the stabbing of Msgr. Jacob Ukmar during confirmation rites at the Istrian village of Lanischie.

Monsignor Ukmar, who was hospitalized and later sent to prison, is scheduled to be tried next week by Yugoslav authorities on charges of provoking the disorders.

Judge Raedy's Trial

Judge Ellen K. Raedy forfeited much more than $200 collateral when she failed yesterday to avail herself of her day in court. The offense with which she was charged—accidentally damaging an automobile and failing to report the accident—was not in itself very serious. The maximum penalty involved was a $100 fine. But Judge Raedy chose to deny that she had been driving her car when the accident occurred, despite the testimony of witnesses who asserted they saw her at the time. Yesterday she had a chance to confront those witnesses and to testify for herself under oath. Since she failed to do so, it is impossible to avoid the inference that her whole account of the incident was fabricated.

It is a great misfortune, and we have no doubt that most of the people in this community will share our sense of real regret over what has happened to Judge Raedy. Not many women rise to judgeships; when they do achieve such eminence it is likely to be as the result of special competence. So in Judge Raedy's case a trivial incident has wrecked a brilliant career. We do not see how she can stay upon the bench. Every traffic case that came before her—not to speak of cases in other categories—would be an embarrassment. She has forfeited public confidence, forfeited the title and the authority to pass judgment upon others.

Pollywog's Progress

After all our other recent disenchantments it is a great disappointment to learn that even King Neptune is a respecter of persons. For several days the correspondents aboard the U. S. S. Missouri have been consuming radio tolls and newsprint with build-up stories about the ordeal of intiation to be inflicted on President Truman on the occasion of his first crossing of the Equator. They managed to prepare us for something like the tempest of excitement which some 20-odd years ago followed the publication in the rotogravure sections of the photograph of the then Prince of Wales taken in the course of a similar ceremony aboard a British battleship

But instead of anything like that, we read that the President was merely required to make a speech, which for a politician is, of course, no ordeal at all, though it appears to indicate a streak of something like masochism on the part of Neptune and his court. On the other hand, it is reported that the Messrs. Steelman and Connelly of the presidential staff and Mr. Stanley Woodward of the Department of State were dealt with very severely, and subjected to such experiences as "mustard massages, ducking in a pool, and paddlings with canvass clubs. The President's daughter, Miss Margaret Truman, was only required to sing "Anchors Aweigh," which is said to be somewhat easier than some of the arias she essayed with (it was stated) considerable success not long ago in the concert in the Hollywood Bowl.

It seems that the least that might have been demanded of Mr. Truman was that he read aloud the latest press interview of General Eisenhower in which that celebrated commander declined to say whether he would or would not permit wild horses to drag him into the presidential chair. And just to keep matters in the spirit of the times, Miss Truman might have been asked for the song made famous many years ago by Irene Bordoni:

I may say, No . . . No . . . No . . . No-o-o!
But do eet again!

Corn Crop

The only bit of cheer produced by the Department of Agriculture's September 1 corn crop estimate is that it is not quite as bad as unofficial forecasters had predicted. But it is 256 million bushels below the August 1 estimate, 884 million bushels below last year's record crop, and 450 million bushels short of the amounts said to be necessary to maintain meat production rates.

Such a deficiency of corn for feeding purposes means less meat, fewer dairy products, and consequently higher prices for these products. It also means that more wheat will be fed to livestock at a time when every bushel is needed to meet domestic food requirements and export demands for wheat. It is much too late to hope for a miracle that would repair the damage to the corn crop resulting from excessive heat and droughts. Indeed we shall have reason to give thanks if late crops escape early killing frosts that would reduce actual output below present estimates.

Here we have conclusive evidence of the need for conserving our grain supplies by restrictions on their use for any but essential food purposes. Even with the most careful utilization, there is no escaping the conclusion that grains and feeds will be extremely scarce next winter and prices correspondingly high.

Mountain And The Egg

The get-together in Paris of what we once ventured to call Cooperative Europe is beginning to look like an anticlimax. It reminds us of nothing more than the fable of the mountain, except that in this case the thing that has issued from it is an egg, not a mouse. The egg that issued out of the first movement was an imposing nugget of 30 billion dollars—which Uncle Sam was expected to hatch. In haste our State Department experts went to Paris and told the conferees to take it back. As a result of the latest rumbling, a new egg has emerged, said to amount to 20.6 billion dollars.

This perpetual preoccupation with the dollar sign is the result of the manner in which the Paris conferees have tackled their problem. They appear to have conceived of the problem as one of a deficit in their individual balances of foreign payments—in other words, as a dollar crisis. It remained to add up their present and prospective deficits, without, so far as we can make out, seeing what they can do as a group to lessen their need for dollars. In this respect examples of possible savings are legion. Within the nations there are such instances as the fixed price for pit props in France at 800 francs which inspires no domestic production and creates a consequent need to spend dollars in getting pit props in America costing 2000 francs. As between nations there is saving possible from allocation of Europe's coal on a basis of reconstruction priority. This would conserve some of the dollars now spent at $22 a ton for American coal.

Moreover, is it not possible to run the automobile industry as a single complex, parceling out the items among the countries best capable of making them; or of going back to the pre-1932 situation before Britain started to build up a self-contained steel industry, and let the member countries specialize in the things they are best equipped to produce? Such activity would lessen the draft on American resources. The emphasis, in short, should be on how to save dollars by mutual aid and not how to acquire dollars by joint arithmetic. Yet the latter occupation seems to have governed the Paris proceedings.

The so-called activity in Paris forces one to conclude that the Europeans thought that all we wanted as the key to our till was a phony scheme of reconstruction. They are quite mistaken. Secretary Marshall, when he spoke at Harvard, was not "kidding" when he asked for a blueprint of a working economy for Europe. He wanted projects, not figures. He wanted a scheme, not a bill. His initiative was an act of statesmanship which depended for its success with Congress upon an effort in Europe to equip him with a real honest-to-goodness program. He knows and Europe should know that in respect of aid to Europe Congress is full of "show me" legislators. That being so, the accent on the dollar sign that has punctured the Paris hearings is playing into the hands of the disillusioned. It will reinforce the selfishness of those who are already counting the cost in higher American prices of "Operation Rathole."

What was needed from Europe was, as Secretary Marshall said, a "program" for the reestablishment of a working economy for Europe. That means farm must be reunited to city by the stabilization of their money; it means a closer integration between country and country with the view of pooling resources and enlarging markets. Even a superficial reading of the Marshall Plan showed that this is what he had in mind. To meet his requirement the Europeans were expected to act like Europeans, then like entrepreneurs, and finally like accountants. It was disappointing, for instance, that the political leaders did not issue a declaration of interdependence before they remitted the technical problem to their experts—if only to make visible the community of Europe.

Steps to realize such a concept could then have been hammered out in common. They called for the preparation of continental projects by groups of equal standing with the practical men of the Harriman Committee of Nineteen. Instead the groups in Paris seem to be dominated by civil servants who cannot integrate businesses or start new ones across international frontiers. Over and above all a kind of War Production Board was surely necessary for allocating imports of our capital goods to projects of continental concern according to an agreed-upon system of priority. Something on this order constituted what was expected. There would be no period, only a recurring decimal, to individual deficits in balances of foreign payments in a plan not based on an integrated economy of western Europe and internal reform.

Public Understanding

It must have been evident long ago to anyone cognizant of the world crisis that Britain would have to ask this country to ease her dollar burden in the joint administration of western Germany. The need for such relief has been bruited from the time the American and British zones of occupation were merged; and the British abandonment of sterling convertibility naturally evoked fresh speculation on the subject. Yet our own Department of State behaved consistently as though the idea had never occurred to it, denying at least by implication that anything of the sort was in the wind. So that Tuesday's announcement that discussion of the problem with the British will be initiated in October came as a complete surprise to the general public. It would be difficult to contrive a case history more exemplary of the ideal way to alienate public confidence and understanding.

Even now, in all probability, we should not have been told about the pending talks were it not for the fact that Senator H. Styles Bridges let it be known on Tuesday that he had called a special meeting of the Senate Appropriations Committee to consider "urgent and vital questions . . . concerning our governmental and financial policies in occupied areas, particularly in Europe." The fact is, we now learn, that the British formally and officially requested discussion of the problem three full weeks ago, on August 23. The State Department felt obliged to let the Congressional Appropriations Committees know about the development since their concurrence will be necessary to any aid we may extend the British; but it did not feel obliged to let the American public know about it, although in the long run its concurrence is equally necessary.

This kind of concealment dogs all that the State Department tries to do. It is as though it felt there were something shady or shameful about its efforts to assist European countries in rehabilitation—or at any rate something beyond the comprehension of ordinary Americans. The reverse is true. The policy is one to be proud of; and most Americans will be quick to support it—if they are dealt with candidly. Nobody has said this better than Secretary Marshall himself in his address at Harvard: "An essential part of any successful action on the part of the United States is an understanding on the part of the people of America of the character of the problem and the remedies to be applied." Physician, heal thyself.

Lodge's Complaint

Every returning traveler from Europe will bear out Senator Lodge's observation of the "shocking" distortions of the truth about America that are current in Europe. The motives back of our aid are everywhere assailed. Even in high quarters the reason for the Marshall initiative is thought of in terms either of saving our export skins or of beginning a new American empire. As Senator Lodge says, "everything we do is twisted."

Nothing, in our opinion, testifies as convincingly to the success of Soviet propaganda as this state of things. However, there are other circumstances which account for the misrepresenattions of which the Senator speaks. There is a basic resentment among many Britons and Frenchmen over the hemorrhage in their national power which resulted from the conflict with Hitler. Added to this is the usual bitterness that comes from dependence. A creditor is never a hero to his debtor, as Britain found out when it was the world's greatest creditor. As the Emperor Francis Josef observed, when reminded of a debt to Russia for help in suppressing a Hungarian revolt, "We shall astonish our allies by our ingratitude."

It seems to us that Senator Lodge's finding constitutes a convincing argument for the strengthening of the Voice of America program. Europe needs to be told over and over what we have done, exactly what our "over-exports" have meant in terms both of European benefits and of the high prices we have had to sustain at home because of those exports, and our feeling about imperialism. The maintenance of American anti-imperialism is one of the most remarkable phenomena of our day. It would have been natural if the access of power that we have acquired had made imperialists of us all—especially when we see the mess that the world is in. On the contrary, there is no such school of thought in America.

If there is one purpose back of our dynamic policy abroad, it is to see to it that conditions do not again arise calling us into war. Twice in a generation we have been plunged in conflict as a result of our refusal to get embroiled in Europe. The consensus now is that since isolationism did not insure noninvolvement, we must participate actively in world affairs in proportion to our power, so as not to be confronted again with a "forced option."

LOST CAUSES

Let me keep to the dark
With my lost causes:

For men cannot win
What they fight for:
Like those who win
World revolutions, global wars,
And the power gone to the head—
The generals arrogantly drunk
And the kids who replace veterans
Lording over a black market.

Give me the lost cause
With the men who always lose:
Infantry who lie on a rusty deck
Before daylight; slow voices from the dark
That never speak like orotund
Statesmen over the radio: quiet voices
Speaking of home and faith
Only in life.

Let me keep the calm dark
With the lost causes:
Infantry on a rusty deck
Waiting for daylight.

Mary E. Woolley

On behalf of the People's Mandate Committee I want to thank you for your editorial of September 7 paying tribute to Mary E. Woolley. Women who were closely associated with Dr. Woolley in the movement for world peace are deeply appreciative of the real understanding of her work for human advancement which marks this editorial.

Dr. Woolley always cherished the hope that women will use the power they have gained to bring about the abolition of war. She never ceased insisting that women must take part in the conferences and councils where the peace of the world is being determined. She relied on women to bring to the fight for peace the qualities which you rightly say in your editorial were exhibited by those leaders who won educational and political rights for women—"faith as well as courage, energy as well as knowledge."

May I make an amendment to your deeply moving editorial? Dr. Woolley served as chairman of the Peoples Mandate Committee not only in 1944 when we were urging united American action in preparing for the peace before the war ended, but in all the years since the committee was organized in 1935. Members of this committee here and in the other American republics appreciate the honor and privilege it has been to work under the chairmanship of Dr. Woolley, one of the great women of our time.

Swiss Prosperity

I feel compelled to write to you in regard to the remark made by Dr. James M. Dawson in the Church News and Views of September 6, concerning Switzerland.

I grant you that Switzerland is well off financially and has also fared comparatively well compared to the rest of Europe, but in the first place she has never asked for sympathy although she has been in a most precarious position due to her neutrality all during the war. Her rations during all that time have been very low and if the government had not come forth with stringent measures right at the outbreak of the war the situation would have been fatal.

I am sure that Dr. Dawson is well aware of the fact that Switzerland has never been self-supporting, as the country has never been able to grow enough in her mountainous territory to feed her people. All during the war she had to cultivate every available piece of ground, even public parks to grow vegetables. They never could depend on colonies like Holland, for example.

As soon as the borders were opened, Switzerland took in thousands of unfortunates and fed them, although they had very little themselves, and is still doing so. I wonder if we Americans would have been equally generous under the circumstances.

If Switzerland seems prosperous it is mainly because people had nothing to spend it on for years and even now imports are quite meager due to the impoverished condition of the rest of Europe. Even yet people cannot buy what they need, but in none of the letters I received from there did I get any complaints. Only a great thankfulness to a kind Providence for having spared them from the terrible fate that befell so many other countries.

MARIE NABHOLZ.

Editor's Note: Dr. Dawson, executive secretary for United States Baptists, was quoted as saying that "Switzerland . . . was enriched by the war and deserves no sympathy."

Palestine Problem

Some of the people who are largely responsible for the crimes committed in Palestine through their contributions to the various Palestine organizations ought to think of two or three facts which I have not seen published during the long controversy.

In the first place, the Jews have no more exclusive right to Palestine than men from Mars. The facts are that a wandering nation from Mesopotamia, between 1500 and 200 B. C. conquered what is now called Palestine.

In the days of the early Caesars, the Jews were wiped out as a historical nation and have never existed as one since.

No attention is paid to the fact, in connection with this Palestinian question, that after several hundred years as a part of the Turkish empire, Palestine was conquered by the English. Everyone can remember how Allenby was hailed as the savior of the holy places. England was as much entitled to hold Palestine as the Jews were when they first conquered it, regardless of any action taken by the League of Nations.

At no time did England promise to give the Jews any part of Palestinian territory or set up there a separate nation. The Balfour Declaration simply stated that England was in favor of the Jews having a "homeland." In other words, of permitting Jews to go to Palestine and to their being citizens of the government that then existed.

The Americans who contribute to the various Jewish organizations which are actively behind or in sympathy with the men that have been responsible for robbery, violence, and murder in many cases, are the same Americans who will not agree to the bringing in to this country of displaced persons. It does seem to me that before we tell England how to run a territory which if England cared to she could claim by right of conquest, we should in fairness make a real effort to understand with sympathy the many very great problems the English face. Americans are too prone to forget or at least pay little attention to the Arab side of this question and to the terrific problems it poses to England. But above all, the people who claim to have such an interest in the welfare of Jews trying to get out of Europe should make at least an equal effort to offer them an opportunity to come to this country.

Hollywood's Music

Paul Hume performed a needed service in his frank review of "Carnegie Hall." All he said about the dull, unconvincing plot, the soap-opera dialogue and the unappealing characters is true.

Not less distracting than the dialogue cutting into the music was the camera work. The same type of snapper who bursts light bulbs in the faces of important speakers was there, callous to the music, jumping with grasshopper alacrity from close-ups of the artists to views of the hall, the stuffed shirts in the boxes and the actors in the gallery. No one could enjoy the music without closing his eyes.

Walt Disney has done the trick neatly in "Fantasia," where he coordinates eye and ear quite effectively, especially in the rhythmic color patterns of Bach, and the leaf, petal and water effects in the "Nutcracker Suite." He uses the drama of creation to intensify the power of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," and his playful fauns, centaurs and nymphs fit nimbly into the spirit of Beethoven's "Pastorale."

"Carnegie Hall" shows how far Hollywood lags behind the radio. We have uninterrupted concerts of the highest order daily over the air. The radio has brought the greatest music in the best sense. But Hollywood still holds to the box-office formula of the jukebox. If "Carnegie Hall" is a money-maker, it will, unless it departs from practice, give us another one of the same sort with a different name.

Vacation Vagaries

What are you up to—using all these reprinted cartoons during Herblock's vacation?

What do you mean by giving Herblock a vacation, anyhow? Don't you know—and doesn't he—that he is about the strongest civilizing force that has struck this Nation's Capital since Abe Lincoln stopped telling smokehouse stories in the White House? And that these days the United States can do with a lot of civilizing?

"Science Policy"

Although engaged in medical and dental research, I wish to express my appreciation of Dr. Zimmerman's letter, "Science Policy," which appeared in The Washington Post of September 4.

I cannot agree, however, that monetary appropriations for scientific research should be stopped, as suggested by Dr. Zimmerman. To stop all research until the masses catch up with the scientists is not a solution to our problem of discordant living.

Governments should spend more and more money on basic, scientific research, and 10 times that amount in educating the masses to use the knowledge we have acquired. Especially should people learn to use knowledge which pertains to human behavior.

Although physical science has altered much of civilized man's environment, he is still largely controlled by instinctive beliefs and impulses developed in primitive man a million years ago. Scientists of today are merely primitive men and women who by intelligent effort and proper training have subjected their instincts and emotions to reason.

People with limited education and experience have never learned to reason or think logically in matters pertaining to health or public welfare. Their outlook is generally narrow and often biased or clannish. They do not understand the principles of science because their minds are too full of fiction and fable. Their nervous system falters and more often fights at the approach of a scientific searchlight. Fact and fiction make strange bedfellows. First, clear their minds of rubbish. Transform their instincts and emotions to reason.

A billion dollars a year spent on ridding our mental storehouses of a vast entanglement of superstitions, unfounded fears, absurdities contradictions and other rubbish would be worth its weight in uranium, say, 10 years from now. Our minds would then be free to understand and use some of the accumulated scientific data.

It is doubtful if our generation will see this renaissance in America. Meanwhile, research must continue. Naturally, the herd is afraid to go along with scientists It is too stubborn and strong to be pushed, but it will follow—if properly encouraged and enlightened. With its scanty ration of scientific knowledge, I think it is doing remarkably well.

Polish Communism

WARSAW, POLAND — Ninety-six per cent of all Poles are Roman Catholics. It is against this background that a few resourceful, shrewd, ruthless men in the Polish government are trying to bring about a Communist revolution.

In the parliament the question came up of what oath the officers of the government were to take. Before the war they were required to swear "by Almighty God" that they would be faithful to the law of the land.

The Socialists in the parliament demanded that the words "Almighty God" be taken out and that a simple "I promise" be substituted. This was in line with their long, free-thinking, anti-religious tradition.

But the Communists in the parliament demanded that "I swear by Almighty God" be retained in the oath. As usual they won, and the Socialists abstained from voting.

This typifies the way in which the Communist managers of Poland's revolution are approaching their task. Some of the harsher doctrines of the early days of bolshevism have been expediently brushed aside. But nevertheless the machinery for absolute control over the nation's economic life is being organized and put into effect as swiftly as possible.

ONE OF THE key managers—some say he is the most powerful figure in the government—is Jakub Berman. His official title is Undersecretary of State of the Council of Ministers. An intellectual and historian, steeped in Marxism, he escaped to Moscow in 1939 and returned with the Red Army.

I had an hour's talk with Berman in his office in the building which houses the Council of Ministers. It is one of the very few structures in the center of Warsaw that was not deliberately destroyed by the Germans. He has a massive, imperturbable calm, almost white hair that recedes from a high, domed forehead, and eyes that are fathomless in depth.

His office is a tiny piece of the past in shattered Warsaw. In one corner is the figure of a Polish saint in dark wood. On one wall is a large painting of a winter scene, with a Polish peasant walking down a desolate, rutted road.

I put to Berman the question that is in the minds of many Poles today: "Will Poland some day be the seventeenth republic of the Soviet Union?"

"Poland," he replied, "will always be an independent state. Poland will always be a Catholic state."

Most of what he said was, of course, the rationalization that one gets from the government in response to any question concerning the far-reaching new decrees designed to alter Poland's economy. It is the same rationalization one gets in defense of the censorship of all Polish newspapers, and it goes something like this:

"These are only temporary measures. Our country is just now in a very troubled condition. There are elements seeking to create chaos and confusion. They must not be allowed to cause further dissension."

The new laws are drawn so broadly that they give the state what is virtually absolute power. Take, for example, the decree on June 13, 1946, which covers a large number of offenses in business and industry.

Imprisonment is provided for "whoever commits an act of sabotage such as making the regular work of the offices, workshops, machinery, plant and equipment . . . difficult or impossible." "Whoever spreads fake news which is capable of injuring essentially the interests of the Polish state or of lowering the dignity of its authoritiative organs" can be sentenced to prison for not more than five years.

THE ECONOMIC thumbscrews are being tightened from day to day. The government has the power to channel all goods into industry and agriculture. On the farms this is being used to convert the once-independent producers' cooperatives into a controlled instrument of the state. In business it is being used to eliminate anyone not wanted. The power of taxation is also employed discriminatingly by the state to make over the political and economic structure.

Perhaps in spite of this program, rather than because of it, reconstruction is going forward here. Buildings are slowly being repaired. Coal production is said to be nearly at the prewar level. Sizable amounts of coal are being exported.

The contrast with Germany is striking. The people in the streets have an air, a pride, a spirit, that even the passing stranger cannot miss. One remembers that through the centuries the people of Poland have fought off many invaders, maintaining through the most terrible adversity an unconquerable spirit and an unquenchable vitality.

American Sacrifices

Recently over the radio Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson was reported as saying that due to the shortage of grain crops caused by adverse weather conditions this season the United States would not be able to export to other countries as much foodstuff as it did last year; that Europe would have to tighten its belt this winter and get along on less!

Is Secretary Anderson expressing the feeling and will of the majority of people in this country when he infers by such a statement that Americans insist that their tables be loaded with the usual bounty regardless of hunger and suffering abroad? Americans pride themselves on being fair and generous. Whose turn is it to tighten the belt and do with less?

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Timetable

ROME, SEPT. 11.—Just about 18 years ago a chain of events, that ended with Adolf Hitler in the Reichschancellery and 16 million jobless in the United States, began one fine morning with the overextension of a bank in Vienna. It was the collapse of the Austrian Kreditanstalt that touched off the great depression that was, in turn, the prelude to the second great war. From the angle of vision of Rome, it seems quite likely that the August run of the British treasury will prove to be a comparable event.

Until a few weeks ago it was still possible to hope that the political and economic situation in western Europe might be maintained in a sort of precarious stability at least until the end of this year. A December session of Congress would then have come to Europe's rescue just in time. Now, however, the timetable has been shortened by nearly three months, by the run on the British treasury and the resulting suspension of sterling convertibility.

The reason for this is simple. The tiny reserve of hard cash nervously guarded by Dr. Menichella at the Banca D'Italia is over two-thirds in sterling—35 million pounds worth. With their sterling frozen, Premier De Gasperi and his cabinet have only enough dollars to continue buying abroad for a few weeks. In about a month most of the flow of imports into Italy will dry up. Italian industry will then begin to grind to a halt for want of coal and raw materials. And the Italian people will begin to starve for want of bread.

Nor will the process end there, by any means. What lies ahead for Europe and the world is already only too plainly discernible here in Italy. It is like a ghastly laboratory demonstration, eccentrically conducted in brilliant weather on the vast, broque stage of this breathtakingly beautiful city.

PREMIER DE GASPERI and his financial expert have adopted a policy for dealing with the crisis. Their object is to maintain the slender bread ration of the people for as long as possible. To this end, they are using all their remaining dollars for grain purchases. They have suspended coal purchases in the United States already. They are already halting importations of raw materials for manufacture. They have sharply raised the discount rate. And they are putting heavy pressure on the country's industries to liquidate their stocks of finished goods by export, in order to squeeze the last drops of dollar-productivity from the Italian economy.

Anyone can see that this policy is simply a policy of total despair. It may temporarily produce a few more dollars to buy a few weeks longer supply of wheat. But it will hasten the day when there are no more Italian goods to be exported, and when the resulting need for dollars to buy wheat for the people will thus be immeasurably multiplied. Yet what other line is open to the unhappy De Gasperi, the harassed Dr. Menichella, and their colleagues?

Anyone can see further that this is an infection which will spread like the plague. In the grim existence of the British people, for example, not the least important bright spots are Italian textiles, fruit, vegetables, cheese and other products.

THE BRITISH, in their own hard straits, have refused to sell to the Italians copper, lead, oil, and a long list of other key raw materials except for dollars. With the Italian market cut off, the British export drive will be sharply set back. And the British people will be forced to tighten their belts another cruel notch.

In greater or less degree, the same will hold true for almost every nation of western Europe. All live by the exchange of goods. The tremendous premium on dollars and the incipient dollar famine are beginning to halt the exchange of goods. Initially the results will be similar to the effects of an ordinary business depression. Here in Italy, for instance, steep rises in unemployment should occur in October and the end of October is also the date beyond which the cut in the bread ration cannot be postponed. In the long run, however, the process will result in something much more like the collapse of the whole complex structure which we call Western civilization.

Anyone can see, finally, that our surrounding oceans will not insulate the United States against a disaster of this magnitude. Under the circumstances it would seem considerably cheaper and more businesslike to prevent the disaster by making the needed dollars available.

College of Surgeons Is Told Of Improved VA Medical Care

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The American College of Surgeons was told today that the finest type of medical care now is starting for GIs under the reorganized program of the Veterans Administration.

The report was made by Dr. Charles B. Puestow, clinical professor of surgery, University of Illinois College of Medicine. He credited the reform to Gen. Omar Bradley and Drs. Paul R. Hawley and Paul B. Magnuson.

He said that at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Hines, Ill., one of the first to be reorganized, three times more operations are being performed in a year than formerly.

He said further that where veterans had to wait weeks or months and occasionally a year for necessary surgery, they now are taken into the hospital immediately and treated promptly. Where formerly very sick men had to go on a waiting list for treatment other than surgery, they now get virtually immediate care. Where there were formerly not enough beds for the sick, there are now spare beds.

Puestow said the reorganization puts the care of GI's directly under supervision of the Nation's great medical schools, 56 of which are running the medical care in 62 veterans' hospitals.

Amvets' Head Blames 'Brass' For UMT Program's Failure

Ray Sawyer, national commander of the Amvets, said yesterday that what he called the failure of the Army to improve military justice has made it "virtually impossible" to obtain congressional approval of a universal military training program.

"The high command," Sawyer said, "is still prone to protect and whitewash fellow brass while GIs are subjected to an autocratic system of regulations, government and punishment."

The veterans' organization has indorsed passage of universal training legislation. Sawyer said the Amvets have concluded, however, that "it is virtually impossible to sell it to Congress until important changes are made in the conduct of the military itself."

"It is time," he added, "for the brass hats to determine whether they want to continue with pomp and circumstance or whether they want UMT."

Sawyer said the Amvets' executive committee proposes that enlisted men be permitted to serve on courts-martial; the inspector general and judge advocate general of the Army be "completely removed" from control of high officers in their branch of service, reporting directly to the Secretary of War, and that civilians be made eligible to hold either of these posts by presidential appointment subject to Senate confirmation.

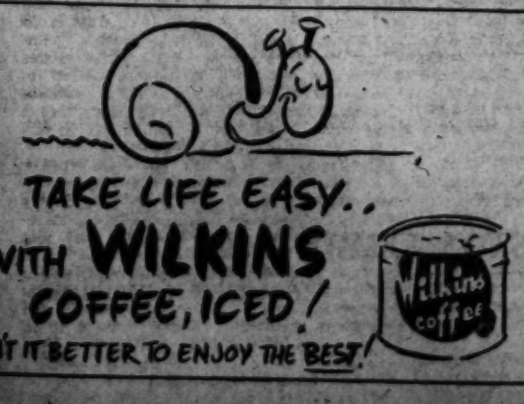
Chinese Reds Free Marine Flier From Their Protective Custody

Tsingtao, China, Sept. 11 (AP).—Lieut. Richard A. Winters of Gordon, Neb., Marine pilot forced down in bad weather August 27, returned here today safe and unharmed, after a fortnight in "protective custody" of Chinese Communists.

The Marine made a forced landing on a beach at Goose Point, 50 miles northeast of Tsingtao. Two others forced down by weather and fuel shortages were rescued.

After Winters' disappearance, the Navy conducted extensive searches in the Goose Point area, and attempted to contact Chinese Communists by radio and letters to Chefoo Communist headquarters.

August 30 Communist representatives approached a landing party, and told officers Winters was unharmed, but held in "protective custody" some distance inland.



New Victories Reported Daily By Greek Guerilla Broadcasts

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Athens, Greece (By Airmail).—Day after day the "Democratic Army's Broadcasting Station" is reporting new victories of the guerilla forces in western Macedonia, in Epiros, Thessaly, and even in Attica.

These reports of victories may be exaggerated, but undoubtedly the bands of Gen. Marcos Vafthiades can take offensive action wherever they want to do so. Up to now, the initiative belongs to them. They raided the large west Macedonian town of Florina some months ago and caused havoc in lives and property; in mid-July they attacked Epiros and for some hours endangered both Konitsa and Yannina; they raided Grevena and Elephteron a week later.

Recently guerilla bands attacked Naussa, a town only 40 miles from Salonika. They burned a hundred houses, killed several government sympathizers, took away with them some people to serve with the guerilla forces, and commandeered supplies and foodstuffs.

Almost At Border

Meanwhile, almost unnoticed and unhindered, considerable guerilla forces advanced through the ranges of the Pindus Mountains and reached the Agrafa district, which is almost on the border of Epiros and Thessaly.

Because of these daring raids, there is bitter criticism of the Greek army. How is it that 150,000 army and police, plus gendarmerie, are every time taken unaware by these bandits? The former Public Security Minister, Gen. Napoleon Zervas, was probably the most outspoken critic of the army. In a recent interview with him he gave me his ideas in combating the guerillas in the mountains. He should know something about bandit methods, as he himself led guerilla bands during the last war to fight Germans, Italians and the Elas guerilla forces. Yet his objections, while probaly well founded, were prompted by his personal ambitions and by political opportunism.

There is no doubt that originally the Greek general staff, as every professional army body, had a deep contempt for the guerillas. This regular army attitude toward guerillas is faulty and should be altered. At the same time, the general staff failed to develop new methods to combat the guerilla bands. They stuck closely to methods which the British used in the Greek civil war of 1944-1945, namely, the profuse use of artillery and air force.

But more dangerous than this British influence in tactics was the constant political control over the general staff. The Political Council, together with a political War Minister, constantly interfered with fighting methods. Every deputy of the Greek Parliament from endangered districts demanded that his city, town or village be sufficiently garrisoned by the army and police. If they did not obtain such protection, they would lose their votes at the next election.

Forced to Disperse Troops

Instead of being able to concentrate the army forces for offensive action, the general staff was obliged to disperse the troops all over Macedonia and Thrace. Thus, instead of being constantly on the move and taking over the initiative, the army units were seated in cities and towns, waiting for a signal of an attack from the neighboring localities. As the guerillas always cut telephone wires, information was obtained only after great delay, and by the time the army arrived, the guerillas, as a rule, were already on the retreat.

Most of these guerilla raids were carried out in true racketeer hit-and-run fashion. Informed by sympathizers that the army and the police were weak in a certain district, they carried out a raid at dawn, killed government sympathizers, recruited volunteers, and commandeered food.

The army is now trying to get rid of the present political control.

Farben Officials Claim Credit For Opposing Gas Warfare

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 11 (AP).—The I. G. Farben chemical trust sought today to take credit for persuading Hitler not to practice gas warfare in World War II.

Two directors of the trust, on trial with 21 of their colleagues before an American court on war crimes charges, related their experiences in documents introduced by the prosecution. Fritz ter Meer, experts on chemicals, stated that a "high military authority" approached Farben in 1934 regarding the manufacture of poison gases.

"Farben definitely refused to accept an order to develop new poison gases with the financial support of the army," Ter Meer declared.

"It is no exaggeration to state that due to Farben's refusal, nothing remarkable was accomplished in the field of poison gas until war broke out."

Otto Ambros, head of Farben's Buna (synthetic rubber) works at Auschwitz (Oswiecim) made a similar claim.

Ambros said that during the last few months of the war the Nazis ordered Farben to destroy all its data on poison gases.

Earlier, Brig. John H. Morgan, member of the British Control Commission for Germany after World War I, testified that the German chemical industry was always ready to wage war within 24 hours.

Morgan said that only 25 to 50 per cent of Germany's chemical factories were destroyed after the first war "because German authorities succeeded with their tactics to explain most of the plants as important to economic life."

Pennsylvania Election

By Ernest Lindley

Labor Takes A Beating

THE DEMOCRATIC setback in the special election in the Eighth Congressional District of Pennsylvania was not due to lack of effort, money, or organized activity on the part of the Democrats who ran the campaign. They did not expect to win, since the district is normally Republican by a substancial margin and Bucks County, bailiwick of former Senator Joe Grundy, has one of the best-disciplined Republican organizations in the country. But they did expect to cut the Republican majority of 1946, especially in the other county of the district, Lehigh, which contains Allentown and some of the wards of Bethlehem. Instead, the Republicans increased their majority in both counties and won 61.3 per cent of the vote in the district, as a whole, as against 58.9 per cent in 1946.

Lindley

SOME EXPERIENCED politicians who know the district believe that the Democrats could have succeeded in cutting the Republican margin if the money and effort had been used in support of better strategy and tactics. The initiative in the campaign was taken by the CIO. The Democratic nominee was a member of a CIO union, the American Newspaper Guild. The Taft-Hartley Act became the dominant issue. The AFL and the railroad brotherhoods actively supported the Democratic candidate, but the CIO was in the forefront.

As to who made the Taft-Hartley Act the dominant issue testimony is conflicting. The Democrats started off to talk also about high prices and the record as a whole of the Republican Congress. Outwardly, the Republican nominee, Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, did not appear to want to make the Taft-Hartley Act the big issue until very late in the campaign. But a large part of the public speaking on the Democratic side was done by labor leaders and independents who stressed the supposed, inquities of "the slave labor law."

The consensus of observers in the areas is that the Taft-Hartley Act became the most influential consideration in the voting. This issue was posed or developed in such a way as to alienate from labor, and so from the Democratic candidate, almost anyone who did not believe that the Taft-Hartley Act is thoroughly outrageous.

The Taft-Hartley Act has hardly begun to operate. It may be that by a year from now this law will be so discredited as to create a general demand for its drastic revision. But the Congressmen of both parties who passed it over the President's veto felt the pressure of public opinion, built up over a long period, for better-balanced legislation covering labor disputes and for curbs on the evils and excesses of the organized labor movement. And some members of the President's official family thought that he would be well-advised to sign the Taft-Hartley Act with reservations.

THE RESULTS in the Eighth Pennsylvania District indicate again that organized labor has succeeded in isolating itself from other elements in the community. Labor cannot expect to win on a labor issue with a labor candidate in a district in which a majority of the voters are not loyal union members. It cannot be sure of winning even in predominantly unionized districts, since labor seldom votes unanimously. There have been many signs that the campaign against the Taft-Hartley Act has failed to convince, as yet, all rank and file union members that the new legislation is a menace to the ordinary worker. Observers of the Pennsylvania election report that despite official AFL support for the Democratic nominee, some old-line union members were decidedly unenthusiastic about the CIO color of the campaign.

The Democratic Party cannot win nationally without the support of a heavy majority of organized labor. But, as the outcome in the special Pennsylvania election indicates, it cannot expect to win nationally if it is dominated by the leaders of organized labor and labor issues are permitted to become paramount to all others.

Roads in Plea for Rate Rise Forecast Huge 1948 Deficits

By The Associated Press

Walter S. Franklin, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said yesterday his line will show a net deficit next year of 95 million dollars "unless adequate and prompt further advances in freight rates are granted."

Franklin testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission, in a general railroad proceeding for immediate authority to boost rates 10 per cent to cover recent increases in wages and material costs.

Ultimately, the lines hope to get a 27 per cent increase, but the commission will act first on the proposed "emergency relief."

NYC Sees Deficit

Vice President Jacob Aronson of the New York Central, acting as general counsel for the carriers, said his company may show a 1947 deficit of $10,252,000 unless ICC authorizes rate adjustments.

Franklin estimated the Pennsylvania will have a net deficit this year of $15,673,000 in the absence of rate increases.

The commission yesterday adopted a suggestion of protesting shippers that the case be divided into two phases. For the next week the commission will hear testimony on the requested emergency 10 per cent boost. Thereafter it will go into extended hearings on the general 27 per cent petition.

ICC Chairman Clyde B. Aitchison said the commission will rule on "the main case" only after holding hearings in the Eastern, Southern, Western and Mountain-Pacific transportation territories, thus indicating a lengthy proceeding before final action is taken.

Territorial Hearings

Walter McDonald of Georgia, president of the National Association of State Railroad Commissioners, Wednesday requested such territorial hearings prior to a commission ruling.

Franklin cited railroad statistical exhibits indicating increases in operating costs since 1939 of 3 billion dollars a year, and said the carriers have been conservative in seeking rate increases.

"In this case," he said, "the railroads have come somewhat nearer to asking for what the bill really is, although if the action of the commission on the entire case in not within at least 60 or 90 days, and immediately on what might be called the emergency wage portion of the case, the railroads will suffer a severe blow from which it will be exceedingly difficult to recover."

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 11 (AP). The House killed a bill to prohibit the union shop and closed shop in Alabama today after it had previously refused to vote on a companion measure to outlaw mass picketing.

Army Reveals Sending Aid To Greeks Against Guerillas

The Army revealed yesterday that ships have been sailing from Atlantic ports for the past month with American arms, ammunition and other military supplies for Greece.

Officers directing the program said that the United States arms will be used to equip the Greek army and gendarmerie in their fight against guerillas "to bolster internal security" and in other police work.

The largest shipments from the United States thus far included land mines and mortars, both primarily defensive weapons. However, there have been some shipments of small arms ammunition and grenades.

No light artillery or tanks have been shipped to Greece, although the 300-million-dollar Greek aid program calls for the delivery of these weapons.

One War Department spokesman pointed out that it is unlikely the United States will ship large quantities of small arms or small arm ammunition because the Greeks are supplied mostly with British rifles, which are different in caliber from American guns.

This spokesman, admitted, however, that the United States might purchase arms and ammunition from the British for delivery to Greece.

The Army said that the great bulk of equipment sent the Greeks consisted of such prosaic materials as trucks, signal equipment and engineering supplies.

All of the vehicles shipped so far have been what the Army terms "general purpose." This means that they are trucks, jeeps, passenger cars and other civilian type conveyances. No "special purpose" vehicles, such as tanks or armored cars, have yet left the United States for Greece.

The signal equipment to date has consisted mostly of telephone supplies—switchboards, wire and line material, although a few Army radio sets have been included.

Engineering supplies include bulldozers, power shovels and a great quantity of equipment necessary to rebuild battered Greek harbors.

The Army has also shipped a quantity of "class X" uniforms—clothing that is no longer considered first line for issue to American troops. But this does not mean a change in the appearance of the Greek army or police force.

Romanian Plot Laid to Five Reserve Generals

Bucharest, Romania, Sept. 11 (AP). Scanteia, the official Communist newspaper, charged today that five Romanian army reserve generals, several other high officers and four members of the foreign affairs ministry staff were implicated in an alleged plot to overthrow the Romanian government.

The newspaper also announced a list of opposition National Peasant Party leaders it said were arrested with party president Juliu Maniu. Maniu's arrest was announced by the government a month ago, when the interior ministry said he and others were seized at Samadau Airport as they were about to flee the country. The National Peasant Party was outlawed shortly thereafter and the parliamentary immunity of its deputies in the national assembly was lifted.

(The United States has protested to the Communist-dominated Romanian government against "continuing supression of civil liberties" in connection with the arrests of Maniu and members of its party.)

U. S. Announces 1947 Program On Potato Loans

A 1947 potato loan program for late crop Irish potatoes was announced yesterday by the Department of Agriculture.

A producer to obtain a loan must be certified for eligibility by his county agricultural conservation committee and must have remained within his acreage goal. The 1946 program did not require compliance with production goals as a condition for obtaining price support.

Both producers and dealers are covered by the program. Loan rates to either on potatoes suitable for storage will be approximately 75 per cent of the September support price. For United States No. 1 quality, they will range from $1.05 to $1.50 per hundred pounds.

Wreco to Issue Rights to Buy Transit Stock

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Railway & Electric Co. (Wreco), as part of its dissolution plan, will issue rights today to its common stockholders to purchase 120,000 shares of Capital Transit Co. stock at $20 each. The rights will expire October 13.

Capital Transit stock currently is quoted on Washington Stock Exchange at $21 bid and $22 asked. The rights on a when-issued basis were quoted yesterday by one broker at five cents bid.

The $2,400,000 proceeds from sale of its transit stock holdings will be used by Wreco to pay off bank loans. The rights will be issued on the basis of two shares of transit stock for each share of Wreco.

No underwriting or competitive bidding was required as North American Co., Wreco parent, had agreed to purchase any unsubscribed shares. SEC authority to sell its transit holdings was received Wednesday by Wreco.

The transit holdings have been owned by Wreco since the merger in 1933 of Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the former Capital Traction Co. Wreco became a holding company at that time. The Public Utilities Commission in July approved the dissolution plan with this comment: "Inasmuch as Wreco is a holding company, performing no utility service . . . its liquidation is desirable. The commission is of the opinion that no feature of the (Wreco) plan . . . adversely affects the operating utilities."

Wreco also will distribute its holdings of Potomac Electric Power Co. to stockholders on or about October 1.

Main plant and executive offices are located in Kenilworth ave., near Bladensburg rd. President and general manager is R. B. Swope.

Jack Is Named To Va. Board Of Education

Richmond, Va., Sept 11 (AP).—The State board of education has accepted the resignation of Eliot V. Graves as State supervisor of physical and health education service and appointed Dr. Harold K. Jack, now assistant supervisor, to succeed him.

The board also approved a statement of policy for the use of schools establishing driver education courses; adopted regulations which will permit legally the appointment of assistant division school superintendents, and approved five applications for loans from the literary fund.

The resignation of Graves, announced with "deep regret" by the board, will be effective September 24. He joined the department in 1925 and has been with it since then.

Jack came to Virginia last year after resigning his post as assistant supervisor of physical and health education for the State of Minnesota.

In approving regulations for the conduct of driver education classes, the board announced that localities desiring to institute such classes can receive application forms through the Department of Education.

Loans from the literary fund were approved for Culpeper's George Washington Carver regional high school in the amount of $19,000; Fairfax's Falls Church Negro school, $25,000; Norfolk's Deep Creek school, $180,000, and Great Bridge school, $275,000; and Rappahannock's George Washington Carver regional high school, $6000.

J. Thomas Christopher, Danville, and ALF Johnson Mapp, Portsmouth, were approved for the eligible list of division superintendents.

Biennial budgets of Virginia State School and Virginia State College were presented and approved.

Labor Day Causes Difficulty For Louisa, Va., Officials

Louisa, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—Because Labor Day fell on September 1 this year, the new mayor and council elected in this county seat last June are having some trouble taking over their posts.

William A. Cooke, who was mayor for six years and didn't run in the last election, has refused to deliver the town books and records to Mayor-elect Joseph N. Porter and the new council.

Cooke explains his stand by noting the law which requires town officials to qualify on or before September 1, the day on which their term of office begins. The new town officers qualified on September 2, the first day after the national holiday, Labor Day, on which the clerk's office was open.

To settle the technicality, Porter and the council have retained Edgar T. Reeves, jr., as their counsel and brought action before Judge Burnett Miller, jr., in Circuit Court of Louisa County. Yesterday, Reeves filed a petition and notified Cooke that he will ask a writ of mandamus to compel release of authority to the new mayor and council.

Union Firemen To Meet Tuesday On Murphy Policy

Members of Local 36, International Association of Firefighters, will meet Tuesday night to consider the association's policy of opposing administrative practices of Fire Chief Clement Murphy.

This was revealed yesterday by Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, association president, who said approximately 100 of the union's 900-odd members had "reaffirmed the association's policy" in a vote Tuesday. The "vote of confidence," Conroy said, was given in answer to Chief Murphy's recent statement that the "majority" of firemen approved his policies.

Orthopedic Expert Aids Army's Host Of Disabled

Medical Center Engineer's Work Gives Amputees New Independence

By Jerry Kluttz

I took a tour yesterday of the Army's magnificent Medical Center here, which includes Walter Reed Hospital, and these are some of the many interesting things I learned:

Kluttz

That John M. Hauser, a 43-year-old orthopedic mechanical engineer, has perhaps helped more amputees and disabled persons to be independent again than any person alive.

He fitted 22,000 soldiers with orthopedic devices during the war at the Army's Finney General Hospital at Thomasville, Ga. He has been at Walter Reed as a civilian employe since December, 1945, and he has helped thousands of others since that time.

The employe, who came to this country from Austria in 1932, has designed a new and far more efficient type of leg brace, which the center is manufacturing at a nominal cost in from six to eight hours. Formerly it took weeks to make the then expensive braces.

Hauser also has designed a mechanical elbow which both locks and lifts, and which will be a big help to amputees. In his spare time, he has developed a collapsible field cot which is far more comfortable than the old type. Also, a collapsible splint which folds up into a package 12 inches long.

That Capt. Burke Snow is chief of the orthopedic limb shop and under his direction significant developments have been made. He's an enthusiastic individual who obviously loves his work. He personally fits many of the amputees who go to his shop for help.

Snow has orders from Brig. Gen. George C. Beach, the center's commanding officer, to spare no expense in finding the best orthopedic devices for the Army's amputees and disabled. And he's not satisfied with what has been done. New and even more hard-to-believe developments can be expected within a few months—developments which will make the amputees look able-bodied again.

That the center recently lost to a better-paying private job its well-known plastic eye technician, Miss Addie Lawrence. Miss Lawrence helped to develop the plastic eye which is not affected by body temperatures and acids. She made all the plastic eyes for the Center for several years. A Wac is now being trained to take over her important work.

That the center has a aural rehabilitation school at Forest Glen where the hard-of-hearing are taught to lip read, to listen and to speak clearly, where individual hearing devices are tailor-made for them, and where they are fitted for hearing aids.

This is the only such school that is conducted for the Army's deaf. Some 400 persons go to it each week for treatment. Any veteran is eligible.

That the center has one of the most powerful X-ray machines—a machine that carries a million volts. The instrument is used to treat cancer and ailments that may lead to the deadly disease. Rare serums are made in the center for both the Army and the Navy.

That the center is a town within a city. It has a population of about 5000, of whom 1700 are civilian employes. Its number of civilians has risen from 1200 within the past year, many military people having been replaced by civilians.

But the center needs additional civilians who are CAF-3 typists and stenographers, and male ward attendants. The attendant jobs, however, are open only to veterans.

And finally, the lunch at Forest Glen is the best and cheapest that can be had anywhere—a full course meal with generous helpings for only 28 cents. The meal would cost $1.25 at the average restaurant. The lunchroom is open to civilian employes.

Baltimore Rail Commuters Face Fare Hike

B. & O., Pennsylvania Expected to Act as ICC Gives Approval

An approximate 1350 commuters, who travel by rail between Washington and Baltimore, can expect to pay higher fare in the near future, it was learned yesterday.

The increase has been granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which authorized higher rates for 16 Eastern railroad companies Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad said that about 750 persons commute daily on this line between the two cities. At present they can purchase a 50-trip ticket book for $17.30. The rate probably will be increased by $2.50 to $19.80, he said.

The price of books of 12 tickets, restricted to use Monday through Friday and sold on a weekly basis, probably will be increased from $5 to $5.65, he said.

A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Railroad said about 600 persons commute daily on this line between Baltimore and Washington.

A 50-trip ticket book sells for $17.30 and a 60-triy book for $19.35, he said. He would not estimate how much the prices might be increased.

The ICC authorized increases ranging from 15 to 25 per cent to cover higher operating costs. At the same time it gave the 16 railroads authority to collect the increased rates after five days' notice to the public.

Fairlawn School Officials Seek Va. Loan for Building

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—First, second and third grade pupils at Fairlawn, left schoolless by wartime shortages, continued on their share-the-classrom plan today as county authorities considered seeking a loan from Virginia's Literary Fund to build a modern elementary school.

First and second grade pupils went to school this morning in a temporary building. Third grade pupils used it in the afternoon.

However, Frank J. Critzer, division superintendent of schools, said he couldn't predict when construction of a new school building would be started even with a Literary Fund loan.

A seven-acre tract has been set aside for the school, an architect has started to work on the plans and the Fairlawn school has been given top position on the county's priority list, but Critzer said lack of materials and high costs might well delay construction.

Congreve Rocket Replica Exhibit Slated Today

Baltimore, Sept. 11 (AP).—An exact-size replica of a Congreve incendiary rocket, the weapon which terrified Baltimoreans in 1814 and which inspired the "Rockets' Red Glare" in the national anthem, will be exhibited tomorrow night at the Defender's Day dinner of the Society of the War of 1812 in Maryland.

The model will be used by F. H. F. Gleason, military historian and authority on arms and ammunition, to illustrate his talk on the rocket used by the British in St. Leonard's Creek, and later in the attack on Fort McHenry, which inspired the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The dinner will be held at the University Club here, with other speakers including Sir John Balfour, minister plenipotentiary of Great Britain, and Rear Admiral William S. Parsons, U. S. N., bomb commander of the mission that dropped the first atomic bomb.

Parents Warned

Protection In Whooping Cough Urged

By George C. Ruhland, M.D.
District Health Officer

The topic to be emphasized in this article is whooping cough.

This disease, though still regarded as a childhood malady to be endured, rather than dreaded, is another of the diseases about which parents may do much to protect their children. Preparing children to meet the added associations and contacts in school is another responsibility which parents alone must assume.

Whooping cough is regarded by physicians as one of the most dreaded of early childhood diseases. It is most serious, and more likely to be fatal, during infancy and early childhood. Immunization should be given at the age of six months, with a follow-up or booster dose when the child reaches school age. Since the possibility of exposure greatly increases at school, it is especially important that an immunization be given at this time, so that the disease may not be contracted and brought into the home to younger children and infants.

It has been only in the past 10 years that effective progress has been made against whooping cough. It was just about a decade ago that the first pertussis (whooping cough) vaccine was made available to all families. Then six shots (or injections) were necessary to establish immunity.

Afterward the concentrated vaccine was developed so that only one injection was necessary. About 1940, the pertussis vaccine became more highly concentrated and whooping cough vaccination became relatively simple and easy. Today, three injections are required, but the dose is small in each shot, and there is generally little reaction.

If your child, however, has not been properly protected against whooping cough and is exposed to the disease, there is protective serum which your physician may offer. It was developed during the war when so much work was done on plasma. One plasma fraction was found to be helpful in controlling whooping cough.

For "Passive" Immunity

Therefore, if your child is exposed to the disease and has not been properly vaccinated, the new blood fraction can be used for an immediate "passive" immunity. In case the disease has entered the child's body, this blood fraction is useful in the treatment of whooping cough.

The new blood fraction should be considered a means to use as a last resort. If you have protected your child adequately by use of the pertussis vaccine, and thus discharged your responsibility as a parent to your child, the likelihood of the child's contracting whooping cough is greatly lessened.

Act now to prepare your child for school so that your child will not become a victim of this or other diseases and can accept his or her full time task of going to school uninterruptedly.

In the next article Dr. Ruhland will summarize the requirements for entrance to school. In case you may have missed any of the first five articles, the next one will bring you up-to-date.

Printed material and informational pamphlets on any of the matters discussed so far in this series of articles may be obtained by writing the Bureau of Public Health Education, D. C. Health Department, 300 Indiana ave. nw., Washington, D. C.

Boy May Have Smallpox

Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—A tentatively-diagnosed case of smallpox, one of the first in recent years, has been isolated at Heiskell Memorial Hospital, it was disclosed here today.

New Hospital Possibility Is Studied

The possibility of building a new 400-bed Providence Hospital on part of the grounds of Catholic Sisters College which adjoins the Catholic University campus is under consideration, it was learned yesterday.

If the suggested project is approved by the trustees of the college when they met November 11 the new hospital will either replace or augment the present Providence Hospital at 2nd and D sts. se.

There was no official comment from the college, Catholic U. or the hospital, their spokesmen apparently preferring that any announcement await the results of the November meeting.

This ruled out speculation on the possibility of a new medical school emerging at Catholic U. with the event of a new hospital at its doorstep.

There has long existed a close working relationship between Catholic U. and Providence Hospital. Under the present extended course, student nurses in training at Providence take two years of academic work at Catholic U. as theoretical preparation for their clinical training at the hospital.

Although the suggested plan calls for the new hospital to be erected on grounds of Catholic Sisters College and the college and Catholic U. are separate corporations, the college has close ties with the university.

Trustees of the university also serve on the board of the college and the college's graduation are made by the university.

It is known that Providence Hospital officials, have been looking for a new site. They have pointed out that it would not be to raze the present hospital and erect a new one on the same site.

Leaders of the Michigan Park Citizens Association which represents the area said they believed a new hospital would be welcomed by most of the residents in the neighborhood.

However, it was pointed out that there might be some objection to the extra traffic in the neighborhood as a result of the hospital which would constitute a threat to children attending an elementary parochial school on the Catholic U. campus.

The present Providence Hospital, established in 1861 to treat wounded soldiers of the Civil War on a site known as "Bloody Hill," was Washington's first medical center. Since its beginning it has been operated by the Catholic Sisters of Charity.

Bids Near On Circle Underpass

Main Traffic Tunnel Work to Start About Feb. 1 if Favorable Offers Are Made

Construction of the main traffic tunnel for Dupont circle underpass will begin about February 1, if an acceptable bid for the work is received this November by the District.

This was revealed yesterday by Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst after the Commissioners voted to advertise for construction bids beginning October 1.

Whitehurst estimated it would take between 18 months and two years to complete the underpass after construction actually gets under way.

He said funds for the project had become available sooner than the Highway Department had originally anticipated.

This is due, he explained, to the passage of the new, one-cent-higher gasoline tax; postponement or rescheduling of minor highway work; and the fact that no cash outlay will be required for South Capital st. bridge work until next summer.

Whitehurst had feared last May that the Dupont Circle project might meet with indefinite postponement due to the heavy financial drain caused by speed-ups in other major construction work.

A careful study of expenditure plans, following the passage of the fiscal 1948 budget and tax bills, however, convinced highway officials that the Dupont Circle tunnel could be started early next year, he said.

Bids will not be opened until the middle of November in order to give contractors time to make necessary arrangements with subcontractors for ventilating equipment and other special work, he said.

Whitehurst declined to reveal the Highway Department's estimate of what the tunnel cost would be. "That might have a bad effect on the bids offered by the various contractors," he explained.

Md. Accuser Of Policeman Given Fine

A Prince Georges County auto salesman, whose $75,000 damage suit against Policeman Arnett Cord resulted in Cord's suspension in July, was convicted on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct and assault at Hyattsville yesterday.

J. Harvey Rogers, 28, 3705 Parkwood rd., Cottage City, was fined $10 and costs on the drunk and disorderly charge and assessed an additional $25 for assaulting Cord, who was suspended from active duty by the county police commission shortly after he was named defendant in the damage suit.

A county official said yesterday's court action amounted to "virtual exoneration" for Cord, who was suspended by the commission pending disposition of charges he had placed against the defendant. Members of the commission previously had indicated he would be restored to duty if Rogers were convicted.

Asks Early Action

William J. Garson, president of the County Board of Commissioners, immediately called a meeting of the police commission for September 23 to act on Cord's case. He said at least 10 days' notice is required.

Judge Alan Bowie found Rogers guilty of both charges after Cord and three other policemen testified the defendant resisted arrest and took a swing at Cord when they attempted to arrest him for drunkeness at Colmar Manor July 20.

Rogers, who said he was a patient at Prince Georges County Hospital for 10 days as a result of injuries allegedly inflicted by Cord, had contended the officer attacked him with a blackjack before the other three officers got out of a squad car, which had been called by Cord. He had no witnesses to support his contention.

The defendant, his left eye still slightly discolored, said he suffered a broken nose, fractured jaw and abrasions as a result of the attack.

Four Others Testify

In addition to the arresting officers, three other policemen and a civilian testified Rogers obviously had been drinking and was "abusive and boisterous" when he was booked at the Hyattsville police station.

In finding Rogers guilty, Judge Bowie said he would not levy a stiffer penalty because "it is obvious the defendant was hurt, even though it was the result of his own mistake, as indicated by overwhelming testimony of sworn witnesses."

Vance Vaughan, attorney for Rogers, said he would appeal. Vaughan also represents Rogers in his damage suit against Cord, which is docketed for the April term of the county Circuit Court.

Lawyer, Failing to Free Client, Jailed on Bad Check Charge

Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Things were tough all over for Attorney John M. Holzworth yesterday.

Five minutes after he had lost a plea in a habeas corpus proceedings on behalf of a convicted murderer, the lawyer was himself put under arrest on bad check charges as he stepped outside the District Court building.

Manacled to a deputy United States Marshal, the attorney was hustled off to the District Court cellblock where a few minutes afterward he was joined by Thomas Jordon, the man whose freedom he had sought unsuccessfully before Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff earlier in the day.

Jordon is serving a life sentence at Lorton for the 1931 murder of Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes in the holdup of the Garden-T-Shoppe.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, the attorney was held in $1000 bond for continued hearing September 19.

The charge stemmed from the cashing at the Statler of a $25 check drawn on a Los Angeles bank.

At the time he was arrested here, Holzworth was free under $100 bond set in New York where he faces similar charges. He was supposed to have returned to Gotham to face trial yesterday but had not arranged bond on the local charges late yesterday afternoon.

The attorney told reporters "the whole thing is a mistake on the part of the bank and on my part, too." He did not elaborate.

He said he was a graduate of the Columbia University law school and that he had been admitted to practice before the United States Court of Appeals here in 1935. He said he was a captain of artillery with the ninty-first Division in the First World War.

Holzworth had based his plea for Jordon mainly on the allegation that new evidence had been uncovered which would prove that Jordon did not commit the murder.

In rejecting the plea, Holtzoff ruled that the habeas corpus petition hearing could be concerned only with either a Constitutional point or with a question of jurisdiction.

Coroner's Jury Rules Today in Rowell Death

Man Held Without Bond in Tragedy During Drinking Bout

A coroner's jury will meet at the District Morgue at 11:30 a. m. today to decide whether Mrs. Theodore Rowell, 35, met her death by foul means during a liquor binge with her paramour.

The body of Mrs. Rowell was found early Wednesday by police in a basement apartment at 1919 I st. nw., which she shared with Nixon McGuire, 36-year-old expressman, according to police.

McGuire was held without bond on a charge of murder after an autopsy showed Mrs. Rowell had died from blows on the head, which Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg said could have been caused by either a fall or by a blunt instrument.

McGuire told police he and Mrs. Rowell began a drinking bout Tuesday night and both "passed out." He said he awakened during the night to find her dead.

Mrs. Rowell, the mother of two children, was estranged from her husband, police said, and for the past four months had been living with McGuire.

At least nine persons, two of them young children, were injured in Washington traffic accidents yesterday. Both children suffered possible skull fractures.

In Arlington Hospital yesterday, 6-year-old Robert Hancher of 6016 N. 26th st., Arlington, was reported in "good" condition after being struck by a car Wednesday afternoon.

Police said young Hancher, a second grade pupil at the Robert E. Lee School, had remained after classes to finish some work, and left around 4 p. m. after school-boy safety partols had been withdrawn.

He ran across Lee hwy. in front of the school, and was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Maude I. Russell, 53, of Dun Loring, Va. Police placed no charges against the driver. Robert was taken to the hospital with cuts, bruises, and a broken nose.

Hodges Found in Alley

Dodson, driver of the truck from which Hodges fell, told police they had been delivering wood in an alley at 205 Gordon ave. nw. After they completed delivery, Dodson said Hodges leaped on the truck and told him to drive away. He stopped when a pedestrian shouted at him, he said, and found Hodges on the pavement.

Police said neighbors reported finding Hodges in the alley outside the shed where he lives early Saturday morning after the Friday night accident. They took him into the shed and when on Monday his condition became worse, he was removed to Gallinger Hospital.

A 70-year-old pedestrian, Matthew Pearce, 1118 11th st. nw., suffered a possible fractured pelvis when he was struck by a Chinese Embassy automobile at 12th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. about 1:45 p. m. Seniors Win Choice Of High School, But—

Monterey, Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—The senior class of Blue Grass High School in Highland County was securely installed in Blue Grass class rooms today—just as the 15 top-classmen wished—but there was some doubt as to just how much their diplomas will mean when graduation day rolls around.

Previously ordered by the County School Board to take their final year's course at nearby Monterey High School, the seniors refused, and last night the board agreed to let them continue at Blue Grass.

In agreeing, however, the board pointed out that under State Board of Education rulings which call for 75 pupils and four teachers in accredited high schools, the Blue Grass seniors who graduate "probably won't get State accreditation, and may have trouble with college enrollment.

The Blue Grass seniors made their choice after considering rivalry between their school and the neighboring institution.

The Washington Post

WHICH WAY PLEASE?—This traffic direction sign—at least that is what it was meant for—at the Corner of Connecticut ave. and Q st. nw., has been the bane of many a tourist trying to pass through town. Each of the markers has been bent or broken. They should read (from top to bottom) Connecticut ave., 16th st., Rhode Island ave., New York ave., Bladensburg rd., Marlboro, Md., Annapolis, Md. (If some District official turns the paper upside down to read the top caption, he may do something about this sign post)

Plea to End Trolley Service Under Study

Baltimore, Sept. 11 (AP).—Maryland's Public Service Commission today took under advisement Potomac Edison Co.'s renewed application to abandon its electric trolley line between Frederick and Middletown and substitute bus service.

The commission held a public hearing today and residents appeared to plead for continuation of both the trolley and supplemental bus service along U. S. 40.

Those with homes near the trolley line said they would have to walk at least three-eights of a mile to catch a bus.

Most of those pleading for continuation of the trolley service live along the stretch between Fulmers station and Cliftons station, 3 and 4 miles from Frederick respectively.

On July 8, the Public Service Commission ordered Potomac Edison to restore a second trolley which had not been repaired since an earlier accident.

Mrs. Lillian Gaither said she rode the trolley August 3, there were 18 passengers aboard, and the conductor did not collect their tickets.

She said this obviously was done so the business would not show up on the traffic report.

Joseph S. A. Giardina, transportation engineer for the PSC, said the service is of a "high personalized nature, particularly between Fulmers and Cliftons.

"The motorman stops the car wherever people are waiting to board and wherever they want to get off," he said. "They have virtual front door service."

The USC engineer recommended that substitute service along U. S. 40 would be adequate if a small bus was operated along U. S. 340, Butterfly Lane, Gulf Lane and U. S. 40 for benefit of the Fulmers and Cliftons people.

Richardson To Seek Post In Congress

Berlin, Md., Sept. 11 (AP).—E. Peter Richardson, 37-year-old Berlin hatcheryman and Worcester County member of the Maryland House of Delegates, announced today he will seek the Democratic nomination next year for the State's First District seat in Congress.

It presently is held by Representative Edward T. Miller, Easton attorney and a Republican. He won it last fall from former Representative Dudley G. Roe sr., Sudlersville Democrat who had served one term.

The First District embraces all of Maryland's nine Eastern Shore counties.

Richardson issued a statement saying he had decided to run "after careful thought and study" and at the insistence of "a number of my friends and members of several business groups in each of the nine counties."

The candidate has lived in Berlin for 15 years. Besides operating a hatchery and broiler plant, he is a partner in a feed company, a director of the Delmarva Broiler Federation, president of the Berlin Business Men's Association, president of the Berlin Lions Club and a member of the Elks Lodge at Pocomoke City.

He was elected to the Maryland General Assembly last year for a 4-year term.

The judge said the fatal dose was taken by Ernest Davis, 33, with full knowledge that it was poison. Porter told State's attorneys they did not have evidence to support the manslaughter charge.

Lane Refuses Extradition in S. C. Auto Case

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 11 (AP).—Extradition of two Baltimoreans, Isadore Goodman and Emanuel Hoffman, to South Carolina was refused today by Governor Lane after testimony was offered to show the complaining witness had offered to call off prosecution for the sum of $9000.

Goodman and Hoffman were charged with false pretenses in connection with the sale of automobiles to Arthur E. Crim, Columbia, S. C.

They also are awaiting trial before a Federal court on charges of violating the Motor Vehicle Theft Act.

Attorneys T. Barton Harrington and Paul Mules told Assistant Attorney General Joseph D. Buscher at a hearing that Crim and Deputy Sheriff George W. Taylor had proposed to Goodman and Hoffman that if they paid $9000, the charges would be dropped in South Carolina.

Crim and Taylor both denied making any such proposal, but Mrs. Ida Straus of Reisterstown, Goodman's sister, said Taylor called on her and said if she could give him $9000, "everything would be cleared up."

Herbert Prince, who was indicted in Federal court at the same time in connection with the car sales, pleaded guilty.

In other extradition cases, the Governor continued that of Earl F. Baker, a magazine firm representative wanted in Connecticut on false pretenses involving a bad check charge.

Attorney S. Raymond Dunn told Buscher, who conducted the hearing for the Governor, that Baker had made restitution. The Governor said Baker would be given a chance to obtain an affidavit from the complainant that no further prosecution was desired.

The Governor ordered Walter J. Hardesty, 26, wanted for grand larceny in Richmond, Va., returned for trial. He is charged with stealing a station wagon and a sum of money.

Typhoid Laid To Polluted W. Va. Creek

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—Mineral County health officers today urged all residents to be immunized for typhoid fever, and to remain out of the waters of Patterson's Creek, to which they said they had traced three recent cases of the disease.

Dr. Harry F. Coffman, part-time health officer, announced a public immunization clinic would be opened Saturday in the court house here. He was joined by William F. Waller, County Sanitation Officer, in advising all persons in the area to take advantage of the clinic.

Waller said he had traced three cases definitely to Patterson's Creek around Burlington, W. Va., finding typhoid germs in the water. The creek is used as summer recreation area by residents of nearby Maryland and Pennsylvania, as well as West Virginians.

Waller said six typhoid cases had been reported this summer in Mineral County.

He said sewage which is dumped into the creek at Burlington was a possible source of the disease. The Sanitation Officer, describing the situation as "serious," said it would be impossible to clear the water of germs this year, and that it may take several years to make them safe.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 11 (AP).—A band of six Baltimore and Brooklyn youths, three pairs of brothers—awaited criminal court action today after the Anne Arundel County grand jury handed down a bundle of presentments.

All six were charged with assaulting and robbing Joseph L. Ernest of Baltimore at Stoney Creek, July 27. Five were named in connection with a Sandy Point Road filling station robbery and four were accused of robbing a Ritchie hwy. ice cream parlor.

All but Henry Dehn were charged in the filling station case and all but he and August Patti in the ice cream parlor theft.

Charles G. Juether, 19, Theodore C. Milligan, 22; John McGurrin, 21, and Denver L. Lance, 21, were charged with robbing Seaman Charles L. Holland, 22, of Washington, D. C., of $100.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 11.—Operating personnel of four of seven struck motor transport lines returned to work today following successful organization of new contracts.

Negotiations between the Teamsters Union and Novick Transfer Co., Alleghany Freight and Elliott Motor Lines were being continued this afternoon with spokesmen expressing the belief that an agreement would be reached.

State Opens Hospital for Chronically Ill

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 11.—Maryland's first chronic disease hospital was opened without fanfare this week at nearby Camp Ritchie in barrack-like buildings used during the war as the Army's station hospital.

Dr. J. A. McCallum, former Washington County Health Officer and now director of the new hospital, said when the new institution is put into full operation it will be able to house 215 patients and will be manned by a staff of 30.

Two wards, equipped to handle about 30 patients each, are now in operation. When all eight wards are ready there will be three set aside for white women patients, three for white men, and two for Negroes. Dr. McCallum explained to a reporter that patients authorized for treatment at the hospital must be suffering from chronic diseases. No tuberculosis or mental cases will be handled, and patients with contagious diseases will be barred.

The hospital at Camp Ritchie is only to be used temporarily for the next several years. The State is planning to erect a large, modern hospital on the site of the present Washington County Home for the Aged near Hagerstown.

Dr. McCallum explained that all of the latest equipment recently purchased was bought on specifications of the new building and not directly for use in the former Army hospital at Ritchie.

This hospital for the chronically ill is a new development in State-supported health projects. Patients will be accepted according to quotas from the several counties throughout Maryland. While the hospital is a forward step for the State, officials indicate that it will only scratch the surface in providing facilities for those needing assistance.

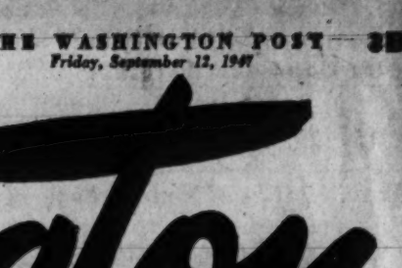
Counting Pennies with Carolyn



"Let's go to Shirlington" is a familiar phrase on many lips in Fairlington and Parkfairfax these first fall days. Residents of the District and Maryland are also taking advantage of the shopping convenience and fine values they find in this beautiful shopping center. Architecturally planned for your convenience and enjoyment, there's abundant parking space just a few steps from every store in the area. Shirlington is easy to reach by bus, or car. Boarding a bus at Pennsylvania and 12th, you're whisked directly there in practically no time.

Today is your last chance to enter Baby in the Diaper Darling Contest. All Shirlington merchants have entry blanks for you. The contest goes on the air tomorrow at 2:30 P.M., so HURRY!

Speaking of babies, bet you didn't know that the Shirlington Drug Store has the largest collection of children's records around here! You'll find all the nursery favorites, old and new, many of them on unbreakable records. One fine album costs $1.56. This store also has a toiletries and cosmetics section to be proud of where you'll discover your favorite famous names . . . Arden, Rubinstein, Schiaparelli, and many others.

To give yourself new zest for living, try on some of the Dobbs felt hats at John Simon. See how their colors . . . raspberry, fern green, emerald, patriot red, honey . . . the bicornes and tricorns, many veiled . . . flatter you. They're all finest felt, from $7.95 to $16.95.

Now is an excellent time for your husband to see Ted Louis' new suits for men, while selections are brand new and widest. He can pick his favorite style in a famous brand . . . Englishtown, Kerry Keith, or Clothcraft. Young men's suits, lounge suits, business suits, sports suits and the new one-button double-breasted style abound in hard-finish worsteds, sharkskins, flannels, gabardines . . . some with two pair of pants.

Forecast—rain! Beck's helps you prepare with a fine selection of rain boots . . . the kind, so much admired by the college crowd, that reach halfway up the calf. If you're going off to school, be sure to get your pair right away, while the limited supply lasts. In firemen red, they're $3.29 a pair . . . in brown or black, $2.89.

Have you gasped at the new tight-waisted fashions . . . wondered if you could wear them? Ann Lewis says you can in new underpinnings called "Waist Whittlers." These little boned garter belts of satin and elastic "make nothing of your waist," cost only $3.50, with strapless boned bras to match at $1.75. The cutest thing you've seen in many a long day are the colorful "days of the week" panties at this shop. Lace-trimmed rayon crepe. Monday, Tuesday, etc., is embroidered on one leg, a shade lighter than the rest of the panty.

Thrifty housewives flock to the Shirley Food Store these days for fine values in good things to eat. Especially inviting right now are counters laden with fresh fruits and vegetables, now at their peak. Delicious, nutritious, they're economical! To round out your week-end menus, you'll find plentiful cuts of finest meats, groceries, baked goods, all at money-saving prices.

Don't forget to stop at the Shirlington Woolworth's for a new paring knife for those vegetables. You'll be intrigued with the wide variety of kitchen utensils you'll see there . . . "everything but the kitchen stove!"

It's always nice to finish up your shopping tour with a cool, quiet visit to the Shirlington Theater, where you'll rest in seats conducive to relaxing. You'll enjoy this Friday's cinecolor Western, "The Michigan Kid," with Jon Hall. Saturday, Sept. 13, is children's day, like other Saturdays. It brings a Judy Canova jamboree, "Singing in the Corn," and "Code of the West" in a double feature bill to give the little ones some thrills!

N. C. Jail Escapee Tells History to W. Va. Governor

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 11 (AP).—Mine Foreman William Philpot, 34, who his employer said has made a "very enviable record" in the nearly 14 years since he escaped from a North Carolina prison, personally related his story to Gov. Clarence Meadows today before leaving to serve his sentence.

Meadows said at a conference there was nothing he could do to help the Mingo County man avoid a return to prison.

President Harry S. Gay of the Gay Mining Co., for whose operation at Gilbert, Mingo County, Philpot has worked as foreman for the last five years, said he had retained an attorney to seek pardon or parole.

The prisoner insisted he did not participate in the armed robbery for which he was sentenced, although he was accompanying several other men who committed the crime. He said he was only 18 at the time.

Both appointments were approved by the District Commissioners, Cogswell said.

Clarke, 30, a native of Washington, attended Central High School here and later obtained a law degree from Georgetown University Law School. He received his B. A. degree from the University of Florida.

He and his wife live at 4917 1st. st. nw., with their 8-month-old daughter, Patricia Dian, and 28-month-old son, William H., jr.

Citizens Protest Filling Station Next to Church

Several hundred Falls Church residents have signed a petition protesting erection of a filling station next to the city's historic Episcopal church.

The minister of The Falls Church, the Rev. Francis Hayes, said trees already were being removed from the lot adjoining the church's graveyard in probable preparation for the filling station.

The station, contracted for with the Sinclair Oil Co., would be built on Lee blvd., next to the church on property owned by Mrs. Louisa Henderson. The site has been zoned commercial, and city officials yesterday reaffirmed their belief that a filling station there would be legal.

At the same time, Richard C. Horne, jr., a church member, said he had written the president of the Sinclair Oil Co. protesting the proposed structure and had sent additional letters to the Mayor and Town Council of Falls Church.

The president, Harry Sinclair, wrote him that if a majority of Falls Church residents opposed the plan, the filling station would not be built, Horne added.

Town clerk, Claude M. Wells, said the petition of the irate church members probably would be presented to the council in its next scheduled meeting, September 22.

Opponents of the filling station earlier had brought in a Virginia State Highway Department official for his opinion on whether or not the station would prove a traffic hazard. The official pointed out, however, that the bottleneck caused would not be serious enough to warrant a ban on the filling station.

Horne said he felt the "next move" in the issue was up to Falls Church officials.

THE STORE OF NATIONALLY FAMOUS MERCHANDISE

today, it's important to be smart

and Post readers are smarter

ALL news is so personal, these days. A flood in Iowa boosts meat prices in Washington. An election in Greece opens Foreign Service jobs for American typists. Coal shortage in Europe means more taxation here for world relief. Each news item is like a pebble in the pond, with the ripples widening till they reach our feet.

No wonder it's important to be smart! . . . to know what's going on . . . to be able to judge the personal effect of each turn in the news. To do that, first you have to know the facts.

Post readers do. Just to test this, we asked a cross-section of Washingtonians to name as many Cabinet members as they could. Washington Post readers got a 68% higher score than the average for other people. And higher than the readers of any other Washington newspaper.

Smart people turn to The Washington Post for its famous, most-quoted editorial page. They like its variety of columnists. They rely upon its unexcelled news reporting. (Washingtonians pick The Washington Post 2 to 1, 7 to 1, and 8 to 1 as having better news reporters than the other papers.) Because it's the favorite of smart people, surveys show that 48% of The Washington Post's readers have been to college as against only 23% of non-Post readers.

Since it's important to be smart, it's nice to know you're in good company when you read The Washington Post.

—With Shirley Povich

DENVER, COLO., Sept. 11.—Pro football takes some funny bounces. The Redskins, for instance, don't play to one-dollar admissions, even in a so-called charity game. This little piece of incidental intelligence I uncovered in Denver this week.

POVICH

In the course of whipping up an insult to the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference, General Manager Dick McCann of the Redskins uttered a loud "humph" and orated: "In that league they're putting seats on sale for a dollar plus tax, what do you think of that?"

Confidentially, I thought it was pretty nice of the Los Angeles club to give the paying public a break, as long as they could bear the traffic, and somehow I wasn't shocked at all at the idea that a football game could be seen for a dollar plus tax.

The Redskins never used to think there was anything horrible about selling seats for a buck-ten when they first moved into Washington and were trying to build up a clientele, like the AAC is doing. The same dollar seats now sell for $3.60, as I understand it. Football payrolls have gone up, you know. Gotta meet that old payroll.

BUT I UNDERSTAND now it's simply beneath the pride of the Redskins to play before one-dollar customers even when the payroll isn't involved. I gather that from the interesting financial arrangements the Redskins make for their annual charity game in Denver.

They've got a five-year contract with the Denver Post to play a game here every September on their way to the East from the Pacific Coast. It's really a very nice contract. The Redskins are guaranted $15,000 for each game, no matter what the gate receipts may be.

But here's the rub: According to Denver Post's sports editor, it's stipulated in the Redskins' contract that no tickets are to be sold at less than $2.40.

"We ought to sell some of the tickets for a dollar plus tax and get a lot of people to the game," said Jack Carberry, "but the contract says we can't. We'd make more money for our paper's juvenile delinquency fund. We never have filled the park for one of these pro exhibitions."

Last night with seats selling as high as $5, only 14,600 were in the stands for the Redskins-Lions game, with 10,000 seats unsold. It was bad weather all day.

Charity didn't get as good a break from the game as did the Redskins and Lions, each of whom picked up a $15,000 guarantee check. The Lions didn't get as good a break as the Redskins. They had to come out here from the East for the game while for the Redskins its was just a stopover on their way to Chicago from Los Angeles and involved little added transportation expense.

Carberry estimated the gate receipts at approximately $50,000. of that figure, Government tax would take $10,000. Of the remaining $40,000, stadium rent would be 15 per cent or $6000, leaving charity with about $4000 after the football heroes were paid off.

THE REDSKINS are so affluent, with sell-outs assured whenever they play at Griffith Stadium and season ticket sales a problem only in that there are more applicants than seats, that the problems of the less fortunate clubs in the league are sometimes overlooked.

Take the Detroit Lions, for example. Last night's game was very important to them. They needed a victory to boost the interest at home, and the defeat they suffered was a blow to their box-office sales.

Fred Mandel, the owner of the Detroit club, has reason to envy the Redskins. "Up to yesterday, we had only 7000 season tickets sold," he said. "A win over the Redskins would have boosted the football interest in Detroit where they don't think we have much of a ball team. This defeat hurt."

Mandel pointed out that the other clubs in the league value the exhibition game victories much more than the Redskins, to whom a preseason win or defeat is meaningless from the standpoint of season ticket sales.

"Art Rooney of Pittsburgh was telling me," said Mandel, "that his club had sold 23,000 season tickets before last week's game with the Packers. After beating the Packers, the sales jumped 7000 in one day."

THE REDSKINS may be getting another break. In the light of the preseason game results, the league's picture is getting a mite clearer and showing that the Skins are playing in the softest division of the circuit.

The Western clubs have generally been mopping up against the Eastern teams. The Redskins' victory over the Lions, and the Pittsburgh defeat of the Packers are the only preseason games Eastern clubs have won.

Significant to the league, too, are the developments in Chicago. The Cardinals may finally be coming into their own in that town after more than a decade under the heel of the more popular Bears.

The Bears are believed to be fading a bit with Luckman and McAfee and other stars getting older by the year. The Cardinals licked the Giants, 52 to 21, the other night and in Charley Trippi they may have the town's new football hero.

Gaffney's Play in Lion Game Brings Joy Back to Redskins

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Denver, Colo., Sept. 11.—The Redskins, who can smile again, are on their way to Chicago for a pre-season tussle with the Bears on Wednesday, with a neat victory over the Detroit Lions under their belts and something that looks like a running attack on their ball club.

They uncovered Jim Gaffney as a bludgeoning ball-toter in the 23-14 defeat of the Lions last night. He banged over for two impressive touchdowns, and Coach Turk Edwards dutifully noted the plunging prowess of the fellow who had been merely a second-string halfback.

Gaffney's forays through the Detroit line were pretty immense. Just before bucking the ball over from one yard out for the touchdown that gave the Redskins a 9-7 lead in the third quarter, he lugged it 13 yards through center inside the 14-yard line. And to score the second time the ex-Tennessee ace bulldogged it 21 yards through Detroit middle in only two smacks.

Jimmy Youell threw no touchdown passes for the 'Skins and wasn't even on the field when the Redskins scored all of their points, but his value to the club was demonstrated nevertheless. It was the alert Youell who recovered Bill Dudley's fumble on the kickoff to launch the first touchdown and a bit later he intercepted a pass on the Lions' 24 to give the Redskins possession for another scoring drive.

As usual, however, it was Sammy Baugh who made the Redskins move. The Redskins' second touchdown was something that Baugh whipped up, with a perfect 25-yard pass to Hugh Taylor in the end zone, and it's obvious now that Taylor is Baugh's favorite passing target. Baugh pegged the lanky Oklahoma boy as his man from the opening days of the Redskins' training.

He Gets One In 1st Game, 3 in Second

New York, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Rammin' Ralph Kiner, admittedly setting his sights on Babe Ruth's 20-year home run record, smashed out four round trippers in a doubleheader today to tie a major league mark and bring his total for the season to 47 as the Pirates topped the Braves, 4-3 and 10-8.

Kiner, by getting the four homers, pulled into a tie with Johnny Mize of the New York Giants for the major league homer lead. Mize hit his forty-seventh at Cincinnati as the Giants dropped a 3-2 decision to the Reds.

Both Mize and Kiner now are considerably behind Ruth's 1927 pace when he set the all-time major league mark of 60 homers in a single season.

In that year Ruth hit his forty-seventh homer in his 133d game on September 6. Kiner is six games behind Ruth's pace, since he now has played in 139 games, while Mize completed his 136th game today.

Kiner's four homers in a doubleheader tied a mark set by Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians in 1930 and equalled by Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics in 1933, Jim Tabor of the Boston Red Sox in 1939, and Bill Nicholson of the Chicago Cubs in 1944.

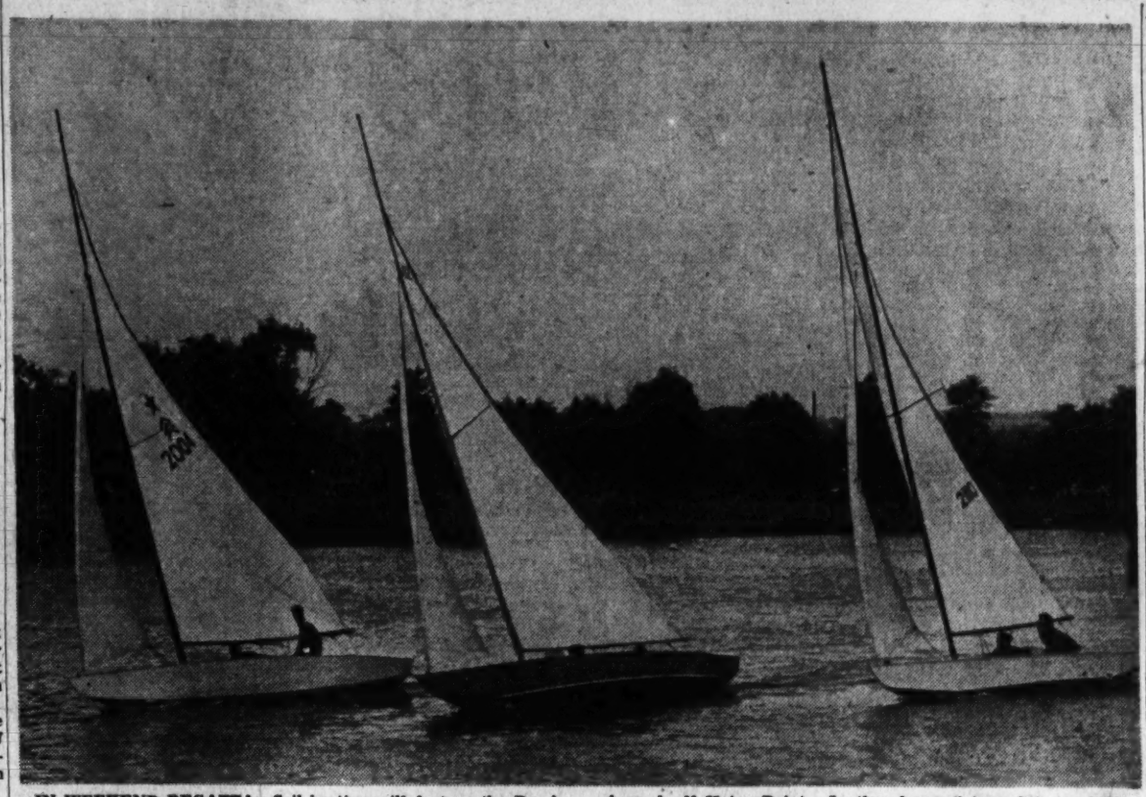
Louis Signs For Walcott

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, through his comanager, Marshall Miles, today signed contracts for his so-called 10-round nontitle bout against Jersey Joe Walcott at Madison Square Garden, November 14.

Walcott signed for the fight some weeks ago.

Miles said that Louis would start training at West Baden, Ind., September 15 and would turn to serious work on October 12 at Pompton Lakes, N. J. The champion's regular trainer, Manny Seamon, will leave for West Baden Sunday to join Louis, who now is playing in a golf tournament at Kankakee, Ill.

Miles said that Louis understands that if he should be knocked out in this bout, he will lose the heavyweight title. However, the contracts stipulate that it will be "a 10-round, nontitle bout," all participants having agreed to this in accordance with the New York State rule that title bouts must be 15 rounds.



IN WEEKEND REGATTA—Sail boating will feature the President's cup regatta tomorrow and Sunday. Above, three of the boats entered take trial runs off Hains Point. A record field of 131 will participate. The races will be run in the Georgetown channel off Hains Point. In the above picture, left to right: Melody, owned by David J. Yanks Come From Behind To Earn Split

New York, Sept. 11 (AP).—The New York Yankees moved a step nearer the American League flag today when they divided a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers, winning the second game 11-5 after Hal Newhouser had beaten them 7-2 in the opener.

The Yankees split together with the dividing of a pair of games by the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland reduced the magic number to four. That is the combination of games the Yanks must win or the Red Sox must lose in order to insure the flag for the Yanks.

Joe DiMaggio, who was held hitless by Newhouser in the opener, connected for his nineteenth home run, a double and single to lead the Yankees.

Newhouser twirled a six-hitter to register his fifteenth win against 16 losses. The loser was Frank Shea, who had beaten Newhouser in three previous hurling duels.

Dawson's Torrid 32 Earns U.S. Amateur Tiff With Strafaci

Pebble Beach, Calif., Sept. 11 (AP).—Streaking home in four under par, 44-year-old Johnny Dawson of Hollywood, Calif., defeated dark horse Otto Hofmeister, Lewiston, Idaho, 5 and 4, today to pace fifth round winners in the U. S. Amateur Golf championship.

While Dawson, the veteran who belted the red hot tournament favorite Frank Stranahan to the sidelines yesterday, was taking Pebble Beach to pieces with a first nine 32, the famed course saw the fifth round downfall of big name player, Dick Chapman of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Frank Strafaci, New Yorker from Flushing, continued to wave his special jinx over Chapman and eliminated the 1940 National amateur kingpin, 5 and 3. The two Easterners have met on the links five times, Strafaci emerging boss on each occasion. He beat Chapman twice in the New York Metropolitan amateur championship, a title he now holds, and two times in the North-South classic at Pinehurst, N. C.

Strafaci, who never before traversed this far in eight national amateurs, finished two under par for 15 holes. His opponent in this afternoon's quarterfinals, Dawson closed out his fifth round bout four under for 14 holes.

Twice former winner of the country's blue ribbon event for the simon pures, Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., crashed into the quarterfinals with a 6 and 5 win over Frank Hixon, San Gabriel, Calif.

Ward needed a two over par 38 to negotiate the first nine, but he had a two up lead on Hixon, nevertheless. The 1939 and 1941 U. S. chap ran out the string on the Californian by winning the next four holes in a row, two with birdies. Ward was even par for his 13 holes.

Last-Place Brownies Good Enough to Blank Nats, 2-0

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns defeated the Nats, 2-0, in the opener of a three-game series at Griffith Stadium last night.

A slim crowd of 3639 attended the game.

After a quiet first inning, the Browns got up on their haunches and punched out a couple of runs in the second frame. Shortstop Johnny Sullivan gave them a big lift by tossing Vern Stephens' grounder into the Nat dugout for a two-base error.

Walt Judnich got a handle hit into left to score Stephens and scooted to third as Joe Coleman followed with a single to right. Catcher Less Moss forced Coleman and Judnich came in. Pitcher Sam Zoldak kept the rally going with an infield hit, but Tom McBride got Haefner out of the jam by crashing into the left field fence to snare Bob Dillinger's long fly.

After retiring the Nats in order for the first two innings, Zoldak himself retired. Recurrent sinus trouble forced him to yield the pitching chores to Right Hander Bob Muncrief.

High Success

The Nats did a great deal better against Muncrief—they got their first hit—a single by Sullivan to start the third, but nothing came of it.

Haefner was still flirting with trouble and was in a jam every inning. The Browns had tapped him for seven singles in the first five innings.

Mickey's Best

Haefner got by the seventh inning without giving up a single, the first inning in which he had held the Brownies hitless. This was of little consolation to him, however, as his mates couldn't do anything with Muncrief.

They had four hits off him and no runs in seven innings and only in the seventh did they manage to bunch a couple of hits. With one away, Vernon singled. Spence popped to second and Evans got his second hit, in infield tap. But Sullivan spoiled it by grounding out.

The Nats got a couple of more on base in the eighth, but once again failed to get them home. Priddy opened the inning with a single, but pinch hitter Sherry Robertson and Eddie Yost popped up. Buddy Lewis grounded to Stephens, and Stephense hesitated before throwing to first and all hands were safe.

With the tieing runs on base, McBride hoisted the first pitch to Zarilla in center, and that threat was over.

Bosox Split With Indians

Boston, Sept. 11 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox slugged their way to a 5½ inning 8-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the second game of a doubleheader today after the Indians won the opener 10-8. The second game, called because of darkness, was a victory for Dave Ferriss who was making his first start since August 24, after being spiked accidentally by a teammate.

Maybe They Just Outlined World Series

Cincinnati, Sept. 11 (AP).—Baseball Commisioner A. B. Chandler practiced again today what he has been trying to preach to Larry MacPhail — silence — after a conference with the loquacious one in connection with statements he made about that forbidden subject, Leo Durocher.

As was the case when MacPhail was called on his green carpet last April for criticising the suspension for the season of the Brooklyn manager, the big shot of baseball declined to discuss today's confab with the fiery president of the New York Yankees, which followed a meeting to plan for the 1947 World Series.

"That's All"

Interrupted in his talk about the series by a question as to what the score was with the New York Yankee president, Chandler cried: "That's all; that's all."

MacPhail also was silent as to what took place.

Chandler began an investigation several days ago into statements attributed to MacPhail last week concerning the Durocher case.

The New Yorker was quoted as saying it was a 100-to-1 shot that Durocher would not be back with the Dodgers next season and adding:

"Do you think that Durocher would have been suspended if Rickey (Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn club) hadn't wanted him suspended?"

When Chandler suspended Durocher on April 9 he issued an order that no one in the controversy involving Durocher, MacPhail and Rickey would discuss the subject.

Second Meeting

After that month, MacPhail was called before the commissioner because he was quoted in an interview as criticizing the action. After a day-long discussion, MacPhail emerged, red faced, and declined to talk. He had kept still until the statements attributed to him last week.

MacPhail had come here as representative of the Yankees, who are almost certain to win the American League pennant.

Cabin Creek Wins by Nose At Timonium

Timonium, Md., Sept. 11.—In a tight photo finish that saw three horses stretching their noses toward the wire, A. J. Poinsett's Cabin Creek was a nose winner before a crowd of 6000. The consistent son of Chance Play nipped S. J. Corral's Love My Gal right on the wire. A neck farther back came J. E. Crider's Comedy Player to be third in the field of eight.

Ridden by Jockey Pat O'Brien, Cabin Creek was a $4.80 favorite and was clocked in 1:02 4/5 for the about five furlongs over a slow track and under clear skies. The victory was the sixth in 10 tries this year for the 7-year-old.

Roman Boy and Under Cover set the pace of the early pace. However, Love My Gal moved up with a rush to take over on the backstretch. Cabin Creek, never far out of it, rallied and gradually wore down Love My Gal. However, Comedy Player came with a bold rush from far back and would have been the winner in a few more jumps.

Apprentice Ray Drury, leading rider at the meeting, made it 12 winners for the session when he scored with Mrs. V. D. Waple's Tumble Boy, odds on favorite, in the seventh race. Tumble Boy finished a length and a half in front of E. C. Allnutt's Gay Peggy with A. S. Moore's Gal Royal third. Tumble Boy paid $2.80 and was clocked in 1:56 3/5.

W. C. Ensor's Ethel Morse and P. Bolton's Peri Pomme teamed to produce a $97.60 pay-off on the daily double.

Jockey Witmer Much Improved

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 11. — Jockey George Witmer, injured at Timonium yesterday, was reported "much improved" although still in "critical" condition by the Maryland General Hospital. Witmer, who suffered broken ribs, a punctured lung as well as a broken left leg, was placed in an oxygen tent last night after undergoing several blood transfusions.

Witmer, 29-year-old Funkstown, Md., rider, was leading the field in the first race aboard S. J. Flammia's Night Coleen when his saddle appeared to slip. The veteran lightweight pilot was thrown to the track directly in the path of horses and was trampled.

Jack Loses 2nd Set to College Boy

By Gayle Talbot

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—Defending Champion Jack Kramer of Los Angeles lost a set and did a lot of talking to himself before he defeated James Brink, a tall left-hander from Seattle, 6—1, 3—6, 9—7, 7—5, in a fourth round match of the national championship today.

When Brink, a law student at the University of Washington, took the second set from the champion, it was only the second set Kramer had dropped on grass this year. He lost the other to Dinny Pails of Australia on his way to the Wimbledon championships last June.

Today's match was played on a windy outside court, and Kramer was badly off form. Brink pounded his backhand steadily and the champion couldn't get his returns over the net.

Brink broke through the champion's service twice in succession to take a 5—3 lead in the third set and Kramer finally saved it only after a succession of close deuced games.

The fourth set also was a scorcher. Kramer, settling down somewhat on his ground strokes, broke Brink's first service and gained a 5—3 lead, only to have his tenacious 22-year-old rival break back in the tenth game and make it 5—5.

Brink barely missed two fine passing shots as he lost the twelfth game and the match to Kramer's service. The hard-earned win put Kramer into the quarter finals tomorrow where he plays Bob Falkenburg.

Tom Brown, jr., of San Francisco, who reached the finals against Kramer here a year ago, also went through a tough contest before he subdued Geoff Brown of Australia in another fourth-round match by scores of 7—5, 4—6, 10—8, 6—1. Until the final set, when the Aussie tired, it was anyone's victory.

Mulloy Plays Bromwich

The victory placed Tom in the quarter finals against Jaroslav Drobny, the Czech Davis cupper.

Gardnar Mulloy of Miami reached the quarterfinals with an unexpectedly easy win over Torsten Johansson, Swedish Davis Cup player, by scores of 6—3, 6—2, 6—3. Mulloy meets John Bromwich, Australia's No. 1 man, today. Bromwich defeated Eddie Moylan, San Francisco, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2.

Over 4000 to Compete In 1948 Olympics

London, Sept. 11 (AP).—Britain seems assured of at least one Olympic record—the number of competitors from all nations participating in the 1948 games.

Preliminary advices from 24 nations which have so far accepted invitations for the Olympics indicate that 4000 athletes will be in the country. Previous best entries have been 3959 at Berlin in 1936, 3905 at Amsterdam in 1928, and 3385 in Paris in 1924.

Squirrel Season Monday

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 11 (AP).—Washington County's squirrel season will open on Monday for a 14-day period. However, no shooting of the animals will be permitted during the upland game season, November 15 to December 31. A shortage of squirrels has been given as the reason.

Easy Wins Scored in Semifinals

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11.—The Old Dominion's hopes of bringing back the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship were shattered at the Hermitage Country Club today as Mrs. Maurice Glick, the steady performer from Baltimore's Woodholme Country Club, and Mrs. Betty Meckley, of the Kenwood Country Club, Washington, turned in easy victories over their semifinal opponents.

Mrs. Glick and Mrs. Meckley will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for the crown.

Both Mrs. Glick and Mrs. Meckley actually won their matches on the outgoing nines, being five up at that time.

Mrs. Glick, the medalist and Baltimore City champion, went on to defeat Mrs. George Owens, of Petersburg, 5 and 4. Mrs. Owens yesterday dropped Mrs. J. B. Cralle 3d, Virginia's No. 2 woman player, in a blistering 22-hole match yesterday, 5 and 4. Mrs. Meckley stopped Mrs. S. R. Hall, of Richmond, 6 and 5. Mrs. Hall yesterday eliminated Mrs. Jim Reynolds, Virginia State champion.

Mrs. Glick had a par 38 at the turn today and was only 2 over par when the match came to an end on the fourteenth hole.

The pressure was also too much for Mrs. Hall whose game on the greens went to pieces for the first time during the tournament as Mrs. Meckley, seldom in trouble because of her accuracy, took advantage of Mrs. Hall's errors at every opportunity to end the match on the thirteenth hole.

Results:

Championship flight

Mrs. Maurice Glick, Woodholme Country Club, Baltimore, defeated Mrs. George Owens, Petersburg Country Club, 5 and 4.

Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwod Country Club, Washington, defeated Mrs. S. R. Hall, C. C. Va., Richmond, 6 and 5.

Fast Field Set For Races Tonight

Probably the most potent lineup of little car drivers yet assembled at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway this season will step out on tonight's seven-event midget automobile racing card, set for 8:30 o'clock.

Ed "Dutch" Schaefer and George Fonder will return to the track after a lapse of several weeks, while Shorty McAndrews and Mike Joseph will complete the Offenhauser entries.

Larry Bloomer, the veteran Norristown, Pa., ace, tops a challenging field of Ford V-8 drivers who will make a bold bid to upset the Offenhauser boys tonight. Ernie McCoy, Red Redmond, Shorty Bowers, Walt Fair, Charlie Breslin, Carl Miller, Hawley Kight, Mike San Felice, Jim Forte and John Favinger also will compete.

Miss Finckel Wins Thriller

Miss Elinor Finckel defeated Mrs. L. G. Pray, 1 up, on the 20th hole to gain the final round of the Columbia Country Club women's golf championship yesterday at Columbia.

Mrs. John Ives downed Mrs. Allan Minnix, 2 up, to gain the right to meet Miss Finckel in today's final at 10 a. m.

Miss Finckel made one of the most amazing finishes ever seen in a club championship match when, after trailing 1 up at the end of 17 holes, she put her third shot in a sand trap off the 18th green.

Mrs. Pray was 5 inches from the cup in 4 strokes and it appeared that the match was over. Miss Finckel, however, exploded a shot from the trap that landed in the cup, to win the hole with a 4 and even the match.

After halving the 19th, Miss Finckel took the 20th with a 4 to Mrs. Pray's 5 to win.

Navy Scrimmage With Huskies Off

Seattle, Sept. 11 (AP).—University of Washington athletic officials announced today the cancellation of the scheduled Navy-Washington scrimmage Saturday at the Widbey Island Naval Air Station, because of a Pacific Coast Conference technality.

They said the Conference commissioner had ruled the practice clash qualified as a game, and conference regulations forbid games before September 20.

The two teams already had a September 20 return scrimmage scheduled for the University Stadium, and they plan to go through with it as scheduled.

Powell Superb Picture Matches

By Richard L. Coe

"LIFE WITH FATHER," at the Warner, is a honey of a picture. Don't miss it.

That, in brief, is what the Brothers Warner have done with the fabulous stage play Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse drew from the sharp, nostalgic memoirs of Clarence Day, jr.

Not only is William Powell giving a performance of Academy Award caliber; the writing of Donald Ogden Stewart and the direction of Michael Curtiz are of similar stature. Rarely do you hear lines so aptly written or watch a film so affectionately put together.

With remarkable care, they've all managed to capture the flavor of those sketches which first appeared in the New Yorker. Nor could the laughter at the Warner yesterday afternoon do anything but make you marvel at the far-reaching influence of that remarkable little magazine. That the suave, disciplined writing which once was caviar to the few now is joy to the movie millions is a fine tribute to the little weekly and the film makers.

The frame of the play has been closely followed. Father still is trying to avoid baptism, but in the end Mother lures him up to the little church in Audubon Park. Cousin Cora remains the grudgingly welcome house guest. Clarence, jr., still suggests he takes after his father. The china pug dog from McGrery's incites Father's contempt just as Mother's wandering plant does. There's a new maid for every meal at whom Father shouts, "Who are you?" There's that wonderful scene in the employment agency where Father goes in search of a maid. "Where do you keep 'em?" he bellows. (That one, to be sure, wasn't in the play; it stems from those original sketches.)

"LIFE WITH FATHER." Warner Brothers picturization of the play by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, from the sketches by Clarence Day, jr. Screenplay by Donald Ogden Stewart. Technicolor by Kalmus. Music by Max Steiner. Directed by Michael Curtiz. At the Warner Theater (formerly the Earle).

Murray Hill

The flavor of New York's Murray Hill of the '80s is wonderfully captured. Not that we know from first hand observation, but our own mother grew up a few doors down Madison ave. from No. 420 and as a youngster we used to see her old home, another brown stone front just like the Days'. About the only false note we did catch was the brightness of the rooms and the painted walls. Houses in those days were more cluttered and had heavy, darkish wallpaper, but we don't much blame the designers, for visually their results are at least fetching.

An old New Yorker, too, will appreciate the horse carriages of which Father Day was so fond, as opposed to the $2 cabs Vinnie preferred. And there's a scene in Delmonico's and some bills from Lewis and Conger. Ah, me!

Equal care has been given to the religious aspects of the story, which some gloomy commentators have remarked will displease rural folk. We think such a fear is false. The spoofing of the Episcopalians is always respectful. Its humor is human, not iconoclastic. And Edmund Gwenn's Dr. Lloyd, the rector, is a triumph of acting. Never once does Gwenn make him absurd. While the church doesn't completely resemble the Church of the Incarnation, we'll bet the late Dr. Percy Silver would have relished the scenes.

Powell's Elegant Playing

Certainly much of the film's success stems from Director Curtiz and Scriptwriter Stewart. The mingled laughter at and respect for the accepted customs of those far-off days is beautifully achieved and is the real pith of the picture.

But if those are the more subtle achievements, Powell's Father is the evident triumph. The man is Father. From his properly shined shoes to the tip of his red head Powell makes Father's outbursts and retreats something many will recognize as a part of their own recollections.

Nor will you find fault with the rest of the cast. Irene Dunne is good as Mother and would doubtless have seemed better had Powell not been so superb. ZaSu Pitts' Cora is amusing yet restrained, not resorting too much to her established tricks. Jimmy Lydon and Elizabeth Taylor are effective as the teen-age sweethearts and you'll enjoy everyone else.

As we said, "Life With Father" is a honey of a picture you'll probably want to see a couple of times.

Truman's Economists Alarmed Over Prices

By Drew Pearson

When President Truman walks down the gangplank from the U.S.S. Missouri next week, there will be dumped in his lap a none-too-happy economic report from his Council of Economic Advisers.

The council, set up by Congress to take the Nation's business pulse and report on how to head off depressions, is more alarmed than ever over high prices and the inflation spiral. In fact, they are so worried that they have been considering the drastic step of recommending reinstatement of price controls.

This step has also been considered by members of the Truman Cabinet during his absence, and they are not at all happy about it. They feel that new price controls never would get by Congress, would only result in more black-marketeering—unless accompanied by rationing. And nobody wants to have rationing come back.

However, the Council of Economic Advisers, a group of experts picked from neither political party, is concerned not with what Congress may or may not think, but solely with heading off depression. And they will inform the President:

1. That the present runaway prices coupled with inflation will continue for some time.

2. That continuation will lead to a real depression, rather than a recession.

They will also caution that the low-income public—which makes up the vast majority of the Nation's consumers—has been using up its savings because prices are so high they can't pay their bills out of present income.

New Type of Junket

With Congress busting all records this year for pleasure-junketing at the taxpayers' expense, it is heartening to report that one committee is planning a genuine business trip. GOP Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire has made certain that members of his Appropriations Committee toe the line on their forthcoming trip to probe United States relief spending in Europe.

Bridges

"This will be neither a Cook's tour, nor a junket," Bridges has forewarned his committee. "It's strictly a business trip to get information on which we can base future relief appropriations. We have to hit a lot of places in a relatively short time, which means there won't be time for entertainment and socializing."

The New Hampshire Senator did not bar senatorial wives, providing they pay all their own expenses. Also wives must travel around by themselves while their husbands are busy on inspection tours.

Note—Among other things, the Senators will probe the activities of Gen. John "Court House" Lee, and Soviet use of American currency plates to print paper money in Germany.

German Espionage?

Last month Bob Allen threw penetrating light on the brass-hatting of General Lee, United States commander in Italy. Among other things, Colonel Allen told how General Lee, in charge of supplies in 1944, had delayed delivery of Christmas mail to men in the front lines.

Since then, a GI who helped handle this mail has sent amazing details as to how that 1944 Christmas mail was handled. Here is the story:

"The Seventeenth Base Postoffice, with more than 1000 men," he says, "moved out of Cherbourg to better quarters in Paris, leaving the Christmas mail to be handled by the Fifteenth Postal Regulating Section—an outfit with only about 15 men. To help them the Seventeenth Base Postoffice left behind about 20 privates, making a total of 35 men to handle what 1000 men had handled before.

"Naturally it was impossible for this small outfit to handle the deluge of mail, so the higher command detailed several hundred German prisoners to help.

"Each sack of mail had a label with the name of the outfit to which it was to be sent. The German prisoners would pull the sacks over to an American soldier, who would call out the name of the outfit. Another American soldier held a list marked 'Secret,' containing the exact whereabouts of each regiment or battalion at the front. And he would call out the routing of the sack to the other soldier, who would mark this destination on the label.

"All this was done with German prisoners watching and listening. Many of them could speak English, and frequently it seemed to me they were overcurious about their work. Their task was to pile up the sacks of mail, all the sacks in one pile going to one place. Thus it was easy to see merely from the size of a pile of mail sacks where the preponderance of United States troops were. And if a large infantry unit's mail suddenly appeared on a pile, it was quite clear that new troops were being moved up to the front.

"It will always be my opinion that the storing up of this 1944 Christmas mail into these piles offered the enemy a topographical map showing the strength and weakness of our troops in the Battle of t Bulge."

Private-Eye-in-Panama Yarn Notable for Mute Five Minutes

By Leo Brady

"Riff Raff," at the Metropolitan, is the kind of picture in which a lug in a black-and-white jersey laces Pat O'Brien with a belt buckle and O'Brien says, "I'm not gonna like you." It is also the kind of picture in which Percy Kilbride spends 5 minutes sparking a vintage automobile into combustion every three reels.

To be formal about it, "Riff Raff" is a hard-boiled mystery melodrama which leads you along pleasantly enough for half its length and then gets lost in its own bafflement. It is complete with a missing map, a laconic free-lance detective who seems to be getting a cut on every racket in Panama, a tall, cool blonde, and Walter Slezak, RKO's Nordic Peter Lorre. O'Brien plays Dan Hammer, a Central American Philip Marlowe, and its the kind of wisecrack, easy-go character that might well work into a series—Thespis forgive me. The ingredients are standard and shouldn't be any harder to repeat the next time than they are this.

The most commendable sections of the film are those involving O'Brien and Kilbride. If their dialogue is not exactly brilliant and certainly not sustained, at least it does work up a dull polish now and again, thanks to Martin Rackin, who wrote the original screen play. And it has an opening sequence rare since Al Jolson first opened his mouth in "The Jazz Singer." For the first 5 minutes of the picture nobody speaks and the camera does the work. Granted this is a negative virtue—and a thunderous rainstorm and a clattering airplane engine practically deafen you—its still interesting to see a silent actor again. These shots include a pretty photogenic lizard also; he doesn't speak either.

Pat O'Brien, as you know by now, belongs to the Bing Crosby School of Acting, the principal dictum of which is to speak a line as cautiously as possible and then look around to see what's going to happen next. But he's genial and manages to phrase some casual persiflage in spite of that blood trickling down his face.

Slezak is as disarmingly cruel as ever, and Panama doesn't affect Percy Kilbride's way-down-East delivery a bit; doesn't affect his jokes either. Anne Jeffreys is pleasant and capable with the small-talk, but she turns a little green when she is called upon to crown Slezak with a bookcase, hardly the kind of thing to encourage in nice young women.

Everybody takes a lot of punishment in this, and its banteringly brave once in a while, but the excess of blood won't blind you to its lack of real guts.

Edgar Kennedy paws his physog in a short, if you're a Kennedy admirer.

"RIFF-RAFF." RKO picturization of an original screenplay by Martin Rackin. Produced by Nat Holt. Directed by Ted Tetzlaff. At the Metropolitan Theater.

Thornhill Says It's a Singer's Day

By Bill Gottlieb

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—There are, musically speaking, only a half dozen large orchestras that really mean anything today: Duke Ellington, Stan Kenton, Dizzy Gillespie, Boyd Raeburn, Ray McKinley and Claude Thornhill. From what I heard at his recent Hotel Pennsylvania opening, it's Thornhill who sounds like the one capable of the biggest and broadest commercial splash of the lot because he's the prettiest sounding and the most easily understood.

Betty and Bobbie Sox may not know exactly what Claude is doing when he produces those deep, resonant sounds with his French horns and tubas; and they may not dig his sharpness when he incorporates bebop phrases into his dance tunes . . . but even the least informed among them should be able to grasp the melodic loveliness of his ballads and the stimulating inventiveness of his strategically programmed jump stuff.

Only flaw in the pretty picture is that fine musicianship, be it by Thornhill or Raeburn or Ellington, is not paying off. In between shootings at the Columbia picture studios, where Claude has just made a short, Claude gave me the story in a nutshell:

"I've just come off a long road tour throughout the country. I found," the pianist-leader lamented, "that the music business has become the oyster of vocalists. The only thing that really sells are vocalists. Get a sweet ballad singer or a comic with a funny hat and you're in. Great musicianship, great music means little, except as incidental support for a singer."

. . . He nutshelled it

He turned to a trade listing of the Nation's top 10 record tunes. Sure enough, everything from "Peg O' My Heart" and "That's My Desire" down to "Tallahassee" were put over by singers . . . crooners, hillbillies, novelty acts; but all singers.

Claude has personal problems of his own, too. A musician in the best and worse sense, he's devoted to making original, creative music and oblivious to the problems of showmanship, publicity and business in general. A few months ago when he should have added three press agents, he hired three flutes, which he eventually had to drop to cut costs. Had he gotten the three press agents first, he eventually would have been able to have gotten (and kept) his flutes. The pity of it is that his two imitators, Elliot Lawrence and Skitch Henderson, seem to be making a better financial go of it. They may not have the master's music, but their business-like smiles are wider and better directed.

CLAUDE'S CLASSICS: The Thornhill organization is putting a publicity drive behind a honkey-tonk novelty arrangement of "Beautiful Doll," though there's more music on the Columbia platternate "Early Autumn," a lovely beguine. Look forward to his forthcoming "Thriving On A Riff," a smoothed up version of the bebop classic, "Entymology."

RECORD BRIEFS: Charlie Spivak has recorded his theme, "Stardreams" (RCA-Victor). Columbia, meantime, has compiled the themes of Krupa, Carle, Thornhill, Brown, Cugat, Jergens, Lawrence and Noble in a single album . . . Billy Eckstine uses his wild vibrato on "The Wildest Gal in Town" (MGM) . . . Leslie Scott has a torchy voice like Billy's on "The Man I Love" (RCA-Victor) . . . Aimed at returning students are three similarly slanted albums: Tex Beneke's "Prom Date" (RCA-Victor), the Capitol Stable (Kenton, Mercer, Goodman, etc.) in "Campus Classics" and a Johnny Long school selection (Signature) . . . Erskine Hawkins classics, like "Tuxedo Junction" and "Tippin' In," are revived in a Victor album . . . Sammy Kaye lets Singer Laura Leslie dominate the whole suggestive "That's What Every Young Girl Should Know" (RCA-Victor) . . . Week's best vocal comes from Harry Babbitt on Key Kyser's "Things Have Changed" (Columbia) . . . My favorite humorous vocalist, Pearl Bailey, gives her light touch to "Get It Off Your Mind" (Columbia) . . . Vaughn Monroe has a cynical retort to a wartime hit with "I'm Still Sittin' Under the Apple Tree" (RCA-Victor).

Man Acquitted Of Using Drugs To Evade Draft

Judge Albert V. Bryan, in Alexandria Federal Court yesterday, acquitted one man charged with using benzedrine to avoid military service and ordered similar charges dismissed against three others.

Bryan acquitted Eugene J. Siravo, 6213 42d ave., Hyattsville, Md., who had been indicted for taking benzedrine to force his blood pressure up when he reported at Ft. Myer for induction early in November, 1943. The acquittal came on recommendation of Asst. United States Attorney George P. Mumrickhouse after witnesses had testified that the test used in the case of Siravo might not be absolute proof that benzedrine was in the system.

Both Dr. Michael X. Sullivan, Director of the Chemo-Medical Research Institute at Georgetown University, and Robert H. Chambers, a former FBI agent who made the tests on Siravo, stated that in the light of certain scientific discoveries in the last four years they could not be sure that the conclusions drawn from the test in 1943 were still valid.

Chambers, who came from North Platte, Nebr., to testify, told the court that he had used methods which at the time had been accepted as positive roof. It has since been learned, however, he stated, that under certain conditions other substances may react like benzzedrine unless the analysis is carried a step further with a spectrophotometer.

Because Chambers made similar tests in the cases of Watson W. Parsons, Eugene L. Turner and Albert L. Brooks, Bryant dismissed charges against them. Humrickhouse said this would not be grounds for reopening cases of others previously convicted.

Water Trucked Into 2 Towns As Wells Run Dry in Drought

Four trucks late yesterday began moving water into the parched communities of Gaithersburg and Washington Grove, Md.

To relieve the water shortage which developed in the two communties Wednesday, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission borrowed three 10,000-gallon tank trucks fro mthe District Government to carry water from a hydrant in Garrett Park near Kensington, about 10 miles away.

A fourth truck, owned by a private contractor, also was pressed into service.

The shortage developed when two nine wells operated by the Sanitary Commission went dry. The communities' water supply was completely cut off for about five hours.

Yesterday, officials said, all nine wells were intermittently pumping air into the 155,000 gallon elevated storage tank. Daily normal use for the 2000 residents is about 130,000 gallons daily.

The water being transported to Gaithersburg will be placed in two 50,000 gallon surface storage tanks and pumped into the elevated tank.

All water subscribers in the area have been warned to conserve water as it is imperative to keep a substantial amount in the two surface tanks for fire fighting purposes, officials said.

The water famine was brought on by extended periods of drought and will not be permanently relieved until there is heavy and prolonged rainfall, it was declared.

Anticipating trouble, the sanitary commission commenced the drilling of a well beside the overpass on Route 240 east of Gaithersburg about a month ago. Still in the drilling stage, the well is now about 145 feet deep. When that well is completed, another will be started at Diamond ave. and Water st. in Gaithersburg.

A well owned by the McBain Ice Co. also was tapped when the shortage developed and has provided some relief, officials said.

9000 Apply For Licenses On Businesses

More than 1000 owners of unincorporated businesses already have been issued licenses and 8000 more have applications on file, Walter C. Thompson, examiner in charge of the new unincorporated business tax, announced yesterday.

Thompson said tax officials believe approximately 15,000 business enterprises here will be affected by the law, which applies to unincorporated business frossing more than $10,000 a year.

In addition to obtaining licenses no later than midnight Monday, these unincorporated businesses must file returns and pay 5 per cent tax on net income exceeding $10,000 per year, he pointed out.

Mailed-in license applications, accompanied by checks for payment of the $10 fee, will beat the September 15 deadline if they are postmarked prior to midnight Monday, he said.

The Commissioners announced yesterday that 15,000 copies of the regulations governing the new unincorporated business tax here will be available to the public today in the assessor's office at District Building.

Two Fairfax County Policemen Promoted

Fairfax County Police Chief Carl McIntosh yesterday announced promotions to sergeants of two Fairfax police officers.

Sergt. Cicil Brown, 30, on the force for six years, was made a detective sergeans. Pvt. Lewis H. Shumate, 42, member of the force since 1943, replaced Brown as a uniformed sergeant.

Understaffed Police Taxed By School Duty

Assignment of policemen to guard dozens of school crossings in Montgomery County is working a hardship on the county's understaffed force, police officials said yesterday.

The perennial headache is made even worse this year, they said, with new highs being hit in both volume of traffic through the county and in school enrollment.

As school opened Wednesday, police officers in Silver Spring said they were responsible for 13 crossings and only 11 men were working on the morning shift. All of the crossings were protected, however, with one officer doing two crossings and another reporting in the morning after having worked all night.

10 School Crossings

In Bethesda, officials said there were 10 school crossings to guard and only 12 men were on duty. Two crossings which had to be guarded in Rockville left only one man available for all other police duties, it was said.

There have been times, the police officials said, when all available men were handling school crossings and not one officer was available for emergencies.

One police commanding officer said the only way he could find a sufficient number of policemen to handle the crossings was to take men off night shifts, already shorthanded.

Police Charles M. Orme said yesterday the answer to the problem is more policeman. He pointed out that in the 1947-48 budget request he asked for 21 more policemen but thus far only eight have been hired. They will start active duty on Monday providing some relief, he said.

Urges Hiring of Guards

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said yesterday that in his opinion no more police are necessary. A solution to the problem, he said, is more effective use of the present police force and hiring of more crossing guards by the board of education.

There are at present 15 such adult employes who restrain children from crossing until there is no traffic. Four more soon will be hired, a school official said. Acting School Superintendent E. Merritt Douglass stated yesterday that the crossings are primarily a police responsibility.

One police official told of receiving numerous calls from parents asking police protection at intersections their children cross en route to school.

Anti-Gamblers in St. Marys To Carry on Despite Lockout

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 11 (Spl.).—The antigambling fraternity of St. Marys County, Md., isn't going to take its latest rebuff standing around outside of a locked courthouse.

Some 150 of them, members of St. Marys County Civic Association, found that county building here locked and barred to them last night when they met to organize further their opposition to slot machine operations in the county. Spokesman William C. Gleiter said here tonight it won't happen again.

Gleiter, a member of the association's board of governors, declared he would request use of the courthouse in writing and would meet elsewhere if refused.

A. S. King, county clerk, said today the courthouse was denied the association on the basis of a resolution passed Tuesday by the county commissioners requiring written requests for public meeting use of the building. The resolution, he said, was adopted after complaint of courthouse use "for partisan purposes."

Gleiter was chosen spokesman because of his booming voice by the association chairman, Herbert R. Pembroke, prominent local farmer, who was scheduled to conduct the much-advertised indoors meeting. Members of the association have made repeated calls for stricter enforcement of gaming laws.

The civic association was active in brining about a special session of the March grand jury which handed down 24 gambling indictments. Gleiter said the meeting was planned to organize request for further gambling probe by the new grand jury, to be formed Monday. Verbal consent for use of the courthouse had been given, he said.

County Clark King acknowledged this and said meetings had been held there in the past with only verbal consent, but added "that was before there were any protests." He said a delegation of taxpayers headed by Jack Harding, retired businessman, had officially protested to the county commissioners.

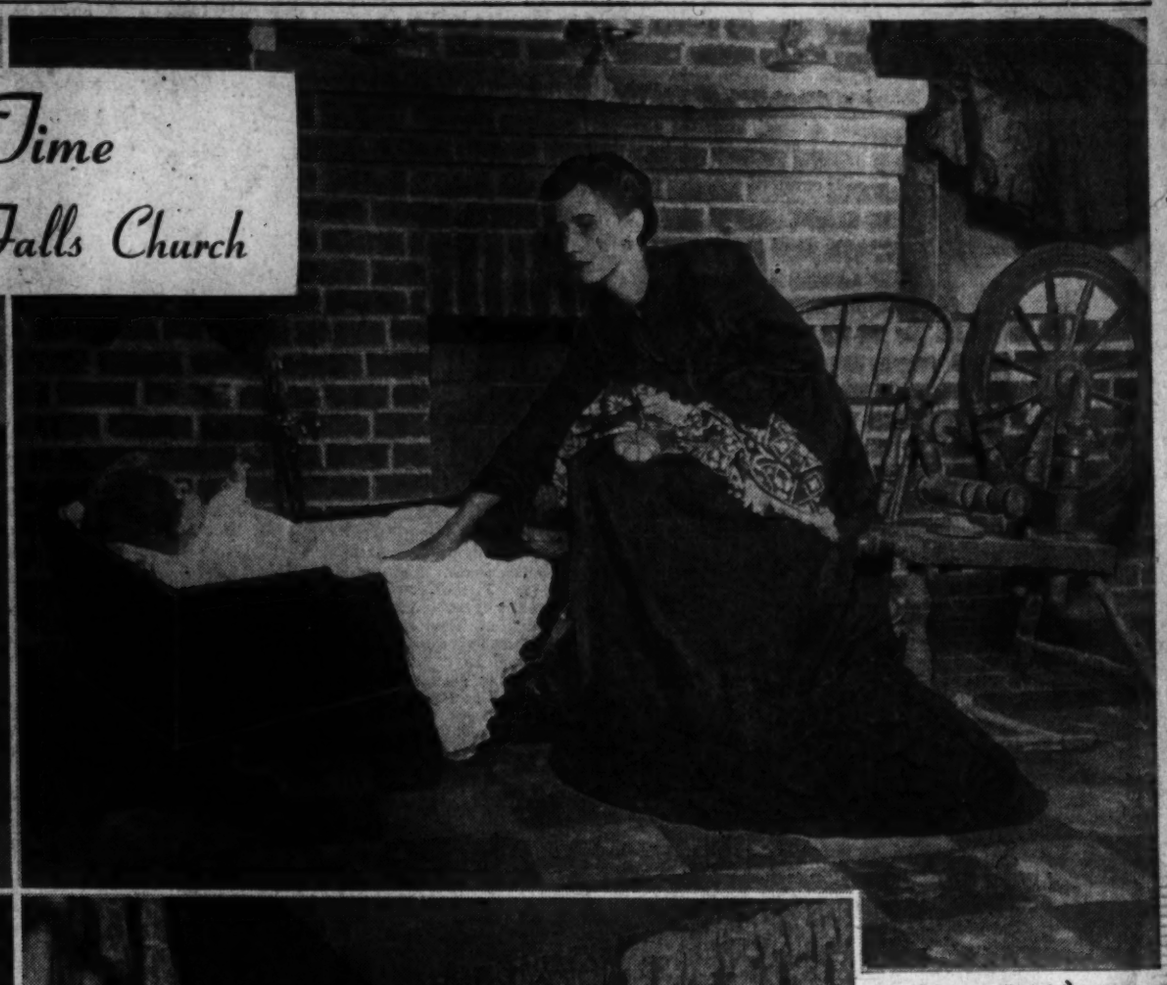
Fiesta Time in Falls Church



Harris & Ewing Photos.

THE old fashioned kitchen at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold will be a point of interest in the Falls Church Fiesta. Here Mrs. Frederick W. Chew shows how a baby-sitter of colonial days looked DRESS rehearsal for the Falls Church Fiesta finds Mrs. Harold W. Adams and little Helen K. Blanding gowned in heirloom silk and satins. They'll wear these costumes when they help show visitors around the historic houses to be open to the public Sunday, September 21, at Falls Church

WALNUT HILL, the historic home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, pictured above, will be open to visitors during Falls Church Old Homes Tour, Sunday, September 21. Copeland of McLean, Va., is pictured in the dining room at "Walnut Hill," with heirloom silver and crystal that will be on exhibition

Miss Virginia Hazelgrove, at right, is putting the finishing touches on her costume for the Fiesta, and Helen K. Blanding watches her primp. Virginia is the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. F. S. Hazelgrove of Falls Church and Helen's parents are Mr. and Mrs. K. Blanding

Miss Holland Is Married To Mr. Lewis

MISS MARY GROOVER HOLLAND, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Spessard Lindsey Holland of Bartow, Fla., was married last evening in Bartow to Jefferson Davis Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Lewis of Tallahassee.

The Governor of Florida and Mrs. Millard Caldwell and their daughters, Susan and Sally, Senator Claude Pepper and Representative Hardin Peterson, were among the guests at the wedding and the reception which followed at the Woman's Club.

The ceremony took place in the First Methodist Church in a setting of gold and ivory chrysanthemums and gladioli with golden candles in arch arrangement. The Rev. Jack Davis of Sarasota, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated at the service. Mrs. Roscoe Skipper, aunt of the bride, was the organist and Mrs. William B. Holland, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was vocal soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of antique ivory satin made with long sleeves, a graduated peplum and a train. A scrolled cording edged the sleeves and yoke of heirloom rose point lace. Her veil of heirloom rose point was waist length and fell from a cap of pearl orange blossoms and lace. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses, lilies of the valley and orchids.

Mrs. Bruce Gravette of Fort Myers, Fla., was matron of honor

With Grim Humor Man Explains He's on Verge Of Nervous Breakdown Due to Mother-in-Law's Bossing Since She Moved in Just a Month Ago

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The trouble is my mother-in-law. She came to live with us last month, after the death of her second husband; and I've been in the doghouse more or less since her arrival.

Try as I may, I can't do anything to suit her. She is always finding fault with me. If I get home from work a little late for supper she invariably makes some crack,—such as my thinking more of my job than I do of my home; or that I ought to have more regard for my wife than to keep her waiting supper.

She is always prying into my personal business, too, — saying that I ought to get another job and earn more money, so that we could have a better house, a better car, nicer clothes, etc. As if I hadn't sense enough to know that we need these things.

Man Considers Wife's Feelings

SHE interferes with my discipline of the children, too. Every time I try to correct them she butts in to tell me how it should be done. "Now if it was MY child—," she will say, and then go into great detail, ad infinitum and ad nauseam, to prove how much superior her child rearing theories are to mine.

Out of respect for my wife, who is naturally much attached to her mother, I have tried to conceal my annoyance. We have always got along fine and I'd certainly hate to hurt her feelings by showing dislike of her mother. And I can't have a private showdown with the latter because she blabs everything I say to my wife—after touching up my remarks to make a mountain out of a molehill.

I've tried to be patient but I can't stand much more. Last night was the last straw. She plunked her big fat 200-pound carcass down in an armchair so hard that the springs broke. Then she blamed me. She said I should get a better chair. I was so mad I felt like throwing her out, bag and baggage. If she doesn't go soon I'll have a breakdown or lose my mind. Please advise: What should I do? S. D.

Summon Courage;
Bounce Intruder

DEAR S. D.: The situation is impossible. And the only solution is to bounce the mother,—no ifs, ands or buts about it. That's easier said than done, of course,—and the painful task will be harrowing to your wife. Yet it's her duty to second your lead in that respect, no matter how much she may quail from the prospect of "taking sides."

Doubtless she knows from earliest experience the depressing magnitude of her mother's bossiness; and on the surface of her mind, she may think she takes mother's bulldozer temperament for granted, as covering a heart of gold. But underneath and essentially, I daresay she is completely cowed by Mrs. Doe—let's call her.

I suppose it's an old story with Mrs. Doe to let people know where she stands, right from the beginning; and as I get it, her "stand" consists in planting her foot firmly on the other party's neck and keeping it there,—provided the other party submits, of course. And I should infer—from her colossal assurance—that most of her intimates have done so, eventually; though perhaps not without a defensive struggle at first.

Her Neck Is Out
Giraffe Length

AT PRESENT she is waging a blitz campaign to become unchallenged ruler of the roost, striking directly at you as her chief opponent and only potential rival authority. If she grinds you down, naturally her long-since-tamed daughter and the latter's offspring will be completely subject to her dictates.

She is sticking her neck out to giraffe-length to meddle in marital and domestic relations that are, but definitely, none of her business; and it doesn't behoove you to tolerate this, in supposed deference to your wife's feelings. Actually your wife needs protection from her, though possibly she's never quite grasped that truth.

For advice: Assert leadership or you're licked. It's no good boiling with hidden outrage. Get hold of your emotions; get cool, calm and collected and take your wife out some evening soon for a long, quiet talk away from Mrs. Doe's ears. Then lay it on the line that her mother must go, and take it on yourself to break the news and engineer the ouster, if your wife feels timid. M. H.

What to do about a family of almost grown-up children who stay out all hours and shirk the household tasks? Mary Haworth considers their mother's problem in her column Sunday.

By William Klemm—The Washington Post.

"The plate's still cool but the steak is sizzling hot," says Chef Emil Buisson as he demonstrates the new radar range at the Statler Hotel for Miss Connie Dowling, 1645 Trinidad ave., n.e. The steak was broiled well-done in 60 seconds flat in this amazing electronic cooking device

Radar Comes Into Kitchen To Broil Meat Without Heat

By Lucia Brown

THERE wasn't any smoke; there wasn't any fire; there wasn't even any heat. Just a low sizzle—and meat that had been raw and red a minute before was well-done, tender, and juicy.

Radar—the same thing they located submarines with during the war—had broiled a filet mignon.

It all took place this week at the Statler Hotel, where the management was proudly displaying the new radar ranges just installed there. The Statler is the first local concern to utilize this peacetime adaptation of a revolutionary wartime development.

Outwardly, the electronic oven looks a good deal like any other small oven in the prime of life—a square, shining cavity with a hinged front door. The first big difference in operation that you notice is that steaks are broiled in it right on the serving plate.

One Minute Steaks

The chef opens the door, pops in a plate of thick steak, closes it, and a switch clicks on. After a minute—less than that if you want your steak rare—the switch clicks off again, and the chef takes the plate out with his bare hands. It's energy that has done the cooking—and all the energy of this fabulous machine has been concentrated on the piece of steak, which is piping hot and ready to serve.

For the time being, the Statler plans to use the new ranges for broiling only. "Long order" cooking becomes "short order" when chicken, sliced ham, chops, bacon, lobster, and other seafood are broiled electronically. Oven time for each varies from 35 seconds to 2 minutes. That means a saving on fuel bills, as well as on meat shrinkage. It also means quicker service and juicier, more flavorful meats, with a higher vitamin content.

The only thing the radar range doesn't do is brown as it broils. Browning has to be done by zipping it into a special searer for one minute before it visits the electronic oven.

Hams, legs of lamb, and other large pieces of meat can't be roasted in the present radar oven. But after the first of the year, the Raytheon Manufacturing Co. of Boston, Mass., which makes the range, plans to have a new tube available which will make possible the cooking of large pieces.

How Soon Is Question

How soon will radar ranges be ready for home use? That was the question every woman witnessing the demonstration asked Ray Wharton, food consultant for the Raytheon company.

His prediction is "about three years." He thinks that the range for home use will be a combination affair, with electric top plates and an electronic oven.

When that happy day arrives, you can bake or broil food in your kitchen with no heat, smoke, odor, or grease. Getting dinner will be a matter of minutes. Food will come to the table with all its natural juices and most of its vitamins left intact.

Market Memo
By Lucia Brown

EGGS are higher . . . butter is higher . . . meat's in the stratosphere . . . and fish prices are jumping . . . so let's turn for cheer to one item that's cheaper . . . margarine.

There's been a 3c to 4c per pound drop in the last 10 days . . . and, to make things simpler for you, one manufactuer has a new package with an easy-to-color feature. It's a plastic bag which holds white margarine and a red color capsule. You warm the package . . . pinch the capsule . . . and work in the color inside the bag by kneading the outside.

California grapes are another pleasant food to talk about . . . there are so many of them. Western wine makers aren't buying as many grapes this year . . . so more are shipped East . . . flame Tokays, white Seedless, and Red Malagas. Fresh Italian prunes are coming from California, too . . . and lots of oranges.

Canned fruits and vegetables from the 1947 pack are stacked on local grocery shelves. Notice that many of the new cans are No. 303's, slightly smaller than No. 2's. The 8-ounce can (size 8-2) is also back for many different fruits and vegetables.

FISH FEATURES: A waterfront dealer has Florida crayfish (also called Languste) . . . and Southern lobster . . . delicious white meat . . . and cheaper than Northern lobster. Kennebec River salmon from Maine is also on hand . . . and plenty of fresh haddock.

A Tattle-tale

Telling tales on the other children of the family should be stopped at its first evidence. It develops a very poor spirit in the family and a very undesirable trait in the child who tells. The parent would be wise to ignore the information and not punish the child upon whom the blame is placed. A few treatments of this sort will soon shame the tale-bearer and the habit will cease.

Stretch Your Way To Slimness

By Ida Jean Kain

There's a little jingle that goes: By the yard, life is hard, by the inch, it's a cinch. That's a comforting philosophy . . . to live each happily as it comes along. It's the sure way to make today a good day.

Ida Jean Kain

Of course, we should get in the groove on trimmer-downers, fashions hugging the midriff as they are this season. But let's take it by the inch. And take it easy.

I've decided to do an about-face on my exercise instructions to you . . . and make them as easy as falling-off-a-diet, than which there is nothing easier! Heretofore when I've described an exercise, taking it for granted you were getting the knack of it just fine, letters would arrive indicating I had left too much to chance. So, nothing will be left to chance, and that way a little exercise can go a long way toward slimming.

Start With a Stretch

We'll start with a stretching . . . stretching to slim the midsection.

Position: Lie flat on your back, on floor or exercise mat or blanket. A fairly hard surface is best, then the back can't get out of kilter. Comfortable? If you feel a slight strain at your lower back, fix it . . . slip a small pillow between your knees and the floor . . . at the bend of the knees. That removes all strain.

Movement: Keeping in mind that you want to slim the middle, make the middle muscles bear the brunt of the pull. Take one side at a time. Stretch right arm up and left leg down, but concentrate on the MIDSECTION pulling up and down, from that section. That means to start the stretch there and very gradually inch upward with the arm, and push down with the heel. Now let the old cat die, as the kids say when finishing a swing . . . slowly ease back . . . yawn, relax . . . then slowly stretch again. No . . . don't start by pushing fingertips up . . . start by pulling apart through the middle. See? That forces the fingers up and heel down, which is the most slimming method.

The Other Way Now

Position: Still on back, relaxed. Have arms bent and elbows, fingers tucked behind neck, legs straight down. Shoulders relaxed.

Movement: Extend left arm upward on floor, not stretched, just up on floor, and at the same time lift left leg slightly off floor, knee straight and cross it over the right leg . . . here again, concentrate the stretch and gentle twist through the middle measurement and touch toes of left foot to floor at right. Now come back to position and ease through this movement again. The more you keep your back on the floor, the more the waist muscles take the action of the stretch twist. Reverse sides and twist gently to the left.

A follow-up tip . . . to get the best results from those two stretchers, remember this up-pull through the middle as you sit in the office chair, or in the kitchen chair. A high chair, with back, is far better for figures than the kitchen stool.

For the Little Woman

DESIGNED to the measurements of a woman who stands five feet three inches, is this royal blue crepe afternoon frock (right). The side drape and accent over the hipline, all features of this season's silhouette, have been used sparingly by designer Sylvan Rich to keep the lines suitable for the small figure

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

THE black velvet dancing dress (left), can make a tiny woman look regal and effective. The bodice is cut to the proper proportions, meeting the skirt exactly at the waistline. For dramatic effect the model carries a white ermine muff and wears long black velvet gloves. Both gowns are available at an F st. department store

Miss Schiller, Mr. Gritz Wed

Miss Lillian Schiller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Schiller of Washington, became the bride September 7 of Harry Gritz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gritz of Washington and Miami, Fla. The ceremony was performed in the chapel of the Washington Hebrew Congregation by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld.

The bride was attired in silver pink satin and she carried her confirmation Bible covered with gardenias and white satin streamers. Miss Natalie Lieberman, who attended the bride, was costumed in brown satin and carried a corsage of white gardenias. David Tobin was best man.

Mrs. Gritz attended George Washington University and the Corcoran School of Art. Mr. Gritz received his degrees from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Blacksburg, Va.

Since her widowhood Mrs. Hopkins has been living in New York and at the present time is serving as a clothes coordinator for one of the smart gown shops.

Mr. Gates has been married twice before. His first wife was Jane Shonnard, his second, the late Grace Momand Bingham.

THE CHESTER DAVISES of St. Louis, who have so many friends in Washington are back for a visit and are with Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller at her home on Kalorama rd.

With them is their son, Norman, who'll share honors with his parents at the cocktail party Mrs. Miller has planned for Saturday.

Mr. Davis, who is now president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, came to Washington in the early days of the New Deal. He served as Administrator of the Agriculture Adjustment Association, later was Food Administrator and for a time was a governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will go from here to Winston-Salem, N. C., to see their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Davis, jr., and will return to Washington for another stay before starting for home.

In a double ring ceremony September 6, Miss Catherine Lucille Brooks and Samuel Williams were married at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Church. The Very Rev. Paul Repetti officiated at the ceremony.

Mrs. Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hobart Brooks of Monmouth, Ill., and Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Philpot of Washington.

Because Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were unable to attend the wedding, Eugene Dewey escorted the bride. Her gown was of white satin with long pointed sleeves and long train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held by a satin cap trimmed with seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of red roses tied with satin ribbon.

Mrs. Margaret Westfield of Monmouth attended her sister as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Fannie Mae Gertz of Richmond, Va., and Miss Beatrice Carter of Washington. Michael Rowe, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man. William Rowe and Eugene Smith were ushers.

Never-Never Land

Americans Are Rediscovering Happy Hawaii

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

CHEERY, pink-cheeked Mrs. Joseph Farrington, wife of Hawaii's Delegate to the United States, flew in from Honolulu with 2 children, 2 maids and 15 of the 16 suitcases they started with.

Hawaii is heaven, reports Mrs. Farrington. Everyone's smiling and up to their ears in leis. The Hawaiians, set to pleasure the biggest army of tourists ever, are feverishly patching wartime wear and tear, yanking out weeds, repairing roads, opening restaurants. Planes skip in from Hollywood and less exciting California ports in 7 hours 55 minutes flat. So it's possible for stars, tired executives or just you and me to weekend in never-never-land.

Trader Vic's, whose spot in Oakland, Calif., is gourmets' mecca, is still dishing out manna in Honolulu. Don the Beachcomber has bought a large property near Waikiki. Back in Los Angeles he's the lad who serves frozen daiquiris with jutting rims of lacy ice, smothers his favorite clients in ginger flower leis flown especially from Hawaii. Heaven alone knows what exotic props he'll conjure up for his Honolulu boite!

White and Gold Face-Lifting

THE Royal Hawaiian, the Pacific's glamour hotel, has been demobilized from the Army, treated to an expensive face lifting. Banished is the lush Mediterranean-Della Robbia decor.

Now everything's white, the lamps purposely outsize, and there's a scattering of giant old masks and equally jumbo arrangements of banana and cocoanut leaves giddily gilded.

Honolulu opinion is hotly divided about the decorations. Some like them, some don't. Mrs. Farrington thinks they're fine. But it's our guess she herself could have cooked up something more enticing.

Round of Entertaining

THE Farrington entertaining program has been overwhelming. No less than 37 Congressmen on different tours have hit Hawaii. The Lowell Stockmans of Oregon stayed 16 days. Some were en route for look-sees of our Pacific bases. Public works commissioners, too, were nosing around.

The Bob Hannegans dropped in for a three-day visit. The Democratic chairman was on the dock when Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Anderson arrived. Three days later the Secretary, completely Hawaiianized and wearing a dizzy Aloha shirt, saw the Hannegans off.

Mrs. Farrington whipped together a luncheon of 35 women in honor of Mrs. Anderson. The cloths covering the many small tables were striped chartreuse and shocking pink. The centerpieces were delicious mounds of water lilies. The food was strictly local and the Hawaiian ladies wore their best silk holokaus.

The Hawaiians staged an impromptu series of "acts." One chanted a beautiful Hawaiian prayer, others sang or danced. Sharing the spotlight with Mrs. Anderson was the wife of Honolulu's mayor.

A professional dancer finished off the amateur program. She undulated through the hula (NOT the hula-hula) and such curiously named dances as "sticks and stones." As a final gesture she presented Mrs. Anderson with a holokau wrapped in Ti leaves. The Secretary's wife, enchanted, insists she's going to wear it at the next White House party!

Philippine Celebration

WHEN the Emmet O'Neals' (he's our first Ambassador to the Philippines) boat touched Hawaii they were given a wonderful reception. All the Hawaiians of Philippine descent were on the dock, the women dressed in their exquisite beruffled, puffed sleeved native costumes. The O'Neals, staggering under bales of leis, were whisked away to the new Philippine consulate for a super-duper party.

The Philippine consul, a bachelor and buddy of Carlos Romulo, has done himself very swell. His government has bought the former Robin Anderson house, with its acres of marble floors, out on the Country Club road.

Mrs. Farrington, still breathless from her summer, says she never knows who'll turn up on her lanai—and at the queerest hours! Early mornings she automatically looks out her window and, likely as not, below there's an admiral, general or Congressman dozing happily and waiting for his prebreakfast coffee. Such is life in never-never land!

and Miss Ivanhoe Holland was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Sarah Lewis, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Nell Clark of Tampa; Miss Isabelle Wilson and Miss Melissa Wilson were bridesmaids.

All attendants wore identical gowns of gold satin made with dropped shoulder necklines, fitted bodices and full skirts. They carried arm bouquets of chrysanthemums shading from pale beige to deep bronze.

There was open house at the Holland residence following the wedding and later Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left by plane for Nassau on their honeymoon. The bride wore a sand beige gabardine suit with white orchid corsage and black accessories. After October 1 they will be at home at Los Robles, Tallahassee.

Tips for the Home Laundress

When finished ironing a long sash curtain, spread it out over a large piece of furniture until it is thoroughly dry before handling any further. If possible hang it right on the rod and let it dry there, but avoid as much handling as possible while still damp, as these wrinkles are apt to stay in and spoil the appearance of your work.

Iron the pockets and waistband first when ironing slacks. Then fold the trouser legs lengthwise, matching the inner and outer leg seams and iron the body. Finally, put the legs together straight and iron a sharp crease down the front of the trousers. Be sure to iron every bit of the dampness out of the slacks. Then hang on a trouser hanger until ready for use.

Old muslin curtains may be washed and cut into squares to hold lettuce, celery, etc., in the refrigerator.

MILT'S HERE AGAIN. Milton Davis who led the Rainbow Room band for around seven years before taking off for a couple of war-born niteries, will return to the Rainbow bandstand on September 25. Included in his band will be three of his former stand-bys—meaning Saxists Parley Eaton and Joe Moser, Bassist Frank Flanagan. It'll be a real "Old Home Week" when they return . . . Barbara Grant, beauteous New York singer, will also make her bow when the Davis band opens . . . The Rainbow Room is being fixed up mighty purty in claret and white (no interruption to biz), will be daisy-fresh for the party . . . Jim Nichols, who's been doing a fine job as Rainbow bandleader, will join Paul Kain's band at Club Cairo as star singer and sax man.

ANCHOR'S AWAY. This has nothing to do with the Navy or its song. It's to tell you that the Anchor Room got away to a brisk and happy start last night on its new entertainment policy featuring Songstress Georgia Butler and Pianist Jerry King. They're highly talented young people, sweet about playing requests and it looks as though they'll be around a long time.

Leon Brusiloff and a 61-man orchestra will present a concert of all-American modern music at the Watergate on Wednesday, September 17. Admission is free and the public is invited. This event is presented through the courtesy of the Washington Musicians' Union.

CONCERT IN CAPRICE. Music lovers are basking in the subtle harmonies of "Moonlight Sonata" and Chopin nocturnes in Cafe Caprice. It's the doing of concert pianist, Rodolfo Cornejo. He plays all the pop numbers, too, but trims them up with bits of ingratiating fantasy. Cornejo's own compositions are special treats and include folk songs and the beautiful "Philippine Rhapsody No. 2."

Bob Brewer, fast-working pianist of the King Cole Room, already has the tunes from "Allegro," big Rodgers-Hammerstein musical due to open in New York on October 6. He recommends a crazy bit called "The Gentleman Is a Dope."

THE GAY VISITORS. Gene Pringle, Wardman Park bandleader and his chic wife (she'll be social director of a big Florida hotel this winter) were listening to Sammy Ferro's Tidesmen the other afternoon at the Neptune Room. It was at Neptune, too, that the "Going Native" cast held their party . . . Quite sedate was the dinner at Olmsted's of women business executives—until Cloyd, 70-year-old singing waiter, sounded off. He had all the ladies singing in no time . . . Major Jim Capeland, Army flier, is always dropping into Merry-Land to grin at the doings of the Ko-Ko-Nuts. . . . Three lovely singers, Anna Raymond, Zoya Stoddard and Kathleen Godfrey, contributed magical moments to the yachting party given by Grisha, maestro of the Balalaika. Capt. Eddie Canter had a tough time between keeping his eyes on the gals and the Potomac at the same time.

NEXT WEEK'S AGENDA is overwhelming . . . Morton Downey and Ted Straeter's band come to the Statler on Monday. On the same night the Carlton presents Phil Wayne's band in its Congo Room . . . Come Tuesday the Casino Royal unveils a new revue. On Wednesday there's the Club Cairo opening with a sumptuous revue headed by Ben Blue and Paul Kain's band . . . Thursday will see the reopening of the redecorated Mayflower Lounge with the "Champagne and Orchids Party," Florian Zabach's band and singer Jeanne Shirley . . . On Friday Milt Barrett will reopen his alluring La Conga with Herbert Curbelos' band.

Paula Rae, stunning, blonde and sweet voiced, is now caroling with Bob Knight's band in the Lounge Riviera. You'll remember her from the Old New Orleans . . . Maestro Knight also has a promising young singer in his secretary, Kathie Milroy. She's a sister of the Madrillon's Sue Milroy.

MUSICALLY DISTINGUISHED is the Dubonnet Room's organist, Art Taylor. He was a pupil of Leopold Godowsky and of Charles Courboir who was organist at the royal court of Belgium and also at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. But what will really excite the envy of other organists is this—Mr. Taylor is now booked for three years, up to the end of 1950!

Lee Potter, one of our town's most popular organists, will open at the Anchor Room on Monday, playing alternately with George Berg at the piano.

MERIT REWARDED. After years of patient practice, Stanley Weiner, gifted violinist son of Michel, owner of Michel's, has received an offer of the post of concert master of one of the country's most important symphony orchestras. He hopes to be able to accept the post. More about this later.

School Strike Against Negroes Wanes in Gary

Gary, Ind., Sept. 11 (U.P.).—Seven hundred pupils appeared for classes at Emerson School today, and school authorities said prospects were "a little brighter" for ending a student strike against the admission of Negroes.

The back-to-school movement left 1000 of Emerson's grade and high school students still on strike. Members of the school football team met with Jack Kilroy, director of physical education for the Gary public schools, to discuss the possibility of returning to classes if their football schedule were reinstated.

At Tolleston School attendance was normal. A 16-year-old Tolleston student, who was arrested on charges of agitating for a strike at his school, was released and returned to classes.

Marriage Vow Is Punctuated With Bullets

Denver, Sept. 11 (U.P.).—A 23-year-old husband stood by his bride's bed last night repeating "till death do us part" from his marriage vows as he fired a bullet from his revolver into her body to punctuate each word.

Then, Denver University student Charles Geise stood beside his dying 17-year-old wife for a moment before he turned and walked down the stairs. He called a family friend.

"I've just shot and killed Sue," he said. "I thought you'd like to know."

Voice of America On New Relay

The "Voice of America" radio broadcast was beamed to the Far East yesterday over a new relay transmitter located in Manila.

The new relay has the effect of moving the American Government broadcast 6000 miles closer to the Far Eastern countries since the only relay previously was made through the Honolulu station. The State Department said that preliminary reports from monitoring points in Asia indicated "excellent reception, with no fading or interference."

The broadcasts to the Pacific area are made in eight languages on a 6-hour daily program schedule.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

1. Is there any way to clean oak woodwork that is suffering from years of neglect? The only alternative is painting, but we've been told that woodwork that has been varnished will chip if painted.

2. Can bathroom floor tile be bleached white after a brownish film has formed? I've tried chlorine bleach, scouring powder, peroxide, cream of tartar, and finally oxalic acid, but nothing is successful. O. H. C.

1. Wash the woodwork with furniture wash made by mixing 3 tablespoons linseed oil, 1 tablespoon turpentine, and 1 quart hot water. Let it cool before using. Wring out a soft cloth in it, and wash a small section of the woodwork at a time, drying immediately with another cloth. Unless a dull finish is desired, polish with lemon oil or rottenstone and lemon oil mixed to the consistency of thin cream. Use care not to soil the wall.

As to painting, if the varnish were in good condition and had a high gloss, you could undoubtedly paint over it satisfactorily. Washing it well first with soap and water and sponging with clear water would be the only preliminary treatment necessary. However, when the surface is marred, it's necessary to use varnish remover, then rub with sandpaper or steel wool, to prepare it for painting.

2. If the tiles are unglazed, the following poultice treatment may remove the stains: Dissolve one part sodium citrate crystals (purchased at a drug store) in six parts water. Measure. Add an equal volume of glycerine and mix well. Work in enough whiting to make a thick paste. Apply one-eighth inch thick covering of this paste. Let dry. Remove. Repeat until stain disappears. Acids should not be used on glazed tiles, which should be cleaned only with household cleansers, steel wool, or soap and water.

PETUNIA!

I'm feeling despondent
My outlook's funereal
Life's just a bowlful
Of left-over cereal!

Bishop-Bracken

1. Can tomatoes be frozen? I have a booklet on deep-freeze, but the list of suggested vegetables doesn't include tomatoes.

2. Can you give me the proper procedure for freezing crab meat? E. H. H.

1. Experiments in freezing tomatoes have not been very successful. Apparently this vegetable is too moist and fibrous to make a good frozen product. If you try it at all, cook the tomatoes down to a puree or paste before freezing. It's simpler and better on the whole to can this vegetable.

2. Before freezing crab, cook it in the usual way and remove the shells. Pack the flaked meat in a cellophane bag or other container that can be made absolutely airtight. Pack it firmly and tightly so that meat won't dry out. Be sure to leave as little air as possible in the bag when you freeze it. Crab should be frozen quickly at below-zero temperatures, then stored at temperatures not more than 10 degrees Fahrenheit. Freezing experts of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service do not recommend keeping frozen crab more than three months.

Obliging Cop Provides Cabbage For Corned Beef

Mrs. F. Stephen Root of 2505 Rhode Island ave. ne. invited some friends over to dinner the other day. She promised to make them some corned beef and cabbage.

But the grocer made a mistake in filling Mrs. Root's order that afternoon—and at the last minute she discovered that he hadn't sent her any cabbage.

By this time the grocery store was closed, and our hostess was getting desperate.

So she called the boys at No. 12, explained the situation, and asked whether they knew how to contact the grocer at home.

"I'm sorry, lady," was the reply, "we don't have that information. But we'll do the best we can for you."

A few minutes later there was a knock on Mrs. Root's door. She opened it and found a grinning policeman holding a sack full of cabbage.

"I was going off duty," he explained, "so I thought I'd give you a hand."

Just as I always say—people are nicer than anybody.

SOLUTION

After all this fuss about preventing coffee from sloshing in a railroad diner, here's a note from W. H. M. of 1661 Park rd. nw.:

"I've been a dining car steward for the last ten years, and I've seen tablecloths absorb countless gallons of coffee.

"This will happen on anybody's railroad, over any roadbed. But there's a very simple way to overcome the difficulty.

"Coffee is always served in a pot on railroad diners. All the customer need do is refrain from filling his cup too full."

Aw—I was just going to think of that myself.

SERVICE

Remember those swing records that Pete Baker of Naylor, Md., just couldn't find anyplace?

Pete's happy now. Quality Music Co. had the records and mailed them to him for free. (And they thank me for getting them a "customer." Hah! Wait'll they find out you can't make any money that way.)

PLOT

Bert Whittington of 1756 K st. nw., cites another good argument against long dresses.

He points out that we've had too many pictures of Miss America wearing an evening gown instead of a bathing suit, and suspects that there's something subversive about such goings on. Bert says:

"It seems to me that an Atlantic City bathing beauty winner wearing anything but a bathing suit is downright un-American."

OFFER

The other day we used the story of the guy who always found peanut butter sandwiches in his dinner pail.

(When his friend asks "can't you train your wife to fix you something other than peanut butter?" the guy snaps, "keep my wife out of this, I fix my own lunch.")

The mailman brings the following reaction from a Navy man whose name we won't use—and I give you my word I don't just make these things up:

"I'm a guest at St. Elizabeth's. After reading your story about the guy who fixed his own peanut butter sandwiches, I wish to inform you that we're not overcrowded out here. In fact, I'll gladly exchange places with him."

FARM STORY

The other day The Washington Post ran a Webster cartoon showing an old farmer about to take pen in hand to criticize a drawing of a man milking a cow from the wrong side.

George G. Junior of 5403 2d st. nw. is reminded of a story by that cartoon (and I hope the printers don't spoil things by spelling his name "jr.")

George says that there was once an old farmer who thought he'd rib his visiting city-slicker grandson. The grandson was about to milk a cow, and grandpa asked:

"Do you know which side you're supposed to milk?" The grandson replied:

"Why, sure. The underneath side."

Tales of Songs and Song Writers

NEW YORK.—Shortly after they were married Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin were guests at a Long Island party given by the Stotesburys. At that time Long Island society hadn't as yet been reconciled to the invasion by a Broadway songwriter . . . Mrs. Stotesbury had engaged Sid Silvers and Phil Baker to entertain. The orchestra was conducted by Harry Rosenthal. Silvers whispered something to Rosenthal—who nodded in agreement. Then, all night long, the orchestra played nothing but the hit songs written by Berlin.

A few years ago Banjo Santley, the veteran song-plugger, was plugging a new song called "Street of Regret." He brought it to bandleader Freddy Martin, who merely glanced at the cover page and returned it without bothering to look at the song. "Sorry," said the bandleader, "but I don't like it. I don't like 'Regret'" . . . "You don't like 'Regret'?" gasped Santley, who like all men in the song-publishing business is a racetrack follower. "How can you say that about 'Regret'? Regret won the Kentucky Derby in 1915."

When Harry Ruby read a report that Ben Hecht would receive $6000 a week for writing a movie, he summoned a group of other songwriters and showed them the report. "When a picture company does musicals, the songs are just as important as the story. Even more so," said Ruby. "I propose that we have an agreement not to write any songs for pictures unless we, too, get $6000 a week" . . . Then he surveyed the room, shook his head sadly and sighed: "It's no use. There'll always be some guy among you who'll go behind our backs and sign for $5500."

Only twice in his life did Gene Fowler ever try to make a prediction about the success of a song. "This'll be a dud. The public can't be that mad, to go for such a song," Fowler predicted—about "I Found a Million-Dollar Baby in a 5-and-10c Store" . . . But his other prediction—that it would sell over a million copies—was made about "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

During the last American Legion convention here a tall, heavy Legionnaire cornered the lean, solemn-faced George Meyer in Lindy's and told of his achievements in the first war. Then he glared at Meyer—whose hits include "Tuck Me to Sleep in My Old Kentucky Home," "Me and My Gal," "My Mother's Rosary" and "Everything Is Peaches Down in Georgia"—and challenged, "And where were you in 1918?"—Meyer's truthful answer satisfied the veteran: "Walter, Berlin & Snyder." Meyer whispered the first and last names, and shouted "Berlin."

Arthur Schwartz and Howard Dietz were in a midtown hotel room collaborating on some new songs. Whenever they rested, Composer Schwartz and Lyricist Dietz would discuss the age-old question as to whose contribution was more important. Then they returned to the business of the night, and when Schwartz' piano-pounding disturbed the neighbors the management complained. "I can't understand these people," said Schwartz. "Why can't they bear such excellent music?" . . . "See?" said Dietz. "They never complain about the lyrics."
